NATION HONORS THE VANGUARD OF ARMY

SELECTED MEN ARE READY TO GO INTO THE CANTONMENTS

President Wilson, Congress and Officers of the Government Join the Washington Parade.

DEMONSTRATIONS ALL OVER THE LAND

Washington, Sept. 4.—Drafted men of the 5 per cent quota going to the national army cantonments were reporting today to local boards in all districts to receive instructions and railroad and meal tickets.

Most of them will be given permission to spend the night at home under orders to report again to the board shortly before train time tomorrow.

About 30,000 men, most of whom have been selected because of previous military or experience as cooks, are included in the first quota. By tomorrow night they will be in the sixteen cantonments, except those at Yaphank, L. I., and Admiral, Md., where construction is not completed.

Each district's quota will be placed in charge of one recruit, to whom will be given war department warrants for transportation and meals and authority to command the men until they reach camp. Arrangements for traveling expenses already have been made by the local boards.

Nation Honors Them.

The vanguard of the national army was being honored throughout the country today with demonstrations to celebrate the eve of departure of the first drafted men to the cantonments. Typifying the spirit of the nation, sending forth its sons to battle for democracy, the capital gave itself over to a great public demonstration in which President Wilson, congress and all the heads of the government were yeaders. The place of honor in a procession between peace monument at the foot of the capitol to the white house was reserved for the 1,400 drafted men comprising the District of Columbia's first contribution to the national army. Led by President Wilson and escorted by senators, representatives, sailors, soldiers, marines, men of the officers' training camp at Fort Myer and thousands of their fel-

TARNOWSKI HAS STIRRED TROUBLE AMONG THE POLES

Amsterdam, Sept. 4.—Count Adam Tarnowski von Tarnow, according to a dispatch from Cracow, was one of the prominent speakers at yesterday's joint sitting of the members of the Polish imperial council and diet to consider the dissolution of the supreme national committee. He made a declaration in favor of dissolution on behalf of the conservatives. They maintained that it was a duty of all to support to a realization the proclamation of May 11, 1916, and to pursue a sincere state conservating policy in Austria. A heated discussion followed and ended with the people's party, the social democrats, national democrats and members of the Polish National association leaving the sitting without anything having been accomplished.

CAMP CUSTER IS READY FOR NEW NATIONAL ARMY

Battle Creek, Mich., Sept. 4.—Camp Custer, the national army cantonment near here, is ready for the Wisconsin and Michigan boys, chosen for the new army. SEEKS TO GAIN EXEMPTION FOR CITY FIRE BOYS

Washington, Sept. 4.—Refusal of the war department to exempt firemen from draft has drawn so much protest from city fire chiefs that Representative Scott, of Pennsylvania, today announced that he would attempt to obtain from President Wilson a modification of the ruling. Danger of fire, particularly in cities with great war industries, said Representative Scott, would be greatly increased if a number of trained fire fighters were drafted.

REBUILDING NEW RUSSIA

Ambassador from the New Democracy Talks of Reconstruction.

M. BAKMETEFF IS HEARD BY LAWYERS

Government Will Be Put Up on the Model of United States.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Discussing the reconstruction period through which Russia is now going, "emerging from the crucible of the revolution," Boris A. Bakhmeteff, Russian ambassador to the United States, in an address here today, before the judicial section of the American Bar association, declared that "the outcomings of the process now going on in Russia will determine the whole of the future relations between nations; on these issues will depend largely the future of the world."

To Rebuild Whole Edifice.

"Russia," he continued, "is facing now the complete reorganization of the whole edifice of its national life. All the branches and public, and financial systems of the government, the very customs of life are to be moulded in the spirit of the new freedom. Public and judicial institutions, civil and criminal law, finance, industry and commerce—all these manifold exertions of state life will have to be remodeled, and form the future edifice of state legality embodying the great principles of liberty and democracy."

In this process of remodeling the ambassador declared "the old institutions which for centuries have exemplified political serfdom and economical inefficiency," will be done away with forever.

Decentralization is Necessary.

The first step in the work, the speaker said, will be the establishment of a constitution and the determination of such fundamental laws will be accomplished by a "constitutent as-

GEN. VARILLA IS BADLY WOUNDED; MAY LOSE A LEG

Paris, Sept. 4.—Major General Philip Bunau-Varilla, was seriously wounded yesterday morning while on duty. Several fragments from a shell struck him in the left leg, which was so badly injured that amputation was considered necessary. After the amputation Major General Bunau-Varilla sent a message to his home asking his relatives not to be anxious concerning him, that he was content to suffer for his country.

Phillip Bunau-Varilla was director-general of the old French Panama Canal company and well known in the United States, having served as Panaman minister at Washington. He was a retired captain of engineers when the war began and in 1914 he returned to France from the United States to offer his services to his country and has earned several citations in army orders and has been awarded several decorations. Major General Bunau-Varilla is a brother of Maurice Bunau-Varilla, editor of the Matin.

OVER A HUNDRED LIVES ARE TAKEN

British Planes and Anti-Aircraft Guns Fail to Touch Raiders.

The victims were naval ratings. Six airplanes took part in the raid.

In addition to the naval casualties one civilian was killed and six were injured.

The announcement follows:

"Lord French (commander of the British home forces) reports that last night's air raid was carried out by about six enemy airplanes, which proceeded up the south bank of the Thames estuary to Chatham. PARADE PLANS ARE COMPLETE

Monster Demonstration for New Soldiers Starts at 8 O'Clock.

ALL MILITARY UNITS WILL APPEAR IN LINE

Story to Effect That March Was Called Off is Unwarranted.

"The parade in honor of the men selected from Fort Wayne for the new national army will be held on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. We want to make the demonstration one of genuine feeling," said Charles A. Neibergall, in charge of the patriotic parade, in denying the rumor that the demonstration had been called off.

Fort Wayne will pay tribute to her first quota of national army soldiers in a rousing parade Tuesday night. Plans for making the showing one of the most impressive of the year have been going on throughout the day, despite rumors to the effect that the procession had been called off.

There will be brass bands and hundreds of marchers. The military organizations of the city will be in the pageant procession. The boy scouts city and county officials and nearly all lodges of the city will be in the line of march.

The column will move south on Harrison street, from Berry to Bracken ridge. At Brackenridge street the ranks will proceed to Calhoun street. The line will continue north on Calhoun to Berry and from thence to the Majestic theater.

All divisions of the monster parade will form near the corner of Berry and Harrison streets at 7:30 o'clock. [illegible]

IRISH ATTACK U. S. SAILORS

Americans Set Upon in Cork as They Walk Streets With Ladies.

HOODLUMS VOICE SINN FEIN SONGS

Places Occupied by Americans Are Stormed, But Not Entered.

London, Sept. 4.—Attacks on American sailors on Sunday night are reported in a dispatch from Cork to the Chronicle. It is said that gangs of young men paraded the streets and set upon the Americans who were accompanied by their sweethearts.

One instance cited is that of two Americans who were attacked on the chief street of Cork, a young woman with them being insulted and having her hat torn off.

The correspondent reports that the sailors did nothing improper or contrary to good taste to invite the attack and as far as could be learned did not retaliate. They escaped on a tram car.

All the girls who suffered at the hands of the crowds, the dispatch says, belong to the respectable middle class.

An attempt was made at 11 p. m. to break into places where Americans are staying, the dispatch continues, but after a short siege the attackers departed. Several parties paraded the streets singing "Sinn Fein" songs and performing military evolutions.

Some windows were broken. One party raided the premises of an officer's training corps and stole 56 rifles, 30 revolvers and a number of swords, none of which had been recovered, the correspondent says, at the time of writing his dispatch, nor had any arrests been made.

He reports that he talked with several American sailors yesterday and they believed the affair was organized but were not aware of the reason. They said they had been well treated hitherto in Ireland.

Summary of the Day's War News

While the major operation of the Germans in the Riga district on the Russian front and the great Italian campaign for Trieste continue to furnish the chief developments of military interest the German authorities have caused a momentary diversion by directing a spectacular raid on the English coast, apparently directed at one of the principal British naval bases.

Whether British naval property suffered to any extent from the raid has not yet been made apparent. It is known, however, that airplanes engaged in the operation reached Chatham, the site of extensive military and naval establishments, thirty miles southeast of London, and that 107 men of the naval establishment were killed and 86 wounded.

All the six German machines participating in the raid appear to have escaped, although they were engaged by British air forces and anti-aircraft guns as they swept up the Thames estuary to Chatham.

The report of Lord French, commanding the British home forces covering all the ground except that under admiralty control, states that only slight damage was done. The casualties, he reports, are one civilian killed and six injured. The naval casualties were reported by the secretary of the admiralty and no mention

TO STIMULATE GOOD MUSIC IN AMERICAN ARMY

New York, Sept. 4.—In order to stimulate military music rather than to censor it, a standard song book to be used in all branches of the service will be issued Oct. 1, according to an announcement today by the executive committee for the standardization of music in the army and navy. The new book will contain songs suitable for singing in camp and at the front and will fit into the pockets of a khaki house. MERCHANTS OF BREMEN WROTH AND IN FROTH

Amsterdam, Sept. 4.—According to advices received here from Bremen, President Wilson's reply to Pope Benedict's peace proposals was the occasion of a demonstration on the bourse there yesterday. After a speech by Herr Fabrius, president of the chamber of commerce, it was resolved to send a message to the emperor, saying: "Bremen merchants raise an indignant protest against President Wilson's hypocritical reply to the pope in which he professes to combat the German government in order to drive the American people into war. Over many never had a quarrel, into a war which they reject." The president's note was called impudent and a brazen attempt to sow dissension between the government and the people in the German nation.

In his speech President Fabrius said no other enemy utterances had evolved such wrath in every German heart as President Wilson's note, in which the most sacred rights of the German nation were assailed.

A demonstration also was held on the Hamburg bourse, where equally [illegible]

Forty-nine boxes of cigars that had been stolen were unearthed by the Nickel Plate police department at West Leipsic Saturday. The police department has not yet been able to locate the owner of the cigars.

Chief Clerk F. G. Wyneken, of the piece work department of the Pennsylvanja, spent Sunday and Monday at Chicago. Mr. Wyneken was accompanied on the trip by his son, Chester, and daughter, Edna.

C. J. Blume, of the Pennsylvania car machine shop, is unable to work on account of a sore finger, and Mike Sullivan, of the same shop, has gone to Newark, N. J., on account of suffering with hay fever.

Chief Timekeeper A. F. Bullerman, of the Westinghouse-Church-Kerr & Co., has returned from a motor trip to Sandusky, O. Mr. Bullerman had some hard luck on his trip as he had five blowouts.

Miss Eula B. Davis resumed her duties as stenographer in the office of H. E. Crane, of the production department of the General Electric works, this morning. She was at Zanesville visiting relatives and friends two weeks.

Over $23,000 were distributed as the 10 per cent monthly bonus of General Electric works employes this morning. The next monthly bonus will be due next Saturday, but will not be distributed until a week or two later.

Fred Schulz resumed his duties in the General Electric works this morning, after an absence during which he visited his son, Clarence Schultz, at Camp Benjamin Harrison. Mr. Schulz also spent a day or two with friends in Indianapolis.

George Smith, who has charge of the light and power department of the General Electric works, has employed Frank N. Hurst, of Decatur, a switchboard operator. Mr. Hurst was formerly employed by the Decatur interurban line.

Miss Nora Hassert, stenographer for Foreman Loren Klingman, of the transformer department of the General Electric works, is in Decatur this week to spend a vacation with her relatives. The young lady is a niece of Factory Policeman William Hassert.

E. W. Watterman, of the production department office of the General Electric works, began a vacation this morning. He went to Decatur to join his wife and baby daughter, who have been there for the past two weeks, visiting her parents. Mr. Watterman will later make a trip to the lakes.

Charles A. Agster, for many years connected with the Wabash shops, in the capacity of machinist or foreman, but for two or three years on the retired list, called at the shops this morning to see the boys. He was gladly welcomed by those who knew him and there are many.

W. A. Stockbridge, electrical engineer in the office of General Motive Power Superintendent P. F. Smith, jr., of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburg, came here Saturday to join his family, who have been here with relatives for two weeks, and to spend a part of his vacation. Mr. Stockbridge was electrical engineer of the Northwest system before going to Pittsburg.

V. M. Grummond, a Nickel Plate brakeman, has secured patents on a signaling device that is expected to come into general use as soon as it can be put upon the market in sufficient number. It is designed particularly for automobiles, being a tail light which will indicate the intention of the operator to stop or turn either to the right or left. It will be the means, the inventor says, of reducing the collisions very materially.

Mr .and Mrs. F. E. Wilmore came down from Clear lake yesterday, where they spent a week, in order that their son, Paul, would be able to start his school work this morning. Mr. Wilmore left last night for Pittsburg and other cities in the east, where he will pass the latter half of the two weeks' vacation period allotted him. He is assistant road foreman of engines of the Pennsylvania. Mrs. Wilmore, on account of Paul, remained at home.

"We have a full house again," said a transformer engineer at the General Electric works, when asked if there "was anything new?" J. W. Patch and G. M. Wilson, who had been visiting the latter's parents at Frankfort, Ind., accompanied by their families, returned last night; F. T. Bryan has returned from a visit with his parents at Indianapolis, and H. C. Meeker has returned from Rome City, where he spent several days. All are transformer engineers.

SWITZERLAND ALOOF FROM PEACE MEETING

Will Not Send Delegates to Neutral Congress in Stockholm.

Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 4.—It is learned from a reliable source that Switzerland will not be officially represented at the proposed conference of neutral nations at Stockholm. The Swiss authorities believe, it is said, that since the entrance of America into the war, the voice of smaller nations will produce little effect on the belligerents and furthermore the Swiss consider the question of revictualling a private one to be arranged separately.

They are also of the opinion that when peace terms are discussed the Swiss interests will not be neglected. The Swiss minister at Berlin may attend the Stockholm conference in an unofficial capacity.

Swiss newspapers complain that since the recent arrival of Prince von Buelow at Berne pro-German propaganda in Switzerland has greatly intensified, the country being virtually inundated with pamphlets in several languages.

The daily newspaper, La Feuille, founded at Geneva with a free circulation of 30,000 copies, is being distributed throughout Switzerland and a large number of self-styled German journalists have arrived at the chief Swiss towns and German money is much in evidence.

"A Regiment of Two"
AT THE GRAND TOMORROW

No! These Society Men Were Not in Trenches--Just Fishing

CAST.

Mr. Wilton.....Sidney Drew
His Wife.....Rose Tapley
Laura.....Edith Storey
Harry Bennet.....Harry Morey
His Wife.....Anita Stewart
Jack Brent.....E. K. Lincoln
Lord Dudley.....Ralph Ince
Mrs. Wilton's Brother..Robert Gaillard

Two successful young business men convince their wives they have enlisted, thereby taking nights off whenever they feel like it—to drill, of course. They get away with the deception, although some of the perils they face at home are scarcely less harrowing than they would have encountered at the front. Just how they put it over and even enjoy a week's fishing trip when their regiment is supposed to be on the way "somewhere" is cleverly and mirthfully told in the Favorite Film Feature, "A Regiment of Two," which will appear at the Grand Theater.

Harry Bennet and his father-in-law Wilton, are abetted in their perfidious course by Jack Brent, in love with Wilton's daughter, Laura, and who really belongs to the "Fighting 13th." He coaches his elders how to salute, look fierce and do drill stunts about the drawing room whenever the women folks are looking or it is about time to make a get-away. Lord Dudley, also in love with Laura, but a bad loser from the start, is the butt of some clever comedy.

The real fun begins when Bennet and Wilton, togged out in uniforms of 1861 and 1775 back to 1492, with muskets and sidearms, bid their households a tearful farewell and march away with the regiment—as far as the first side street. Then arrive home from the faithful and prospective son-in-law, letters entrusted to him weeks before by the two precious patriots who are fishing "somewhere" in the state.

A show down has to come when the papers print a story of how the "Fighting 13th" is wiped out in a big battle. Bennet and Wilton are stumped for the first time and genuinely upset as to the fate of their own kin in the regiment. They hustle home in their battle togs expecting to be shot at sunrise and not caring much if they are. But it seems they can't lose. The "13th" wasn't wiped out after all. Brent swears they were the heroes of the battle, and takes Laura for so swearing, and their wives, in an ecstacy of patriotic pride, place them on a pedestal of domestic liberty no honest husband could ever dream of attaining.

THE LAST DAYS OF THE LATE CZAR NICHOLAS II. ON THE IMPERIAL THRONE OF ALL THE RUSSIANS

There is Nothing to Sob About, Says Charles E. Russell and Nothing at All Pathetic in the Passing from Grandeur and Power of the Romanoffs.

By CHARLES EDWARD RUSSELL.
(Copyright, 1917, by the Newspaper Enterprise Association.)

The czar, he has gone to Tobolsk—Tobolsk in Siberia. It is a good place for him to go to. Any place in Siberia that is not too luxurious would be a good place for him to go to and not return from.

The Russians are the least vindictive people in the world. Otherwise this czar person would not now be in Tobolsk, nor in any other spot visible to mortal eye.

There is, however, such a thing as justice without any mixture of revenge. To anybody that knows what the czar really was and what monstrous cruelties he stood for and seemed to enjoy, Tobolsk in Siberia seems pretty soft.

Instead of Tobolsk, where he has a pleasant old chateau to live in, a big dose of the Arctic would seem about right.

He sent thousands of men and women to taste of that living death. For the crime of believing in human freedom he condemned them to tortures infinitely beyond anything wild savages ever invented.

Hundreds of his victims went through this same Tobolsk. He went there in a sleeping car and they walked along the weary roads, prodded with bayonets by obscene and filthy guards. He went to live in a chateau and they went to dig in the mines and to live in underground dungeons, loaded with chains until they should rot. Not only men; women and young girls that were no more than children.

As he walks about the grounds of his chateau, Siberia must suggest many things to him. He must have some visions of the long lines of exiles plodding day after day through bleak wildernesses, of the burnings, whippings, outrages and brandings that were done in his name. If he has he must fall on his knees and thank God for his luck and the wonderful forgiving spirit of his countrymen.

The world is plagued with fakes. One of them is the notion, adroitly spread by press agencies, that this was a humane ruler. No one that knows his real record is under that delusion. If providence had not mercifully tempered his natural disposition with much cowardice, he would have been marked for all time as the most cruel of monarchs since Ivan the Terrible.

Some persons in this country express the fear that his removal (in a sleeping car) to Siberia will arouse sympathy for him among the Russian people and such sympathy may bring about a monarchical uprising and restoration.

No fear. When a thing is dead it is dead.

There isn't any sympathy for the czar in Russia. Except for a few gentlemen of his own taste in the causing of human suffering, (most of whom skipped over the border when the revolution broke), nobody in Russia gives a hang what becomes of him.

Well, but before the revolution, you say, the people used to call him the "Little Father" and all that kind of thing, looking upon him with superstitious awe as the earthly representative of deity.

Yes, they did—a generation ago—and before that. This generation had the old formulas on its lips and utter contempt in its heart.

On the very next Sunday after the outbreak of March 13, in every church in Russian the prayers for the czar and the imperial family were omitted. Nobody told the church to omit them. It dropped them instinctively and, I understand, joyously, as who should say, "Well, thank the Lord that bore is gone."

While I was in Petrograd there was running at one of the film theaters an extraordinary picture play on the last days of czarism in Russia. So far as I could discern it was not hostile, it was not friendly; it merely sought to depict things exactly as they were, including Rasputin.

It showed the abdication in the drawing room of the car with which we were so familiar, it showed the czarina as the neurotic she undoubtedly was, and it showed the czar a prisoner and weeping in his own palace.

I suppose you might say it was a pathetic figure. Many Englishmen, who, of course, regret the fall of monachy anywhere, assured me solemnly that the figure was very pathetic and I ought to be much moved by it. The czar went tottering about pulling his mustache (which was the very best thing he did), and evidently dazed by the events about him. Outside the revolutionary crowds marched by with the public and their bands played the once banners that proclaimed the new re- prohibited "Marseillaise." And he could think of nothing to do but pull his mustache and look perplexed.

He tried to walk out of doors and two sentries presented their bayonets at his breast. So he sighed and shook his poor head and pulled his mustache and toddled away upstairs and looked through the window curtains at the marching crowds in the streets.

It might have been as pathetic as Little Eva for all I know, but the point is, that to the crowds that looked at it the thing was not pathetic at all. Whenever I could I went to that play, and I interviewed others that went to it, and I never could discover that any Russians, at least, gave signs of any emotion except a quiet satisfaction.

Certain alien influences have tried hard to work up a lot of sympathy for fallen grandeur and all that. They will never get anywhere in Russia with it.

When the Russians are through with a thing they are through with it. They don't want it hanging around under another name.

You will find now installed in one of the most beautiful and imposing of the many vast palaces of Petrograd, the headquarters of the social revolutionist party, the most powerful and one of the most radical political parties of Russia. The gorgeous halls swarm with clerks, the priceless paintings look down upon long lines of what used to be called the rabble, the ball room resounds with the click of typewriters, where the vanished grand duke used to receive in state come now blacksmiths and farmers to confer about the Russia they rule.

You can accept that as a good example. That is your fallen grandeur and about all the appeal it makes to the common sense of the Russians.

Bitter is the pill, I know, O Cave Dweller. But I guess you will have to take it.

Granted only the defeat of German militarism in this war and your style of grandeur has fallen around the world and will never get on its two feet again.

But the other kind, which is real and consists of rule by the common people for the common good, that has come to stay for all time. And you can be sure it has.

Where Are the Members of the Russian Royal Family?

Czar, czarina, and their childre n are under guard in Tobolsk, Siberia.

Grand Duke Nicholas, deposed fro m his army command by the revolution, is at chair in the Crimea, writin g his memoirs and a monograph "Who was really responsible for the world war?"

Dowager Empress Marie is at Cap e Al-Todor in the Crimea, gardening; also Grand Duchess Olga, sister of the czar, and Grand Duke Michael, who was named as regent on the czar's ad dication, but was forced to renounce it by the provisional government.

The German widow of the Grand D uke Vladimir is kept under surveillance at her country place near Petrograd.

The members of the royal family who are not specifically under guard enjoy a large amount of freedom, but they are not permitted to travel without specific permission from the revolu tionary government. None of them is allowed to participate in the coming e lections for the constituent assembly, either as a voter or a candidate.

FIRST SWEETHEART WINS AGAINST WORLD

School Chum Holds Great Tenor's Heart in Spite of All Rivals.

(Staff Special.)

Seattle Wash., Sept. 4.—While hundreds of fascinating women in every large American city openly courted Theo Karle, grand opera tenor, Miss Nora Christoff merely sat back and waited.

Her's was the power of first love and old memories against the melting eyes, emotional plaudits and scented mash notes that came as tribute to Karle's remarkable voice.

First love won.

Scores of fair music patrons throughout the country are today nursing heart affliction as the result of Theo Karle's recently announced engagement to his first sweetheart, a Seattle girl.

Nora, with her honey-colored hair, swayed queenly rule in high school here when Karle started out to win fame as an operatic tenor. She could play the piano, was witty, gracious and popular. All the husky school heroes, and some that weren't exactly in the hero class, sighed for her. Karle was among them.

A few years ago he left for New York. Success came quickly. Masters raved over his voice. Producers fought to sign him. Beautiful women plied him with flattering attention. Life was a tenor song.

But he didn't run true to the usual fiction story program by breaking the heart of the girl he left behind him.

A few days ago Karle came home for a vacation—and announced his engagement to Nora of the honey-tinted hair.

He will have a new accompanist on his next grand tour.

Theo Karle.

STOMACH TROUBLE QUICKLY CURED

Said Chester Wellington, Popular Fort Wayne Salesman.

IRONATED HERBS TRULY "MODERN MEDICINE"

ADVISES FRIENDS.

"When my stomach began to trouble me I commenced taking all sorts of medicines, but without result. My pains increased and after some time I began to get nervous. So bad that it was difficult for me to get along with anyone. And then came sleeplessness. Hours and hours that I lay awake in bed without being able to fall asleep. Since taking Ironated Herbs, with Pepsin (in liquid form), my appetite has improved and I relish everything that I eat. I sleep better and I feel stronger. The gas on my stomach that caused me such intense suffering has entirely disappeared. I have more energy and feel in better health than I have in years."

That's what Mr. Chester Wellington, of this city, said to our demonstrator at Meyer Bros' Drug Store. "I gladly recommend this Modern Medicine to anyone who is run down in health and in poor and nervous condition and who is in need of thick, red blood."

Many others like Mr. Wellington, who is well known here and has a number of friends acquired as salesman for the National Mill Suppiy Co., have regained new health and strength through Ironated Herbs. A tired, dragging feeling of the body, sluggish mind and dull memory, intense nervousness, stomach and bowel troubles, poor circulation, imperfect digestion are some of the common symptoms of a run down condition from which many people suffer at this time of the year. Ironated Herbs, with Pepsin, is the remedy that relieves this trouble.

Our demonstrator will gladly explain to you its merits and supply you with a bottle at Meyer Bros.' Drug Store, 902 Calhoun street, Fort Wayne. It is also sold in all Meyer Bros.' other Fort Wayne stores; at Bluffton by Davenport & Ehley; Huntington, A. C. Beckstein; Roanoke, Hacket & Sons; New Haven, H. E. Daily Doings in South Wood Park

MANY SAW SOUTH WOOD PARK YESTERDAY

Labor Day offered an excellent opportunity for many to see South Wood Park for the first time. The beauty of the woods and the "lay" of the open portions won many to the place as an ideal spot to live. "No wonder," observed one woman, "that so many have chosen to build here. To see the place is to fall in love with it."

MANY ATTRACTIVE HOME SITES IN OPEN PORTIONS

While many of the reports of sales of property in South Wood Park have told of the selection of wooded lots, it should be remembered that in each of the three large sections of the subdivision there are open lots which permit of landscape and vegetable gardening to suit the individual taste of the purchaser. These, like all of the wooded lots, have the advantage of paving, parkways, sidewilks, ornamental boulevard lighting, sewers, gas and water, and where trees are needed in the parkway they will be supplied. Hilgeman & Schaaf are ready at all times to answer all inquiries concerning the development of the properties.

SOUTH WOOD PARK A VISION OF THE FUTURE

Many who visit South Wood Park and become thoroughly informed concerning the street plan and the complete line of improvements to be made have given expression to glowing pictures of the future. "Just think," said one, "what a wonderful place this will be five years from now!" "Yes," observed his friend, "and it will grow more beautiful and valuable with the passing of the years."

Vol. LXXXIV..... No. 304

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1917.

TO THE COLORS.

The first of the young men selected for the national army enter the federal service today. The proportion of them that now are summoned to the whole number selected is small, but as symbolizing the answer of young manhood to the call of the country for men to fight for freedom the spectacle afforded throughout the nation is impressive and significant and is invested with a sentiment and exhales a spirit that are good for all who in patriotism and loyalty are bound to the high and imperative cause of the republic.

As the days go on, more and more of the men selected for service will be summoned from their homes to enter the great cantonments where they are to be trained for the heroic tasks of the soldier. In due time they will be sent over seas to join the world's great armies of freedom and unite with them to put down the war and make an end of the threat that for three years has hung a dark and ever darkening cloud over the world's liberties. It is no life of softness and ease to which the American young men go away from their homes to enter. Their duties in the big training camps will be constant and severe—such duties as will make soldiers of them who can give good answer for their country's honor and security. Their services abroad will be just what the whole world knows today of life in the trenches and hard fighting on the battle fronts.

That these young men who go out for duty with the first great national army and the young men who from time to time go out for duty with other great national armies that the government must levy to perform its whole part in the war will make good soldiers and furnish heroic account of themselves under all circumstances and in the face of every foe cannot be doubted by any one who knows the history of his country in war. Americans are peace-loving and have no fondness for armed strife, but in all their wars they have shown that they are brave and stubborn fighters—as all men are who never fight except for their own liberties or the freedom of others. And of all America's wars there has been none in which liberty was not the stake, in which freedom was not the goal.

So go these young men to service under the flag to uphold their country's honor, to make its rights secure, to make the world safe for this democracy and all democracy. So go they, and with the prayers and tears of loved ones at home and with acclaim and the godspeed of one hundred millions of people who know that we are in this great task righteously and from no provocation or seeking of our own.

TIME HAS COME, INDEED.

In the course of his statement purposed to make clear his courses against the "peace council" just run out of Illinois and his policies toward future incitements to disloyalty, Governor Lowden, of that state, says:

> The time has come in Illinois and elsewhere to find out who are for the government and who are against it. This is the only classification which matters at the present time.
> If, as some suggest, the people generally are disloyal to their government, let us know it and let us know it now. So far as I am concerned I propose to put it to the test, and that test is that those who are not for the government are against it.
> In my judgment, we are staking all we are, or all we hope for our children, upon the issue of this war. We cannot expect to win unless the people generally are back of us. If they are not, all is lost. But let us know the worst and let us know it now.

We believe that all American citizens who are for their government and country in this critical period will agree with Governor Lowden that "the time has come to find out who are for the government and who are against it." The day went by some months since when the question of war or no war could be debated. We are in war and loyalty imposes upon all Americans the duty to sustain the government and do what each and all of us may find it possible to do to win the war. Those who are not for America and do not want the country to win in the war should be found out now and be known for what they are by the sentiments they cherish, by the sympathies they sustain and by the things that they do.

It does not matter in what guise treason goes about nor in what forms of speech or with what pretexts sedition articulates its hateful disloyalties. The thing is to determine fairly and to undoubting conclusions that what seems to be treason of a verity is treason and that has the sound of sedition is of truth sedition and then make an end of them whenever and wherever they can be brought up. Personal liberty is a great vouchsafement of democracy and freedom of speech one of the most precious of all our heritages, but neither of these can be made to embody any meaning of right to utter sedition, to practice or promote treason or to claim immunity for disloyalty to the country when its life is in peril and its men are going forth to war to fight for it.

There are a great many citizens of this country who are sincerely devoted to the principles and doctrines that are in a general way comprehended by the term "pacifism." Most of these are now not only silent as to their antipathies to war, but are earnestly, actively and usefully supporting the government to the utmost of ability and with loyalty that is above question. These are Americans first; doctrinaries afterward. The "peace council" that has been moving from state to state and city to city in recent days to find a place of refuge for its consultations may embrace in its association some persons who are "conscientious objectors" in whom there is no guile and some "pacifists" in whom are blended all the mildnesses and mercies of the All-Benign, but they are cursed with a generally bad company and financed, as the belief is, with hostile gold.

The "peace council" as a body is not moving with any idea whatever that its activities and its propaganda can have the least effect in abating this nation's purpose in the war or do the smallest service in hastening peace. The design is and the effect will be to hamper and embarrass the government. It is no secret whence the inspiration and the means to forward these purposes come. Collapsed, invaded and imperiled Russia casts a prophetic picture of what the United States will become as a factor in this war if the flocks of kaiserist mercenaries and aggressive sympathizers in this land can bring it about.

The government, burdened by the paramount duty of protecting the nation and winning the war cannot temporize long with the agencies and agents of disloyalty, sedition and treason. The enemies within are more to be feared than the enemies without. Of solemn truth, "the time has come," as Governor Lowden declares, "to find out who are for the government and who are against it."

NOT YET.

The peace doves that contrived to meet briefly in Chicago say they accomplished their purposes. Hardly, have they done that. A mere meeting, a bit of spouting, the adoption of resolutions and the election of officers was not the purpose of that difficult conclave. It remains to be seen if the people of the United States of America will stand for the real object of that meeting. If they will not, then there was no accomplishment in Chicago and will be no place else. If these obstructionists of the government in the war shall be able to withhold from the American armies now abroad and going abroad one ounce of food, one round of ammunition, one word of cheer, one degree of support of any kind; if they shall be able to delay by so much as an hour one American ship freighted with sustenance for our boys in Europe, or diminish by so much as a dollar the provisions of congress for the war or of the people for the Red Cross; if they shall be able to expose one American vessel to a German torpedo or in any way or in any wise add by so little as one life or one penny to our cost in the war, then the disloyalty of which they boast was accomplished. But that has not yet been; and the prayer is and must continue that it may never be.

And since the question is raised, we suggest that each soldier "standing on his own bottom," contemplates a difficult feat as well as a rather unmilitary attitude. It's the traditional and conventional thing for a tub, as everybody knows and will admit, but offers anatomical difficulties and compromises of dignity that forthright and upstanding American soldiers will not care to go in for.

It may take a few weeks to convince the coal barons here and there that congress was not doing an idle thing when it passed the food and fuel control laws and that the administration is not bluffing in its measures to enforce them. But they will be convinced.

Ah come, then, to me!

It sure is a pity
I love only thee!

To each will we be!

We Must Win This War to Escape Another

BY MILTON BRONNER.

"This agony must not be gone through with again," is the way President Wilson wrote of the war in his reply to Pope Benedict's peace proposal.

In other words, he meant that America is in a war against future wars.

He wrote advisedly, because he knew that while German agencies, taking advantage of the pope's proposals, were flying peace-kites, every thought of the ruling class of Germany and of the historians and publicists and leading journalists is already being given to "the next war," in which they are going to remedy the mistakes they made in the present one and win the fruits of which they have been balked by the present coalition against them.

The frankness with which this purpose is avowed is astonishing. There is no attempt at concealments.

Not only do responsible men frankly give their reasons for holding on to Belgium and parts of Russia, but they dream of a great empire in Africa and outposts in the Pacific, so that it will never again be possible to pen up their fleets in the harbors of Germany proper.

James W. Gerard, late ambassador to Germany, has recently related how the kaiser showed great bitterness against this country, and repeatedly said: "America better look out after this war," and "I shall stand no nonsense from America after the war."

About the same time, Admiral von Tirpitz, originator of German frightfulness with submarines, was quoted in the Frankfurt Zeitung as saying that the subs would force Great Britain to surrender and that the German fleet would then exact from America indemnities enough to pay the whole cost of the war.

In Germany it is a case of like father, like son. Not long before the war began, the crown prince expressed the following savage sentiment:

"Only by our own good sword can we get our place in the sun. War is a part of the divine order of things. How easily it might come about that Germany should go under in a cosmopolitanism if we ever lose sight of the fact that war is necessary for the race, society and the state."

General von Bissing, who as governor general of Belgium was responsible for much Prussian deviltry there, left a memorandum which cynically avows the purpose to have another war. Said he:

"The strategic aim of this present war is to gain room for the concentration and advance of the German armies in the new war against England and France.

"Without the possession of Belgium it is doubtful if the new war could be prosecuted on an offensive basis.

"German interests absolutely require the absorption of all present Belgium. This absorption must not be discussed at any peace conference. Let only the right of conquest speak. Belgium industry must not be killed entirely, but is to be subjected to such conditions as will permit Germany to use it as a lever for fixing prices in the world markets in German interests. Belgium's coal supply must be used to give Germany an economic monopoly on the continent."

Lieutenant General von Stein, Prussian minister of war, with a glance at our growing army, said not long ago in the reichstag:

"I do not foster the hope that international peace will prevail after the war. So long as the interests of states clash there will be wars. The prospects for uninterrupted peace are not very brilliant when two great nations (America and Great Britain) which previously did not think of maintaining big armies, are beginning to create them."

Count zu Reventlow, one of the leading military critics of Germany, in a recent address at an annexation meeting, said:

"Before the war we had freedom of the seas in a certain sense. But what we mean by freedom of the seas is not mere peace-time freedom for trade in all seas. What we need and must have is such a degree of German naval power as shall guarantee its immediate superiority over possible enemies on the seas at the beginning of hostilities. That is why the Belgian coast is necessary to us."

Dr. Diederich Hahn, leader of the agrarian junker party and member of the reichstag, recently said in a speech:

"Has monarchial Germany failed? No. It stands brilliantly before the world as a conqueror. We are today in the sight of peace. May it be a real German peace. We hope those who govern us will realize our strength, will keep their nerve, and continue to face the enemy as conquerors, not as cowards. Let us keep to Bismarck's policy; Germany's future is a future of battle and conquest. We must have fresh territories for emigration in the east. We must not return any lands we have conquered."

This was echoed by Paul Fuhrmann, member of the reichstag and leader of the National Liberal party, in a speech at Potsdam in which he argued in favor of annexation of Courland and Lithuania in the east; annexation, with political, military and economic control, of Belgium, and retention of the line of the Meuse, as affording a vantage ground for a future attack on France.

Count Westarp, one of the conservative leaders, speaking in the reichstag, said: "We must also secure ourselves for the future. New sacrifices require new compensations, new demands. A sufficient war indemnity is necessary to arm against the dangers of the future."

Gen. Groener, head of the war bureau of the Prussian ministry of war, recently glorified the mailed fist while talking to representatives of the iron industries at Duesseldorf:

"You are providing the fist with its mail of steel May it be granted to you and the whole German industry, not only now and until the end of the war, but until the most distant future, to provide the German people with what it needs in order to be able to defend itself. Give the German fist its mail, so that the mailed fist can always strike hard."

Dr. Hugo Groening in an article in the important Weimar Zeitung, advocated the permanent retention of all conquered territory, and as much more as may be necessary to safeguard Germany's future. He expressed the opinion it would be worse than high treason for the rulers of Germany to deviate from the policy considered necessary by Hindenburg, Luedendorff and Bissing for strategical purposes.

Seventy-eight leading professors of Bonn university, from which the kaiser and the crown prince were graduated, recently signed a manifesto setting forth that as the kaiser's peace offer had been rejected, the hope was firm that when the ruler came to sign a peace with the conquered allies, he would see to it that justice was done to the geographical and military necessities of Germany.

Friedrich Naumann, German journalist, in "Mittel-Europa," has nothing but sneers for the peace idea. Says he:

"The moment the present war comes to an end, preparation will have to begin for the next war, not only by armaments, but also by the storage of grain and raw materials on a scale hitherto undreamed of. The system of fortified trenches will become a permanent institution.

There will come into existence a new system of Roman and Chinese walls, made of earth and barbed wire. One of them will stretch from the lower Rhine to the Alps, another from Courland to either the right or left of Rumania."

The Germans recognize that one of their weaknesses in the beginning of the present war was that they did not have coaling stations and ports of any size in the Pacific or on the West African coast, and that they did not have swift cruisers, commerce destroyers, scattered around. In the next war they want to be prepared to harass both English and American commerce. Therefore, publicists insist, Germany must not allow herself to be shorn of any colonial possessions. For instance, the explorer and diplomat, Prof. Paul Preuss, writing in the Hamburg Nachrichten, says:

"In the far east, in the Pacific ocean, we have for three decades possessed a rising little colonial empire, and it would be an unforgivable and irreparable mistake to withdraw from the Pacific merely because the great settlement of interests has begun among three great powers—Japan, North America and England-Australia—and because we shall have to fear that at some later date we should come into conflict with those powers."

Germans are also allowing themselves to be intrigued by grandiose dreams of a vast African empire.

So far few have spoken of taking territory in South America, because they do not wish to alienate great neutrals like Argentina and Chile, but the threat to the western hemisphere is plain in their vision of a German Africa supplying raw materials, food, munitions, fighting black men and safe harbors for ships in a contest between Germany and any other nation.

Franz Kolbe, in "Deutche Politik," calmly assumes that not only will all the German African colonies be retained, but that, in addition, the Belgian Congo, French equatorial Africa and Portuguese Angola will be taken.

These possessions will not only have adequate garrisons, but also munition factories. Germany will have naval bases at Dar-es-Salaam, the mouth of the Cameroon estuary, the mouth of the Congo, on the coast of Angola and on the coast of southwest Africa.

Explaining the beauties of this, Kolbe writes:

"As soon as in a new war the Suez canal is closed against England by the Turks, all traffic between England and India, Australia and South Africa must go round the Cape of Good Hope. But all the ships must pass the coast of German Central Africa. It would be impossible for England any longer to concentrate her whole fleet in the North sea and to menace Germany. She would be compelled to station a considerable fleet in South Africa for the protection of her trade."

Prof. Hans Delbrueck, historian, writing in the sober "Preussische Jahrbuecher," is as enthusiastic as Kolbe. He says:

"All these territories together have over 100,000,000 inhabitants. United in a single ownership and with their various characteristics suplementing one another, they offer simply immeasurable prospects. They are rich in possibilities of settlement and trade and rich in men who can work and also be used in war."

That the present peace proposals are deceptive is recognized by Prof. Foerster, who, writing in the New Zurich Zeitung, says of the annexationists:

"They advance these demands as strategic necessities, they demand securities for Germany without the slightest regard for the state of Europe which these securities would create.

"They are thus declaring themselves in favor of the continuance of the state of armed peace as it has hitherto existed; that is to say, for the permanent menace of war. And the peace which they propose would in reality be nothing but a truce.

"This sort of peace is precisely the kind that the whole world now arrayed against Germany rejects with desperate determination."

Many quotations concerning big indemnities could be given, but this one is typical of them all, and holds out a pleasant prospect for the United States if Germany is winner. It is from the influential and semi-official Cologne Volkszeitung:

"We are entitled to a thumping war indemnity and we do not care who pays it.

"Those states which have sacrificed immense sums will be unable to pay it.

"Therefore, America, which has earned thousands of millions through ammunitions and supplies, will have to unbutton its pockets."

President Wilson, in his note to the pope, says the civilized nations cannot accept the word of Germany's rulers, because they have no respect for treaties or covenants. He might have gone further and said that this was a German failing. The semi-official Taegliche Rundschau of Berlin, quoting the proverb, "Hold tight to what you have and take what you can get," goes on:

"These words embrace the whole peace program of the German people. It is precisely because German overseas work will have to reckon after the war with a steel wall of hatred and with the barbed wire of impassible import and export duties, that the need of German colonial possessions will be the more urgently felt, so that in no circumstances may the colonial idea be allowed to emerge in any degree weakened from this war.

"In the overseas world the German nation must stand on its own independent bottom.

"Therefore, immediately peace is concluded, the German authorities without troubling themselves about agreements and conventions, when these are found to hamper the national requirements, must devote themselves wholeheartedly to the policy of take."

To this the powerful Hamburg Fremdenblatt agrees, but says:

"First of all, however, we must assure our preponderance in Europe. That accomplished, we shall urge our authorities to establish by any and every means within their power and without the slightest regard or consideration for anybody, our dominion over the seas."

We who must serve in routine ways at home
Are somehow envious of you who go
To fit yourselves for war against the foe
Who challenge the world across the foam;

For yours is high adventure, you will face
Great moments; you will dare the rumbling guns,
Amid the roar tumultuous that stuns,
While men lock arms in murderous embrace.

You will know war's tremendous heights of glory,
You will know war's stupendous depths of pain,
You will take part in all the rack and strain
Of earth's remaking—you will LIVE the story

That we shall only READ. And while we fret
At humdrum tasks that have no thrill at all,
You who have answered to the nation's call
Will do great deeds that men shall not forget.

You will fight nobly, all your hearts afire
With battle's exaltation flaming high,
And if grim fate decrees that you must die
You will have known the death brave men desire.

So we who serve in mine and farm and mart
Wish you "godspeed" and envy you your part

SOCIETY

About two dozen young women seated themselves at the beautifully appointed tables at a luncheon given by Miss Marie Landenberger today, following a morning spent in knitting, games and visiting, just as any guest felt like doing. There were three honor guests for whom Miss Landenberger entertained at her home in Meyer avenue. Mrs. Clifford Bornschein, Mrs. Maurice O'Connor, Miss Mildred Bowser and quite naturally the gods of love and marriage gazed upon the scene with considerable satisfaction and perked up their ears to listen to a hint of a future consummation of nuptial joy. Miss Landenberger had made exceedingly lovely plans and expressed them in yellow coloring, from the deep orange of marigolds and golden glow through the orange reds of coreopsis and nasturtiums with pale yellow nut baskets and daintily designed place cards, also in yellow tints. The affair was exceedingly charming in every way.

An unique pre-nuptial party was given on Saturday evening by Mrs. L. A. Dilling, of Weisser Park avenue, in honor of Miss Maude Cramer, who is to be married in September. It was a shower party of linen gifts, but the arrangement was a great surprise to all of the company and for a warm evening was particularly refreshing as it was a snow shower. The guests were asked to the diningroom and the table appeared to be heaped with snow while puffs of snow and icycles hung from or lay about the electrolier and other places, looking so realistic that everyone actually shivered. But the digging of the gifts from the "snow-drift" was Miss Cramer's task and when she took the toy shovel which her hostess handed to her and began to dig it was fun but not rapid, so the company had many a laugh before the pretty things were brought to light. In another room afterwards Mrs Dilling served an ice and frosting—on cake. There were twenty young girls present. A patriotic feature of the evening, which was by no means the least important, was the entrance of the Goddess of Liberty and Uncle Sam, who sang "Hurrah for Uncle Sam" and afterwards an original song written by Mrs. Dilling. The children were Roma Diehl and Ruth Young.

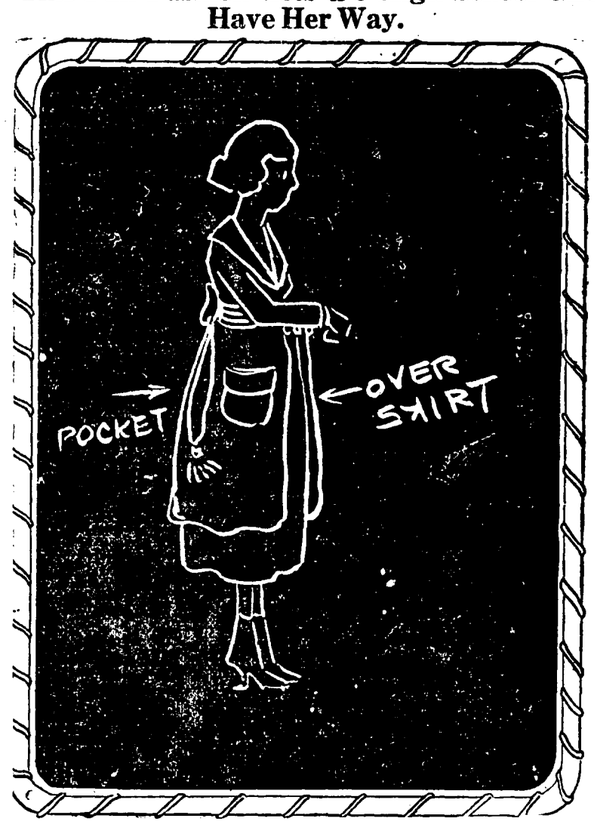
E. Freeman, of Detroit, Mich., were married. Rev. U. S. A. Bridge, pastor of Simpson M. E. church, officiated at the ceremony at 10:30 o'clock. Palms and jardinieres of pink and white gladioli and hydrangea blossoms decorated the parlor where the marriage service was read. Immediate relatives and a very few friends were present. The bride wore her traveling costume, a dark blue gabardine with white georgette crepe blouse, and when later she left on her trip she donned her jacket and a new fall hat of black beaver with blue feather trimming and a corsage of bride roses. A wedding breakfast was served after the bride and groom had received the congratulations of the company. The table was decorated with pink and white snapdragon blossoms. A FALL FASHION SLATE FOR THE LITTLE ONES

This Fall Fashion Lets the High School Girl Have Her Way.



BY BETTY BROWN.

Rather fussy clothes are dear to the heart of a certain type of high school girl. This year fashion humors her by sketching a dress with an overskirt, and a sash, and huge pockets as well.

She can do her hair in a bun at the back of her head, if she likes, but the French heels which she loves are not always obtainable when a sensible mother is the censor.

AT THE PALACE

GEO. DAMEREL'S "TEMPTATION."

Clever Little Fantasy With Girls at the New Palace.

The clever little fantasy all dressed up with a bouquet of American beauties, "Temptation" is being presented by George Damerel with Bobby Vail in the absurdly funny role of the sophisticated cabby. The little sketch is filled to the brim with catchy singing and dancing numbers while the lines are witty to a degree. It deals with the devil's attempt to get a blase New York youth to succumb to a worldly woman only to have him spurn her for the exotic blandishments of a mermaid.

The Quixie Quintette of jazzbo instrumentalists and close harmonists provide some unique music as a closing number of this holiday bill. Among the others on it are the DeBrough Sisters in their foolish Frenchy tricks and illusions; some of them new and some of them just dresed up but al of them done in a brand new way; Ed and Jack Smith, two suave polished boys in songs, dances and chatter; Dock O'Neill, the nut monologuist, and Cooper and Anderson, a couple of joyful dark spots in laughable banter and song.

DO YOU EXPECT TO BE A MILITARY BRIDE? READ THE LATEST ABOUT MILITARY WEDDINGS

Lieutenant Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor and Bridesmaid.

(By WINONA WILCOX.)
(Staff Special.)

Chicago, Sept. 3.—The military wedding holds the attention of every September bride. The smartest society war wedding of the fall took place at Lasalle, Ill., when Lieutenant Wayne Chatfield-Taylor married Miss Adele Blow. The wedding was at noon under the towering trees of Deer Park, the magnificent estate of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Preston Blow.

War-brides-to-be will like to know that fashion in war weddings, as set by society people, decrees the usual conventoinal wedding gown for the bride, and filmy colored dresses for her maids.

But the groom always appears in his uniform, no matter what the hour of the wedding may be. And if any of the ushers are army men, there is a mixture of service uniforms with formal civilian dress.

Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor wore a gown of cream charmeuse made in long princess lines, with a square cut neck, long tulle sleeves, a tunic front and back of rare old rose point lace, a girdle of pearls, and a court train falling from the shoulders and embroidered in silk. The veil was bound closely above the brow with a delicate wreath of orange blossoms.

Her bridesmaids made a gorgeous setting fo rthe bride, in frocks of deep apricot colored organdie, and large cream tulle hats tied with streamers of vivid blue tulle ribbon. They carried bouquets of field flowers.

Among informal items of the most fashionable war weddings is the appearance of the family's favorite dog, in this case a magnificent setter.

PROCEEDS OF SOCIAL TO HELP SOLDIERS

In order to assist the local chapter of the W. C. T. U., which is making comfort bags for all Fort Wayne and Allen county soldiers. the Anthony Wayne lodge of the Modern Americans will give a social at Swinney park Wednesday evening.

AFRICAN COMRADE SAYS SLEEPING SICKNESS MADE SIR ROGER CASEMENT PLAY THE TRAITOR

Famous Missionary Says That Jungle Poison Caused Mental Lapse Which Made Sir Roger Easy Prey for German Intrigue.

(By MARK LARKIN.)
(Staff Correspondence.)

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 4.—Did the fatal sleeping sickness of Africa make Sir Roger Casement a traitor to England?

Rev. Joseph Clark, famous missionary and once Casement's close friend in the Congo jungle, claims that it did. Had it not been for the bites of Tse-Tse flies, Clark claims, Sir Roger would never have been hung in the Tower of London.

The Tse-Tse fly is the terror of the Congo.

It is the carrier of the dread sleeping sickness. And Roger Casement had been bitten countless times by these deadly insects when he was investigating the "rubber reign" atrocities in the Congo Free State.

These atrocities are now a matter of history. Black slew black, or burned him, cut off his hands, ears, legs and arms, or gouged out his eyes—all because King Leopold II of Belgium wanted rubber which the natives could not produce fast enough. It was Roger Casement's report on conditions that settled the matter in the mind of the British—and which brought about the end of this reign of terror in the jungle.

"He came to Africa first as the representative of a commercial company," said the Reverend Clark. "With Herbert Ward, another Britisher, he had charge of the shipping of heavy machinery from Matadi to Stanley Pool. This, of course, was before the railroad. It was indeed arduous work, the transporting of machinery at that time. He often visited my station, and we came to be good friends.

"I never knew a man more loyal to Britain in those days than he. He was a great lover of animals; I'll never forget the day my goat beat his dog.

"His first official position was at old Calabar, headquarters of the British administration in the Southern Nigeria colony. He was head of the postal department there. Later he was appointed consul to the Congo Free State, and it was then that he turned in his memorable report of conditions under King Leopold's rule.

"He was located at Boma, on the Congo, sixty miles from the coast. His excursions into the deep interior brought him the Tse-Tse bites which later changed his character. During his long journeys he was many days in districts badly infested with sleeping sickness and the dangerous purveyors of it. He was bitten hundreds of times—and thought no more of it than a person ordinarily thinks of a mosquito bite. Nevertheless he was inoculated at that time with the disease.

"In those days Casement was not a knight. He was just Roger Casement. Knighthood came after he had investigated other labor atrocities in the South American rubber forests."

Contrary to common belief, according to Clark, a person affected with sleeping sickness may not show symptoms of the disease until years afterward. And those affected do not always develop the queer sleepiness that gives this peculiar malady its name. Sometimes they become victims of insomnia, often followed by a homicidal mania which leads to death. But in any form sleeping sickness is almost always fatal.

"French medical experts, who have made a close study of the disease," says the famous missionary, "claim that one of its first symptoms is change of character in the victim. The other developments come on gradually."

"Knowing Sir Roger Casement as I did, I am convinced that he was in the first stages of sleeping sickness when he was tried and subsequently executed. About five years ago he wrote me that he had severed connection with the British government. And when he went to Germany to raise a rebellious Irish regiment in the prison camps there, he was not, as many people think, associated with the English. His absolute change of character, manifested in his actions, was a symptom of the disease he contracted in Africa. Else he would never have gone on that fatal trip to the Irish coast in a German submarine. Roger Casement was not a traitor; he was sick and the Germans made a tool of him."

"If casement had the third stage, or Sleeping Sickness symptoms it is quite possible that it did affect his mental and moral condition. However, from what I have heard of his activities I would doubt that he was suffering from the fatal third stage.

"But even had he been afflicted with the first stages of the sickness it might account for his peculiar mental state.

* * * * * * * * * * *

"There are three stages in this baffling malady. The victim can recover from the first two, where the parasite deposited by the TseTse fly is only in the blood, but the third stage where the parasite has reached the spinal cord and the brain has been affected is always fatal within a short time.

"The symptoms are tremors of hand and tongue, fever, skin eruptions, anaemia and general weakness.

"The first stages are seldom outwardly manifest, so that the victim may not know he is suffering from the malady."—Dr. Herbert Gunn, of San Francisco, foremost authority on Tse-Tse fly and Sleeping Sickness.

Warren Smitley Gets in Way of Speeding Auto—One Injured.

New Haven, Ind., Sept. 4.—M. V. Mumma and a man giving his name as Giddeon, driving a large touring car with a Missouri license tag, crashed into a car driven by Warren Smitley, of Fort Wayne, one mile west of New Haven on the Lincoln highway at 4:55 o'clock Monday afternoon throwing the Smitley car against a telephone pole and badly damaging both cars. Fortunately but one of the occupants was injured, Mr. Mumma receiving a number of cuts about the hands and knees, requiring the services of a physician. Both cars met at the intersection of the Lincoln highway and the Hartzell road, where the point of view is entirely shut off at this point by a large number of trees. It is said the Missouri car was traveling at a rapid rate of speed and could not be stopped by the driver as he saw Mr. Smitley approach the highway, who, it is said, was traveling slowly

FIREMEN'S PICNIC SUCCESS.

Auto Chemical Delayed on Account of Government Work.

Although the city firemen were greatly disappointed on account of the auto chemical truck having failed to arrive due to the fact that government work had caused the order of the New Haven truck to be laid aside for a short time, the picnic given in Wabash park Monday was a huge success, and the firemen and Citizens' band are to be complimented on their entertaining program given. Mr. Urbine was very entertaining in his numerous tricks and should be given credit for the services he rendered in such a good cause.

Miss Martha Werling was the lucky contestant in winning the handsome gold wrist watch in the popular girls contest and also receives the honor of christening the new chemical truck upon its arrival, which is expected this week. Miss Helen Girardot was a close second, having won the handsome lavellier, and Miss Delrois Schuckman was third.

SERBIAN GIRLS ARE STOLEN FOR HAREMS

Ten Thousand of Them Kidnaped and Carried to Constantinople.

London, Aug. 15.—Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Ten thousand Serbian girls from 10 to 14 years old have been kidnaped and deported from Serbia to the harems of Constantinople, to Bulgaria and Asia Minor, says advices received by M. Paitch, the Serbian premier, who is now in London.

"These deportations," said M. Pasitch, "have been going on since February, 1916, but the number was very limited until a few weeks ago. Now it has been systematized under Bulgarian controllers, and it is impossible to predict how far it will go.

"Eight thousand girls have been sent to Constantinople, and two thousand more to Bulgaria and Asia Minor. Prisoners whom we have taken on the Salonika front tell us that the traffic in our girlhood has grown to be a byword in Bulgaria and Turkey.

"The girls are kidnaped and taken away secretly, particularly from the smaller villages, until at present dozens of small towns have been quite denuded of the young female population.

"I do not think that the Turks are the actual instigators of this gross violation of the rules of civilized warfare. All our information indicates that the Bulgarians are the prime movers and the Turks only incidental beneficiaries of the traffic.

"The girls are too young to be of any use for laboring purposes, besides, neither Turkey nor Bulgaria is seriously handicapped for labor, and in Turkey the use of young women for outdoor work is practically unknown.

"It is very difficult for us to do anything to help these unfortunate victims. Our affairs in Constantinople and Sofia are now in the hands of the Dutch government, and we have made the most earnest possible protests through that government. But you know how difficult it is to get any action from Turkey. We have suggested, for instance, that some scheme of repatriation be put into effect immediately, that the girls should be sent back to some place beyond the war zone. But I fear it is too late to save them, and that we can only wait in patience until peace comes."

OH MAN! YOU CAN BUY REAL OYSTERS

No More Buckets of Sea Water, Orders State Food Officer.

Oysters will be oysters in the future and in the grocer's dipper, according to the latest order from H. E. Barnard, head of the state food commission. A message to B. C. Tolan, city sealer, Tuesday morning, ordered the city officer to warn oyster dealers of Fort Wayne that in the future the genus ostrea will be sold by dry weight.

Water cannot be placed in buckets of the sea food in the future, Barnard writes. He claims to have the hearty co-operation of the Oyster Dealers' Association of North America in his effort.

"Instruct all oyster dealers that they must sell by dry measure in the future and that oysters must be without water. Take all liquid measures and if any dealer uses them after being warned, prosecute him for the offense," orders Barnard.

City Sealer Tolan will take up his task of notifying oyster dealers of the city of the change in the oyster sale system, later in the week. There will be much loss to grocers and others who have purchased a large supply of liquid measures for selling the oysters.

WORD TO MOVE NOT RECEIVED

Orders from Central Department Not Yet Here.

LOCAL COMPANIES READY TO LEAVE

Notice is Expected With Vouchers for Troop Transportation.

Although orders had been given to the central department for the mobilization of the First Indiana regiment, of which Company E, infantry, and Company B, signal corps, are members, no word had been received by officers in charge of the two companies to leave at 2 o'clock Tuesday. Members of both companies are anxiously expecting the call and practically everything is in readiness for their departure. Company B received notice to be ready to move within forty-eight hours one day last week, but since that time have received no further orders.

Captain McAdams, of Company E, said that he had received no orders to leave and that although it was no doubt true that the orders had been given to the central department, it was probable that official word had been mailed here instead of being telegraphed. This course might have been followed, he said, inasmuch as the local company would have to await receipt of transportation vouchers, and it is expected that the notice of departure will be accompanied by the transportation vouchers.

It was thought possible that orders to move might come late Tuesday, but not regarded probable before Wednesday.

ONE MORE YEAR

And War With Germany Will Be Over Says Sergeant Seretto.

Sergeant Edward Seretto, of the Twenty-third battery of the Eighty-fifth artillery of the French army, who is a patient at the Hope hospital, predicts that the world war will not be over until next September.

"The Germans fight a losing fight and know it," he says. "The old spirit of their men who considered themselves invincible when they overwhelmed Belgium on the road to Paris, is broken. They fight on because they must, but the German soldiers are surrendering in ever increasing numbers, something that was unknown in the early days of the war. Now with America in, there can be but one conclusion."

Sergeant Seretto sailed from England three weeks ago. He reached New York in safety and started across the continent to see his wife and little daughter whom he left in San Francisco two years ago when he went back to serve France against her enemies. He collapsed on a westbound Pennsylvania train and a fellow traveler, who knew Fred J. Thieme, of this city, wired the circumstances to his friend here and arrangements were made to have him stop off here for medical treatment. He had been at the hospital for several days and having regained his strength left Monday to continue his journey to San Francisco. He claims that the reported atrocities committed by the Germans have not been exaggerated.

DISCHARGED MEN

Are Given the Right to Volunteer in the United States Army.

Maj. Thomas Ryan, in charge of the Fort Wayne recruiting station, which includes practically all of northern Indiana, has received information from Washington, D C., to the effect that men who have been discharged or exempted for any reason by the district selective boards have the right to volunteer. Any person, however, attempting to enlist who has not been discharged or exempted by the selection board will be subject to arrest. Major Ryan states that a number of men who have not been exempted have tried to enlist and some have gotten by the local office only to be apprehended later. Fifteen men enlisted for service on Labor day.

SUPPLY COMPANIES

Are Being Organized for the New National Army.

Eight supply companies are now being organized for the national armies, Maj. Thomas Ryan, of the Fort Wayne recruiting station, announces. Members of these companies will be engaged principally as checkers along the line of communication from the main base up to the advance base way back of the firing line. The eight supply companies are being formed for service in France and the service will be absolutely non-combatant.

Recruits are also wanted for twenty-three remount depots that will be established in different parts of the United States. Blacksmiths, horseshoers, stenographers, clerks and men without any experience or trade whatever are wanted. The men sent to these depots will probably not be sent to France. Major Ryan says that here is a splendid opportunity for those who are members of religious organizations opposed to war

Stephen A. Ross and Boyd Lipsett, two other Fort Wayne representatives in the aviation training camp, will remain at Columbus until the training is completed.

Now in France.

Relatives have received word from Louis W. Wehrle, of this city, who is in France as a member of the quartermaster's corps of the expeditionary force with General Pershing. Wehrle is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor E. Wehrle, 2815 Lafayette street.

COUNTY LEVY WILL BE INCREASED FOUR CENTS

Annual Session of Council Convened at Court House Tuesday Morning.

The county levy for the ensuing year will be increased 3 or 4 cents, according to early estimates made Tuesday at the regular session of the county council. The levy last year was $3.04 on each $100, but because of increased cost of practically everything the levy for 1918 will probably be $3.08. There seems to be no other way out of it in order to meet the expenses for the coming twelve months.

The council went into session about 11 o'clock Tuesday morning and will not complete its duties before Thursday. Because of illness Byron Hattersley and Noah Amstutz, two members of the board, were unable to be in attendance. Amstutz expects to attend on Wednesday.

Kiefer was killed last April when overcome by ammonia fumes while in the employ of the Berghoff company. The agreement has been approved by the state industrial board.

TELLS OF GROWTH OF LINCOLN LIFE

Arthur F. Hall Talks at Weekly Meeting of the Kiwanis Club.

That the Lincoln Life Insurance company is one of the greatest advertising agencies for Fort Wayne in the city was very forcefully brought out in an address delivered at noon Tuesday at the regular weekly luncheon and meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Anthony hotel, by Arthur F. Hall, vice president and general manager of the company.

The company has five hundred agents scattred throughout the country and in excess of $6,000 comes to Fort Wayne every day through the Lincoln Life, ninety per cent of which from outside of the city.

Mr. Hall declared that the Lincoln Life during the past year had written one-third of the insurance of the total written by the seventeen Indiana companies and stood twenty-fifth among the three hundred companies throughout the country. He predicted that by 1920 the Lincoln Life would be the biggest enterprise in northern Indiana.

Howard Benninghoff, president of the company, presented Frank Gilmartin, of the Gilmartin Lumber company, who presided.

LOVING CUP TO THE SUCCESSFUL GUESSER

Elks Are to Guess on Number in Attendance at Picnic Next Sunday.

The Elk who is lucky enough to guess nearest the number that will attend the Elks' "Pic of Picnics" at the Elks' Country club next Sunday will be given a beautiful loving cup now on display at Trenkley & Koerber. The picnic in July had an attendance of 866. It was largely on account of the number who attended at that time what was pronounced one of the very best picnics ever given by the Elks' lodge, that the "Pic of Picnics" will be given on Sunday.

A very interesting story is connected with the title "Pic of Picnics" given the coming picnic. On the day of the July picnic everything was moving so smoothly and everybody was so happy that Captain William F. Ranke said to Charles Spanley, general chairman of the picnic: "Well, Charlie, this is really the grandest picnic the Elks ever had. While I would like to think so I do not believe it can be done just this way again. The weather, the fellows' dispositions, everything seemed ideal, something hard to duplicate, rather difficult to get just that combination again." Spanley came back with abang: "Do you know we never really had a chance to give our best at this picnic. Our time was too short, the club grounds not quite ready. My, how I wish that we could have pulled this off in September when all the members will be back from their vacations and the grounds in shape to accommodate a crowd as it will be then. Why, our cimmittee would give you the 'Pic of Picnics.'" The fervor and optimism of the chairman was such and the wish of the Elks so general for another picnic that the stake was set to give Chairman Spanley his chance to present the great out-door production, the "Pic of Picnics," on Sunday.

While committees are working hard to make the Elks' "Pic of Picnics" at the Elks' Country club next Sunday a big success, no Elks' picnic, in fact, no worth while enterprise is really a success unless there is a first class booster committee, or some group of men maybe known by some other name with energy and ideas to put it across. A booster committee has to boost not merely vocally but in a more substantial way. It has to develop the various features of the project it is handling then boost with all its might by whipping every angle of its plan into shape.

So during the next few days when you see S. A. Callahan, Harry Hilgeman, Dr. Guy Emerick, J. C. Hutzell, Guy Colerick, Frank Emrick, D. C. Stout, Cooney Bayer, Maurice Niezer, Harry Hattersley and John E. O'Connor, whether they appear gay and happy or have dull care written on their browsyou will know they are boosting for the Elks' picnic, Sunday, September 9th at the Elks' Country club. Boosting you will learn if you watch these men and their results is more than giving boisterous rah rahs. "Booster" is a big and meaningful word. The Elks' booster committee is leaving nothing undone to demonstrate just how powerful the word it.

REGISTRATION OF BOYS TO BE RESUMED

Work Will Be Taken Up Again on Wednesday and Thursday Evenings.

Another registration for boys who did not register the last time will be held on Wednesday and Thursday evenings at the Hanna, Hoagland, Harmar and Jefferson schools. Boys who enrolled last time and who have not returned their cards are asked to do so on these two nights.

A. L. McDonald, in charge of the registration in Fort Wayne, has received a copy of a letter Isaac D. Straus, federal state director, has written to Professor C. W. Boucher, at Valparaiso, which follows:

"Registration enables us to get a proper survey of man-power represented by the boys 16 to 20. However, no boy is considered a member of the reserve nor is he entitled to 'federal award' until he enrolls. There is no valid reason or objection that any parent, boy, uncle, aunt or cousin, could make to enrollment, inasmuch as this organization is strictly a reserve of man-power for industries and farms, and the purpose of the enrollment is to see that no boys are idle.

WARM PRAISE FOR PRESIDENT'S NOTE

Socialist Member of Danish Cabinet Voices His Approval.

Copenhagen, Sept 4.—T. Stauning, socialist member of the Danish cabinet and leader of that party in parliament, finds much to approve in President Wilson's reply to the pope's peace proposal.

In a statement to the Associated Press Mr. Stauning said:

"I am glad to have an opportunity to say a few words about President Wilson's answer to the pope, particularly as I have learned that with regard to my feelings toward the United States a misunderstanding recently has spread.

"I am of the opinion that President Wilson's answer to the pope's message is a highly promising sign and I see from it what I had expected, that Mr. Wilson does not wish the war to be continued to the end where there will be victors and defeated. I have at an earlier time said to the American press that in spite of the change that has taken place in certain circles, I firmly believe that the president of the free United States again would be seen busy at bringing about peace and I see that I have not been disappointed. The paragraph of President Wilson's words, that opposes a violation of the people's sovereignty, the imposing of indemnities, the splitting up of countries and the making of an egotistic and economic war, will be read with joy by everyone wishing a happy and lasting peace. I hope that Mr. Wilson's wise utterances may find echo and show their influence in other belligerent countries.

"The president's wishes that peace and its guarantee may be established by the people are of course in great harmony with my wishes and I should think that these words will furnish encouragement in the democratic parties of Europe to powerful efforts for a democratization movement."

LABOR TO WIPE OUT SCENES OF SQUALOR

Father Will Support Family by Effort on County Roads.

Change of effort for Leo Friemuth, 26, 1214 East Wayne street, will bring a transposition in the condition of his family, Judge H. W. Kerr believes. Friemuth has been employed at a locol brewery but has not supported his wife and two little children. The destitute family will be kept by efforts Friemuth will expend on the county road, Judge Kerr will pronounce on Thursday, when Friemuth faces a child neglect charge in city court.

Friemuth was arrested on last Friday. The original complaint against the man was for assault and battery, because he had beaten his wife, neighbors told the police. Investigation showed that he had not provided for his family and that he has wasted his earnings for drink.

Judge Kerr, Deputy Prosecutor John Hoffman, two police officers and Friemuth were taken to the laborer's home, Tuesday morning, in order to see the surroundings of his family.

The investigating party found the wife and two children living in a small house with few of the natural comforts of a home. The wife was sorely wounded from blows which Friemuth had delivered when in a drunken rage four days before. There was every mark of penury. The children were illy clothed and complained about being hungry. Neighbors have provided the living for the family, the judge was told.

The father of Mrs. Friemuth is expected to come for his daughter and to take her to his home at Etna Green along with her children. The woman asked that her husband be given another chance.

"He has enjoyed too many chances," said the judge. "I am sure he will provide if he works on the county road."

NEW TANK RECORD.

The previous record of [illegible] was held by [illegible] of San Francisco.

Morris Mobbed by Crowd for Poor Tactics Against Fulton

Former White Hope Makes Poor Showing in Poor Fight.

Canton, Ohio, Sept. 4.—Carl Morris, who hails from the general vicinity of the Ozarks, yesterday took the easiest way out of a disgraceful dilemma.

Scheduled to bix fifteen rounds with Fred Fulton, the Rochester plasterer, to decide which was the better qualified to meet Jess Willard in a heavyweight championship contest, Morris deliberately fouled Fulton so often that Referee Matt Hinkel was forced to terminate the contest in the sixth round. Morris was mobbed when he left the ring, but was not hurt.

It was a sad ending to a spectacle which had a good beginning. It promised much more agreeable sport. More than one remarked, on seeing Morris as he came from his corner, "What a bear he must be." No remarks of that sort will greet Carl today if he shows his battered face in public places.

Breaks All the Rules.

Outclassed and apparently destined to become the recipient of a terrific mauling, Morris violated every rule of the boxing game and of good sportsmanship. He started early to prepare for his own finish. In the second round he apparently gave up hope. He forsook the legal methods of boxing and resorted to the foul—which was evidence that he felt he was a beaten man. With the passing of the minutes his disregard for accepted practices grew. He refused to heed the warning of the referee not once but consistently.

A half dozen times Hinkel issued an ultimatum, declaring this intention of awarding the match to Multon if Morris did not box according to Marquis of Queensberry rules. But still Morris kept up foul tactics. The sixth round was not half a dozen seconds old when Morris' intentions were plain to every one. He wanted to be disqualified.

Hinkel did everything in his power to force the big fellow to live up to the rules. The well-known referee and promoter even stopped a few blows himself in an effort to give the crowd what it expected.

When Hinkel finally pried the big fellows apart and announced the match was over, his decision was the most popular ever given in this vicinity.

M'GOVERN OUTCLASSED.

Philadelphia, Sept. 4.—Willie Jackson, the New York lightweight, outclassed Terry McGovern, of this city, in a six-round bout here yesterday. McGovern, who was substituted for Tommy Touhey, of Paterson, N. J., was barely able to stand when the bout ended.

COFFEY BEATS MADDEN.

New York, Sept. 4.—Jim Coffey, the Irish heavyweight, outfought Bartley Madden, of this city, in a ten-round bout yesterday. Coffey was the aggressor throughout, Madden's footwork enabling him to evade Coffey's best blows. Coffey weighed 203 pounds and Madden 180.

TOMMY GIBSON ALSO WINS.

Dayton, O., Sept. 4.—Tommy Gibbons, of St. Paul, won the decision yesterday in the fifteen-round bout with Gus Christie, having the better of the contest all the way through. There were no knockdowns.

OTHER LABOR DAY FIGHTS.

Dillon Outclassed.

Terre Haute, Ind., Sept. 4.—Mike Gibbons, of St. Paul, shaded Jack Dillon, of Indianapolis, in every round of their ten-round no-decision fight for the world's middle-weight championship, according to sport writers who saw the contest here yesterday.

Gibbons took the offensive in the first round and kept it, with the exception of the third round when Dillon rallied and won an even break on the round. In the fifth Gibbons rocked Dillon's head with a left jab and delivered repeated blows to the face, drawing blood and inflicting punishment to the eyes

In the remaining rounds Dillon showed signs of distress, but displayed remarkable grit, which kept him on his feet under staggering blows. Gibbons grew cautious in the ninth and tenth rounds, but finished with a rain of rights and lefts that sent Dillon staggering to his corner.

DUNDEE WINS.

Davenport, Ia., Sept. 4.—Mike Dundee, after defeating K. O. Krause at Dubuque, repeated here yesterday by beating Harry Condon in ten rounds. Dundee weighed 119 pounds, while Condon weighed 128 pounds. Kid Harris, of Denver, and Lee Higgins, of Davenport, fought an eight-round go. Dundee will box Mort Henderson at La Salle, Ill., on Sept. 10.

CHAMPION IN FORM

oronto, Sept. 4.—Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, stopped young Rector, of Jersey City, in the fifth round of a six-round match here yesterday. Leonard overwhelmed his opponent with his speed and skill, raining punches on him from all angles. In the fifth round, after Rector had been forced to his knees for a second time, his seconds threw in the sponge.

CENTRAL LEAGUE.

Rain Interferes.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 4.—Fort Wayne and Peoria got an even break in the wind-up of the Central league for 1917 here yesterday, neither winning nor losing the final, the only victory that was chalked was that by the weather man. The last day card would have undoubtedly been one of the largest attended, if not the largest, of the season, and would have helped further the cause of Central league baseball, which has suffered at the gate this year because of the war. The Fort Wayne Chiefs with the cellar championship safely tucked away started for home last night, having wound up an unsuccessful season. The only thing that might have saved them would have been possibly the fact that Dayton was making a worse showing prior to the wreck which put them out of the running for the remainder of the season two weeks ago. The local club has arranged a series of exhibition games and it is not considered likely that the contest scheduled yesterday will be played later.

Myers Club Wins Again and Will Meet Lincoln Lifers

New Outfit Shows Class Enough for City Champs.

Bade Myers' new team in the field which it is expected will play the Lincoln Life club a series of games for the city championship showed its class by defeating the All-Nations at League park yesterday, 6 to 3. It was the second game in two days that the new club has played and the only two of the season, both of them victories, but they proved that the Lincoln Life club will have some keen competition for the city honors.

Hitchcock lived up to his expected ability by pitching a good game against the hard-hitting Cubs, but it was to no avail as the All-Nations were outclassed by Bade's team, which represented only one nation—the one our boys are going to fight for over there in the trenches, and the one that Bade thinks will cop the city championship in a short time. With the exception of the fifth inning when the Cubs got four runs, Hitchcock kept his hits scattered and things looked about even. For the first four innings the game was played on an equal footing. It was in the fifth that the deluge came. Liable singled and was followed by Prince and Railing, who bunted safely Brown struck out. Dietrich hit toward first, which Carmen fielded but made a wild heave, allowing two scores. Watt drew a bye. Lair forced Railing home and two more counted on a Blacksmith's hit. Liable the second time up hit a two-bagger, scoring two more. Prince was out, short to first, ending the run scoring.

Italy is responsible for the appearance of a bread made from unground grain. An account of this, quoted from Agricoltura Toscana, assures us that the bread is not only nutritious, but agreeable to the taste. A given quantity of grain yields more bread when unground than when it has been made into flour. From forty-eight to sixty hours is required to soak the grain to the proper consistency for mixing.

INDIANA FIRST WITH MUNICIPAL COAL MINE

Mayor Ben Bosse, of Evansville, Puts Own Fortune Into Venture.

Staff Special.

Evansville, Ind., Sept. 4—The first municipal coal mine in the United States will supply Evansville citizens this winter.

Mayor Benjamin Bosse is establishing the mine privately with his own money and will sell it to the city on easy terms when it is in operation. It will be operated by the waterworks department within two months, and the mayor hopes the city will be able to take it over by January 1.

WALTER KORFF

MAYOR BENJAMIN BOSSE

Mayor Bosse failed in his attempt to sell coal at cost last winter because he could get only non-union coal at moderate prices, and the unions therefore opposed the venture. Now the only obstacle is doubt as to whether the Indiana public service commission will find legal authority for city ownership and operation of a coal mine. If it does not the mayor will ask the sanction of the state legislature at a special session which he expects Gov. Goodrich, also fighting high coal prices, to call if necessary.

Walter Korff, who has spent all his life in the coal business and has been chosen to install and manage the city mine, is now making borings on a 1,000-acre tract on which Boosse has options. Eventually modern electric machinery will be installed to produce a daily output of 1,000 tons. Union miners will be employed exclusively.

The mine will be on an interurban line and a steam road to Evansville, and city coal yards, will be established on both. The city will sell coal wholesale and retail, at cost plus a small profit.

Manager Korff says the mayor will have invested $100,000 of his own money when he turns the mine over to the city.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

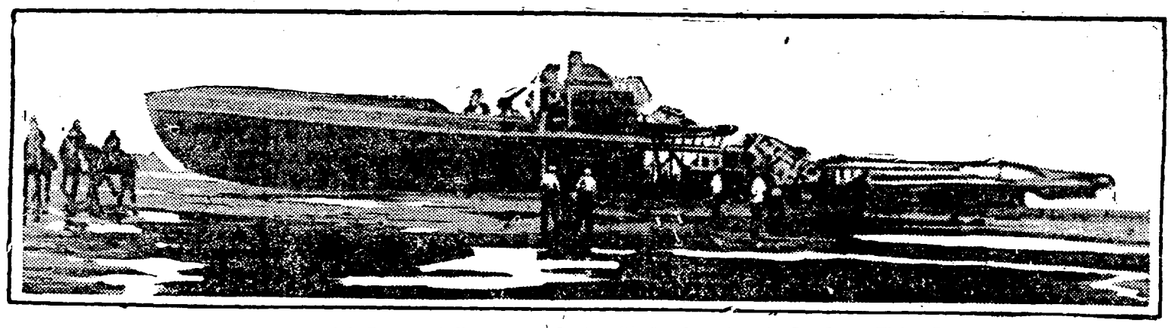
SHE SOWED THE SEAS WITH DEATH



This striking picture is from Kenneth W. Payne, staff correspondent, with headquarters in London. This German submarine was sowing mines along the French coast in the path of the transports conveying United States troops to the French front. The submarine ventured in too far, in its desperate attempt to plant death for the Sammies, and was washed aground. The crew, unable to float the vessel, set it on fire before surrendering. The submarine is too badly damaged to be remodeled for the allies' use, but it will plant no more seeds of death in the path of Uncle Sam's armies. The havoc caused by the fire can be seen particularly at the right of the picture.

TALKS TO MOTHERS ABOUT SONS.

Here's the biggest mistake you mothers make. Having little Rufus taking music lessons. Very foolish, though some of our best prize fighters and ball players took music lessons when they were kids. How cruel you mothers are, making your wild son stay in and practice an hour or so on silly scales and some simp piece about "The dance of the fairies," etc., when he'd rather be out playing "duck on the rock" or with his gang up an alley changing the lines on some peddler's horse. If a boy is musical let him do it himself. He'll cop the front wheels off the baby carriage and trade it with some kid for a battered up mouth organ, and he'll practice on it while he and his gang are teasing the chinks in a Chinese laundry. See, the trouble is you mothers don't hitch on things your son likes. When a kid does things just the way ma wants it, he ceases to be a kid.

One of the most remarkable developments in this war is reported from South America, where the government of Chile is proposing to repair some of its old warships and convert them into cargo boats for the transport of cereals, coal and other necessaries. This comes as refreshing reading after the many instances of peaceful adjuncts of business, such as steam tugs, fishing boats and steam trawlers, being converted into organs of offense or defense.—Tit-Bits, London.

School Head Passing Vacation as Army Camp Carpenter

East St. Louis Principal Earning Wage at Shiloh, Ill., Aviation Field.

PROF. JOHN B. HUDDLE, principle of the Washington and Irving schools, East St. Louis, is passing his vacation as No. 758 of the carpenter's staff at the aviation field, nine miles from Belleville, near Shiloh, Ill. Incidentally he is earning more money than he does through the school year.

His salary is $1,750 for supervising two schools ten months. His wages as a carpenter are $6.87 a day of ten hours and $12.50 for Sundays and holidays. As the work must be rushed because of the war, there is work every Sunday and all holidays. If he works every day in July, which has five Sundays and one holiday, his pay at the end of the month will be $247, as compared to his monthly salary of $175 when he teaches school.

Prof. Huddle is the possessor of the highest grade certificate in Illinois. He has given twenty-five years to his profession. Besides his preparatory instruction he has attended professional and educational institutions in the school year and vacations. Last year, besides his regular school work, he carried four majors at St. Louis University. He is a junior in that institution, and expects to remain one of its night students until he is graduated.

In the school year he attends St. Louis University classes three nights in the week. In doing this he is following the wishes of the East St. Louis Board of Education, which advances the salaries of teachers according to a system in which attending school figures. Next winter Prof. Huddle will be entitled to $1,800 a year, the maximum salary at present in East St. Louis.

Gets an Early Start.

Prof. Huddle has no intention of giving up his profession in preference for the trade taught him by his father, Benjamin Huddle, 88 years old, excellent carpenter and cabinet maker. But he's glad that he is the possessor of this trade at this particular time. His vacation days are not exactly playdays, as one may see by heading his daily program, which follows:

Each morning he rises early enough to have his breakfast and to be ready to start for the aviation field at 5:15 o'clock. He makes the journey in the automobile of a fellow worker. The trip begins at his home, 2914 Virginia place, in Alta Sita, East St. Louis, continues over the dykes to State street, on to Belleville—if the Belleville motorcycle "cops" aren't hungry—then out the Carlyle road to the aviation field. The distance of about twenty-one miles. The best time is made between Alta Sita and Edgemont and Belleville and the field, because the Belleville ordinances require a speed of fifteen miles an hour only from Edgemont to the Belleville city limits. The best road is that where the speed is limited.

Once the automobile in which Prof. Huddle was traveling to work was stopped by a policeman, and Prof. Huddle will defend the chauffeur when he is summoned to trial. Among the other things in which he is versed is law, he being a member of the Jefferson-Lincoln law class, which studied for several years in the East St. Louis City Hall.

Belleville motorcycle policemen are paid only when they make arrests and it is said that the Belleville custom is to fine $25 and costs for the first offense, $50 plus costs for the second, and a rising scale for all others.

Prof. Huddle says the fine road which is almost minus a vehicle at 5:30 o'clock in the morning would tempt almost any one to speed. He also says that the watchfulness of the motorcycle policemen is so acute that almost any kind of speed is more than fifteen miles an hour in their judgment.

With luck, Prof. Huddle arrives at the field in time for the opening hour of work, 7 o'clock.

There is much work to be done and one must be an experienced carpenter to get it done. Many men are hired each day and many are discharged. The man who doesn't know the trade may hammer away a few days, but he goes as surely as do horse weeds from well cultivated corn fields. The superintendent of construction and the foremen know their business, Prof. Huddle says, and they know it as he insists that boys and girls know fractions thoroughly.

Working Under College Man.

Prof. Huddle's foreman is a graduate of the University of Illinois, having completed the course in engineering and architecture. Prof. Huddle listened to the man's directions one day and knew before noon came that his "boss" was a college man. The "boss" knows Prof. Huddle only by his number, but he probably knows that No. 758 and himself have certain mental kinship.

Uncle Sam is particularly fortunate in his superintendents and foremen at this aviation field. They are men of the right class. Prof. Huddle when asked is it irked to be told after many years of telling replied:

"While I could not stand to be driven, I enjoy intelligent supervision. When I know that the man who is ordering me knows what he is talking about I find it a pleasure to accede to his orders."

Workers at the aviation field have an hour at noon. That's the same amount that is allowed in the East St. Louis public schools. Time was when Prof. Huddle gave some attention to the kind and quality of his food. That was before last February, when he practically fasted for three weeks. He weighed 198 pounds then. At the end of the third week his weight was but 168 pounds. He has lost 5 pounds since he began his vacation work at the aviation field. That loss is small in comparison to the amounts lost by other carpenters. Prof. Huddle began his three weeks of near-fast with two days of absolute fasting. Later he took black coffee for a few days. To this diet he added spinach. This was increased to light meals. These light meals have not been materially increased and Prof. Huddle says the result is that he has never felt better in his life than at present, when he calls his condition "coltish."

Not so long ago Prof. Huddle had a reputation as a chef, gained by his management of his electric chafing dish for the benefit of his teachers, many of whom have to take their lunches to school. He can still concoct good dishes, but his appetite does not require any except plain food. However, it is his opinion that the ability to cook has no sex limitations.

Work at the aviation field is over at 6 o'clock and wages for ten hours are at the rate of eleven hours. The return journey to East St. Louis is made by automobile, with careful attention to speed in Belleville.

After supper Prof. Huddle sits on his screened porch in one of the best residence districts of East St. Louis and enjoys what he calls his only vice—his cigar. He does not discard his becoming blue and white striped overalls and in one of the pockets is his gold watch, which has a chain and other decorations not often worn by a workingman.

He does not retire until 10 o'clock, taking the time between supper and bed for reading.

There are children in the Huddle family. A son of 25, Elmer, who has enlisted in the Third Illinois Artillery, which is being recruited in East St. Louis and suburbs; a daughter, Mrs. William Maurer, who was Miss Rachel Huddle, a teacher in the East St. Louis schools before her marriage; William Huddle, 19, a student in the East St. Louis High School, of which both the others are graduates, and the baby of the family, Grace Hite Huddle, 9 years old, in the sixth grade, and named for one of the best teachers of English in Illinois, who is also a relative of Prof. Huddle. There was another child, who died several years ago, Tolley, memory of whom will recall to many East St. Louisans the miniature Bunkum school made by pupils of Prof. Huddle several years ago as a problem in mathematics and construction. Some things have to be told before you can know all about the miniature Bunkum school.

Prof. Huddle was born in Omega, Ill., "the last place." His uncle, Judge Cagy, was a law partner of Silas Bryan, father of William Jennings Bryan. His family was part of the big Huddle family of Virginia, which holds a reunion each July. Prof. Huddle received an invitation to the reunion. Originally the name was Hottel, and its possessors were French Huguenots. They settled in Virginia and sent their children to school taught by an English teacher who did not know the difference between German and French. He asked the Hottel children their name, but he did not ask its spelling. He listened carefully and deduced that these were German children who pronounced "d's" as "t's" and that their names must be Hoddle or Huddle. It became the latter for the time being. in time some went back to the old spelling and others took a middle-of-the-road form, as is evidenced by the invitation to the reunion, which is signed by three members of the family, each with his name spelled a different way. One of these is a minister.

Prof. Huddle's branch of the family went to Ohio and later to Illinois. His father, who taught him carpentering, is still living. His mother lived until she passed her 80th year.

Prof. Huddle went to the Iuka schools and when he had completed there passed a year teaching in that neighborhood, which is near Salem, Ill. The confinement of the schoolroom did not agree with him, and he took employment as a timekeeper for a Baltimore and Ohio road gang. The gang was sent to Caseyville, Ill. Then came romance into Prof. Huddle's life.

Mrs. Huddle was a Caseyville girl. Near Caseyville is the Bunkum School. Prof. Huddle obtained this school for the winter. The Bunkum road, as it goes up the hill past the Bunkum School, is one of the prettiest drives in this section of the country. Bunkum and Caseyville have strong individuality. The latter was named for a lieutenant governor of Illinois, and has lived up to its baseball name by producing some of the best ballplayers in the country. Larry Doyle was born in Caseyville. Dan Hanley, who became mayor of Cripple Creek, was a Caseyville boy, and is an uncle of Larry Doyle.

Which hasn't much connection with the Bunkum School, except that the annual picnic of the Caseyville and Bunkum schools are held on the same day. Prof. Huddle taught the Bunkum School for several years. When the school needed an addition he built it. He also built his own home in Caseyville, as well as many porches and porticos which still may be seen.

He knew every inch of the Bunkum School, now standardized, so well that after he had become an East St. Louis principal, after serving as principal of the Caseyville School for several years, he decided to let his pupils learn several chapters of arithmetic through actual construction. Under his direction they made a miniature Bunkum School, concrete foundation, desks and all, every measurement true to the original, and this, when completed, was shown in the East St. Louis High School at a large meeting of teachers and then returned to the Alta Sita School, where it still is an object of interest. At the time of its making Prof. Huddle was principal of the Atla Sita School. It is pleasant to know that the present principal of the Alta Sita School is Prof. John E. Miller, one time a teacher of the Bunkum School, to whom the miniature school means much.

Tolley Huddle, the dead son, helped his father in much of the work on the little schoolhouse. The desks were cut out of wood by the girls of the Alta Sita School, many of whom had never known just what a country school was like. Much besides arithmetic was taught in the making of this school.

In the rear of the Huddle home is a chicken and pigeon yard that has the most elaborate burglar alarm and lighting facilities in East St. Louis.

Understanding the switchboard which controls these is as good as taking a course in high school electricity. Push one thing in the yard and not only do bells ring, but the yard becomes as bright as day. Milk-fed chickens thrive in this yard, as do one India Runner duck, a dozen or so Guinea pigs and some pigeons.

Prof. Huddle acknowledges that he is versatile, also that he can adjust himself to conditions. He says that he has a profession and three trades. The latter are those of carpenter, jeweler and machinist. He has worked other vocations, once as a machinist, another as traveling salesman. Friends who know his ability in argument and oratory have wondered why he did not qualify for the Chautauque circuit.

If Prof. Huddle wished he might retire from active work as a teacher and draw a teacher's pension. That kind of a life has no attraction for him. He considers himself too young and too mentally active. He knows that Illinois coal miners at present are drawing wages ranging from $90 to $110 every two weeks, and that credits, professional meetings, etc., have nothing to do with their raises. He knows what he could earn at his other trades should he wish to leave his profession for one of them. But he has no intention of making a change.

is made of the extent of damage, if any, to naval property.

Meanwhile the Italian air service seems to have effected notable damage upon the Austrian naval base at Pola. Rome reports today the dropping of nine tons of bombs by thirty Italian airplanes on Pola, causing heavy damage and large fires.

Press dispatches from the Austro-Italian front report the Italians continuing their steady advance in their operation for Trieste, pushing their lines ahead in the Brestovizza valley in the district south of Gorizia and working farther forward eastward over the great Bainsizza plateau. The fall of Mont San Gabriele, the chief remaining vantage point of the Austrians aside from their Carso strongholds, is considered only a matter of time as the Italians continue steadily creeping up its slopes.

There has been no renewal of the Flanders fighting on a large scale as yet, although the intensity of the artillery fire suggests that this is impending. The British, however, are biting further into the German positions at points on their front and today a slight advance of the British lines northeast of St. Julien is announced.

over a larger tract of the country, especially through the Brestovizza valley and over the Bansizza plateau, capturing trench after trench and in some cases finding squads of Austrian troops, literally exhausted and suffering from thirst and hunger, their means of communication having been cut off by the well directed Italian fire.

Mone San Gabriele still is making desperate efforts at resistance, but Italian pickets are gradually creeping up the slopes, making its fall only a matter of time when, as officers laughingly say here "the Austrians execute another stragetical retreat."

Army officers and others who have read the Austrian war bulletins are much amused over the statements that the Italians are fleeing when as a matter of fact the Italians are constantly gaining territory.

Since the beginning of the present advance the Italians have gained ground every day while all Austrian efforts to recapture lost positions have been shattered by the energetic resistance of General Cadorna's army.

SELECTED MEN ARE READY TO GO INTO THE CANTONMENTS

low citizens the national army men marched between lines of cheering thousands, bidding them god speed on the first steps of their journey to France.

Offices Close.

All government offices closed for the occasion, poured out their thousands to join the procession. Business houses were closed for the time the entire capital turned aside the daily tasks to do honor to the drafted men.

At the white house reviewing stand, a large party of foreign diplomats and other officials assembled to wait for the president's coming at the head of the procession and to join him in reviewing it.

The senate and house prepared to adjourn early in order to take part, it being the first time congress has ever marched in any popular demonstration. The senate was led by Senator Saulsbury, president pro tempore, and the house by Speaker Champ Clark and "Uncle Joe" Cannon, both of whom refused to ride, despite their advanced ages.

Senators Nelson and Warren, who fought on the union side in the civil war, and Senators Martin and Bankhead, who were with the armies of the confederacy, marched side by side in their respective uniforms of blue and gray.

Veterans of the Spanish-American war who were with the senate delegation are Senators New, Frelinghuysen, Wadsworth, Lewis, Weeks, Vardaman and Farrell.

Review the Parade.

As the van of the column reached the white house the president entered the reviewing stand. With him were Viscount Ishii, special ambassador from Japan and the members of the Japanese mission, the French ambassador and Mme. Jusserand, the Mexican ambassador and other members of the diplomatic corps.

Government and business establishments were closed to permit employes either to march or witness the parade. Societies and civic organizations were represented by large delegations and floats. The only banner permitted, with the exception of the standards distinguishing the various groups, was the Stars and Stripes.

Among the military units represented were the regiment from the officers' reserve camp at Fort Myer, Va.; the district national guard, one regiment of engineers, several battalions of coast and field artillery and a squadron of regular cavalry.

sembly." The final election system to be used in Russia has not been settled as yet, the speaker said. The future structure of local government in Russia, however, will be accompanied by the greatest decentralization.

This process of decentralization, Ambassador Bakhmeteff asserted, will result in a system similar to that of the United States, although "there will always be a substantial difference conditioned by the difference of the historical formation of the state. * * * * The future edifice of new Russia, with all the future developments of local government will be formed by a process of decentralization of previously established forms, on virtue of law emanating from a central body representing the will of the whole people."

No Direct Election.

"Independent and direct election of the chief executive," as the president is chosen in America, the ambassador declared, "would involve danger in a country like Russia, fresh from monarchial tradition. Concentration of such enormous powers in an individual would become a threat to the new republic."

In touching on the present condition of unrest in Russia the speaker said:

"I am confident of being right when characterizing the centrifugal forces, which are being exhibited now in Russia, as one of the infant diseases which, as many others, will disappear, and let us hope forever, in the sparkling light of liberty and exuberant atmosphere of democracy."

AMERICAN BAR IS STRONG IN LOYALTY

National Association at Saratoga Adopts Warm Resolutions.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Sept. 4—Resolutions pledging the loyaolty of the American Bar association to the government were presented at the opening session of the annual meeting of the organization this morning by Elihu Root on behalf of the executive committee, with the unanimous recommendation of the committee that they be adopted. The resolutions assert that the future freedom and security of the country depend upon the defeat of the German military power; approve the entrance of the United States into the war before it was to late to find success through the united action of the democrate powers; urge the most vigorous possible prosecution of the war, and conclude as follows:

"We stand for the dispatch of the American army, however raised, to the battle front in Europe, where the armed enemies of our country can be found and fought and where our own territory can best be defended. We condemn all attempts in congress and out of it to hinder and embarrass the government of the United States in carrying on the war with vigor and effectiveness. Under whatever cover a pacifism or technicality such attempts are made, we deem them to be in the spirit pro-German, and in affect giving aid and comfort to the enemy. We declare this to be overwhelmingly the sentiment of the American bar."

LABOR TO SHOW LOYALTY.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 4.—Organized labor mobilized its representatives her today for the double purpose of pledging support to the government in the war and soundling a warning to pacifists and pro-German propogandists by means of a big loyalty conference under the auspices of the American alliance for labor and democracy.

OHIO GUARDSMEN IN ALLEN COUNTY JAIL

Soldiers Taken Off Pennsy Train Held Pending Investigation.

The two soldiers taken off a westbound Pennsylvania train by railroad detectives Tuesday morning are not deserters, according to Maj. Thomas Ryan, in charge of the local recruiting office. Major Ryan declared that if the young men, who gave their names as John S. Grimes, 23, of Alliance, O., and Bartholomew Kelleher, also of Alliance, both members of Company K, Eighth Ohio infantry, had told the truth, which he is investigating, they will probably be charged with being absent without leave.

The young men, who have been lodged in the county jail, told Major Ryan that they had only been gone from Alliance, where Company K of Ohio is stationed, about five hours and probably cannot be considered deserters, as was at first thought probable. They were taken off the train by the detectives because they were trying to beat their way.

The soldiers told Major Ryan they had relatives in this city whom they came here to see. Major Ryan has been in communication with the officers of the company at Alliance and while he has not yet received word as to the truth of the story told by the young men he says he has no reason to believe that it is not true Upon receipt of word from Alliance to the effect that the infantrymen belong there Major Ryan will detach a guard to accompany them back to the Ohio city.

In case the charge placed against the Ohio men is that of being absent without leave, punishment, according to practice in such cases, will probably be light. Major Ryan says that in view of the facts as he believes them to be, the young men cannot be classed as deserters.

CITY COUNCIL OF CHICAGO HANDS LEMON TO BILL

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 4.—Mayor William Hale Thompson presided today over a special meeting of the city council called for the purpose of coramending Governor Lowden's stand against the meeting of the pacifists. The mayor permitted the meeting in defiance of the governor. There was talk of calling another special meeting for tomorrow to consider the actions of the mayor himself.

Police were scattered throughout the city hall and on guard in the council chamber when the session began. The mayor was applauded by the gallery as he entered the chamber.

A vote which served as test at the special meeting of the city council this afternoon indicated that of the forty-eight aldermen present at the time of the vote forty were in favor of the resolution commending Governor Lowden (and by implication censuring the mayor) for his stand against pacifist agitation.

ANTI-WAR GROUP IN SENATE HAS ANOTHER JOLT

Washington, Sept. 4.—The group fighting the finance committee's scheme of war profits taxation was defeated again today when the senate rejected Senator Hollis' proposal to strike out the finance committee's new compromise provision extending the war profits taxes to peace profits over 10 per cent estimated to raise $428,000,000 additional.

Immediately after disposing of Senator Hollis' proposal the senate rejected—50 to 18—an amendment by Senator Lafollette to levy a flat increase of 60 per cent on war profits, designed to raise not less than $1,800,000,000.

Operations Proceed With No Incident on the Fixed Basis.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—Government buying of wheat began today and proceeded as automatically as operations over the counter at any ordinary national bank. There was only one standard of value, the basis of $2.20 a bushel for No. 1 northern grade.

Frost damage reports from the northwest had a bullish effect on corn. Opening prices, which ranged from ½c off to ¼c advance, with December at $1.11⅛ to $1.11⅜, and May at $1.07⅝ to $1.08, were followed by an advance all around to well above Saturday finish.

Oats sympathized with the strength of corn.

Lower quotations on hogs pulled down provisions.

STOCK MARKET HAS VIGOR AFTER REST

Triple Holiday Followed by Rallies at Opening and New Strength.

New York Sept. 4—Resumption of operations on the stock exchange after the triple holiday was attended by many substantial rallies from last week's final prices. United States Steel, the market leader, opened at 110⅝ to 111, a maximum gain of 1½ points. Rails were irregular, material gains in New York Central and Reading being offset by the heaviness of Pacifics and the southern division.

Excepting the rails, which were retarded by the weakness of New York Central and New Haven, almost all early prices were surpassed.

Baldwin Locomotive advanced four and other industrials and metals to two. United States Steel extended its gain to 111⅝ and some of the high grade specialties, including Industrial Alcohol, registered further advances with motors. Prices reacted fractionally at noon on the 6 per cent call money rate. Liberty bonds were active at 99.90 to 99.94.

NO CORN RECEIVED AT THE CITY SCALES

Slight Reduction in Oats, While Hay Remains at the Same Price.

Twelve loads of hay and eleven loads of oats were received at the city scales Tuesday but no corn. Price quotations on hay remain the same while oats fell off 2c on the top price. A decline in flour prices are noted.

All grain markets of the country were closed Monday in observance of Labor day. This is the day the government commences buying wheat for distribution to the millers and exporters at the basis price of $2 20 for No. 1 grades of winter and spring wheat. The government will not be obliged to buy from the government corporation until Sept. 10, and for a few days a little confusion may be expected.

PUBLIC ASKED TO HELP HOOVER'S PLAN

Fort Wayne Food Officer is Made Member of State Defense Council.

The "save every scrap" plan of the national food conservation organization is to be enforced in Fort Wayne. From state officers comes the order to City Sealer C. B. Tolan that he must report all cases of food waste in fields, orchards or markets in or near Fort Wayne.

The city sealer is anxious to obey the order. He will send in the names of persons whom he finds to be wasteful. He asks the public to aid him by giving him all information possible on the subject of food hoarding or waste near Fort Wayne.

The order received by Tolan states that prosecution for such offenses will be in the federal courts and that no local expense will incur from the trial.

ENROLLMENT OVER 10,000

School Bells Call Largest Army of Pupils in City's History.

FEW NEW TEACHERS APPEAR ON LISTS

Enlarged Attendance at All Parochial Schools of City.

The largest army of bright-eyed school children ever mobilized in Fort Wayne marched away to their respective schools, Tuesday morning, at the summons of ringing bells. The enrollment of all schools of the city is believed to be above 10,000, from reports from the various grades and from the parochial schools.

There is an increased attendance reported from every one of the city grade schools. The high school attendance will be but slightly above that of last year, it is reported. A few of the lads who would have been seniors this year have enlisted in the army of Uncle Sam.

There is an enlarged attendance at the Catholic and Lutheran schools of the city. The enrollment at the Central Catholic high school, St. Augustine's and St. Catherine's academies will be at least fifty more than last year, it is reported. The Lutheran and Catholic grade schools are showing a marked increase in numbers.

Few New Teachers.

In the city schools there will be but few new teachers. There are but twenty-two new faces in the gathering of more than 300 city instructors. Of the recently acquired instructors there will be eight new teachers in the high school; eight have just finished their normal work and seven will be in the kindergarten department.

No effort will be made to fill the place as city school superintendent, made vacant by the death of Prof. Justin N. Study, until the school term has been running for at least a week.

The school work proper started on Tuesday afternoon as the morning was given over to assigning text books for the different grades. The first day will be taken up almost solely in organization.

NO DANGER OF THE COAL MINES CLOSING

So Declares William F. Houston in Labor Day Address.

There is no danger of the operators closing down their mines as they have threatened if the government persists in enforcing price regulations, declared William F. Houston, of Terre Haute, general organizer for the United Mine Workers of America, in his address at the Labor day celebration at Robison park Monday.

"Many of the operators have said they cannot make expenses on the government's figures and that they will have to close down," Mr. Houston stated, "but just as soon as they do the government will take over those mines and will operate them. The operators know this. They do not want government ownership, but they know that once the government takes over any mines it means government ownership of those mines with a gradual extensions of the system."

The Labor day celebration was a success in every particular, including the monster parade in the morning.

MAN WHO CAUSED PANIC WAS SICK

Friends Intercede and Ruin Only Lively Case on Docket.

Police dashed far out on McClellan street Monday night to a terror toned call for aid. A man was trying to break into one of the McClellan street homes, it was reported. Officers found James Reed, 40, bartender, slinking in a reulle. Reed was locked up.

Friends of the man interceded in his behalf in police court Tuesday morning, when the county prosecutor and two detectives had assembled in the basement court room to gain evidence in what appeared to be a sensational case. The men who know Reed well claim that he is ill. He made his way from the bartenders' clubrooms Monday night, half clothed, and had to be rescued, his friends said.

Reed told in court that he was lost on Monday evening and was wandering along McClellan street in an effort to find his way home. He was given into custody of his friends who promised to care for him.

There were seven loitering cases on the brief docket Tuesday. Walter Jerald, 39, was the only prisoner detained. He is thought to be temporarily demented. His status will be investigated. He is held until Friday. Those released were Miles Swartz, Joe Gallaway, Lee Brown, John Brown, John C. Pierson and William Hart.

NATION HONORS THE VANGUARD OF ARMY

SELECTED MEN ARE READY TO GO INTO THE CANTONMENTS

President Wilson, Congress and Officers of the Government Join the Washington Parade.

DEMONSTRATIONS ALL OVER THE LAND

Washington, Sept. 4.—Drafted men of the 5 per cent quota going to the national army cantonments were reporting today to local boards in all districts to receive instructions and railroad and meal tickets.

Most of them will be given permission to spend the night at home under orders to report again to the board shortly before train time tomorrow.

About 30,000 men, most of whom have been selected because of previous military or experience as cooks, are included in the first quota. By tomorrow night they will be in the sixteen cantonments, except those at Yaphank, L. I., and Admiral, Md., where construction is not completed.

Each district's quota will be placed in charge of one recruit, to whom will be given war department warrants for transportation and meals and authority to command the men until they reach camp. Arrangements for traveling expenses already have been made by the local boards.

Nation Honors Them.

The vanguard of the national army was being honored throughout the country today with demonstrations to celebrate the eve of departure of the first drafted men to the cantonments. Typifying the spirit of the nation, sending forth its sons to battle for democracy, the capital gave itself over to a great public demonstration in which President Wilson, congress and all the heads of the government were yeaders. The place of honor in a procession between peace monument at the foot of the capitol to the white house was reserved for the 1,400 drafted men comprising the District of Columbia's first contribution to the national army. Led by President Wilson and escorted by senators, representatives, sailors, soldiers, marines, men of the officers' training camp at Fort Myer and thousands of their fel-

TARNOWSKI HAS STIRRED TROUBLE AMONG THE POLES

Amsterdam, Sept. 4.—Count Adam Tarnowski von Tarnow, according to a dispatch from Cracow, was one of the prominent speakers at yesterday's joint sitting of the members of the Polish imperial council and diet to consider the dissolution of the supreme national committee. He made a declaration in favor of dissolution on behalf of the conservatives. They maintained that it was a duty of all to support to a realization the proclamation of May 11, 1916, and to pursue a sincere state conservating policy in Austria. A heated discussion followed and ended with the people's party, the social democrats, national democrats and members of the Polish National association leaving the sitting without anything having been accomplished.

SEEKS TO GAIN EXEMPTION FOR CITY FIRE BOYS

Washington, Sept. 4.—Refusal of the war department to exempt firemen from draft has drawn so much protest from city fire chiefs that Representative Scott, of Pennsylvania, today announced that he would attempt to obtain from President Wilson a modification of the ruling. Danger of fire, particularly in cities with great war industries, said Representative Scott, would be greatly increased if a number of trained fire fighters were drafted.

REBUILDING NEW RUSSIA

Ambassador from the New Democracy Talks of Reconstruction.

M. BAKMETEFF IS HEARD BY LAWYERS

Government Will Be Put Up on the Model of United States.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Discussing the reconstruction period through which Russia is now going, "emerging from the crucible of the revolution," Boris A. Bakhmeteff, Russian ambassador to the United States, in an address here today, before the judicial section of the American Bar association, declared that "the outcomings of the process now going on in Russia will determine the whole of the future relations between nations; on these issues will depend largely the future of the world."

To Rebuild Whole Edifice.

"Russia," he continued, "is facing now the complete reorganization of the whole edifice of its national life. All the branches and public, and financial systems of the government, the very customs of life are to be moulded in the spirit of the new freedom. Public and judicial institutions, civil and criminal law, finance, industry and commerce—all these manifold exertions of state life will have to be remodeled, and form the future edifice of state legality embodying the great principles of liberty and democracy."

"In this process of remodeling the ambassador declared "the old institutions which for centuries have exemplified political serfdom and economical inefficiency," will be done away with forever.

Decentralization is Necessary.

The first step in the work, the speaker said, will be the establishment of a constitution and the determination of such fundamental laws will be accomplished by a "constitutent as-

GEN. VARILLA IS BADLY WOUNDED; MAY LOSE A LEG

Paris, Sept. 4.—Major General Phillip Bunau-Varilla, was seriously wounded yesterday morning while on duty. Several fragments from a shell struck him in the left leg, which was so badly injured that amputation was considered necessary. After the amputation Major General Bunau-Varilla sent a message to his home asking his relatives not to be anxious concerning him, that he was content to suffer for his country.

Phillip Bunau-Varilla was director-general of the old French Panama Canal company and well known in the United States, having served as Panaman minister at Washington. He was a retired captain of engineers when the war began and in 1914 he returned to France from the United States to offer his services to his country and has earned several citations in army orders and has been awarded several decorations. Major General Bunau-Varilla is a brother of Maurice Bunau-Varilla, editor of the Matin.

MANY KILLED IN AIR RAID

German Planes Bomb the British War Post at Chatham.

OVER A HUNDRED LIVES ARE TAKEN

British Planes and Anti-Aircraft Guns Fail to Touch Raiders.

London, Sept. 4. — In last night's air raid 107 persons were killed and 86 wounded at Chatham, it is announced officially.

The victims were naval ratings. Six airplanes took part in the raid.

In addition to the naval casualties one civilian was killed and six were injured.

The announcement follows:

"Lord French (commander of the British home forces) reports that last night's air raid was carried out by about six enemy airplanes, which proceeded up the south bank of the Thames estuary to Chatham. Bombs were dropped in the Isle of Thanet and in the Sheerness-Chatham area, between 10:40 p. m. and 11:30 p. m. There were no army casualties. Civilian casualties reported at present are: Killed, 1; injured, 6. The ma-

PARADE PLANS ARE COMPLETE

Monster Demonstration for New Soldiers Starts at 8 O'Clock.

ALL MILITARY UNITS WILL APPEAR IN LINE

Story to Effect That March Was Called Off is Unwarranted.

"The parade in honor of the men selected from Fort Wayne for the new national army will be held on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. We want to make the demonstration one of genuine feeling," said Charles A. Nelbergall, in charge of the patriotic parade, in denying the rumor that the demonstration had been called off.

Fort Wayne will pay tribute to her first quota of national army soldiers in a rousing parade Tuesday night. Plans for making the showing one of the most impressive of the year have been going on throughout the day, despite rumors to the effect that the procession had been called off.

There will be brass bands and hundreds of marchers. The military organizations of the city will be in the pageant procession. The boy scouts city and county officials and nearly all lodges of the city will be in the line of march.

The column will move south on Harrison street, from Berry to Brackenridge. At Brackenridge street the ranks will proceed to Calhoun street. The line will continue north on Calhoun to Berry and from thence to the Majestic theater.

All divisions of the monster parade will form near the corner of Berry and Harrison streets at 7:30 o'clock. There will be no delays. The line will be marshalled as soon as possible.

IRISH ATTACK U. S. SAILORS

Americans Set Upon in Cork as They Walk Streets With Ladies.

HOODLUMS VOICE SINN FEIN SONGS

Places Occupied by Americans Are Stormed, But Not Entered.

London, Sept. 4.—Attacks on American sailors on Sunday night are reported in a dispatch from Cork to the Chronicle. It is said that gangs of young men paraded the streets and set upon the Americans who were accompanied by their sweethearts.

One instance cited is that of two Americans who were attacked on the chief street of Cork, a young woman with them being insulted and having her hat torn off.

The correspondent reports that the sailors did nothing improper or contrary to good taste to invite the attack and as far as could be learned did not retaliate. They escaped on a tram car.

All the girls who suffered at the hands of the crowds, the dispatch says, belong to the respectable middle class.

An attempt was made at 11 p. m. to break into places where Americans are staying, the dispatch continues, but after a short siege the attackers departed. Several parties paraded the streets singing "Sinn Fein" songs and performing military evolutions.

Some windows were broken. One party raided the premises of an officer's training corps and stole 56 rifles, 30 revolvers and a number of swords, none of which had been recovered, the correspondent says, at the time of writing his dispatch, nor had any arrests been made.

He reports that he talked with several American sailors yesterday and they believed the affair was organized but were not aware of the reason. They said they had been well treated hitherto in Ireland.

Summary of the Day's War News

While the major operation of the Germans in the Riga district on the Russian front and the great Italian campaign for Trieste continue to furnish the chief developments of military interest the German authorities have caused a momentary diversion by directing a spectacular raid on the English coast, apparently directed at one of the principal British naval bases.

Whether British naval property suffered to any extent from the raid has not yet been made apparent. It is known, however, that airplanes engaged in the operation reached Chatham, the site of extensive military and naval establishments, thirty miles southeast of London, and that 107 men of the naval establishment were killed and 86 wounded.

All the six German machines participating in the raid appear to have escaped, although they were engaged by British air forces and anti-aircraft guns as they swept up the Thames estuary to Chatham.

The report of Lord French, commanding the British home forces covering all the ground except that under admiralty control, states that only slight damage was done. The casualties, he reports, are one civilian killed and six injured. The naval casualties were reported by the secretary of the admiralty and no mention

New York, Sept. 4.—In order to stimulate military music rather than to censor it, a standard song book to be used in all branches of the service will be issued Oct. 1, according to an announcement today by the executive committee for the standardization of music in the army and navy. The new book will contain songs suitable for singing in camp and at the front and will fit into the pockets of a khaki house. It is planned in all of the training camps to have mass singing conducted under the instructions of leaders of recognized ability. Original songs are to be encouraged and there will be blank space in the song book for new airs produced during the war. John Alden Carpenter, the Chicago composer, will devote his time to standardizing the music of the army and navy bands.

MERCHANTS OF BREMEN WROTH AND IN FROTH

Amsterdam, Sept. 4.—According to advices received here from Bremen, President Wilson's reply to Pope Benedict's peace proposals was the occasion of a demonstration on the bourse there yesterday. After a speech by Herr Fabrius, president of the chamber of commerce, it was resolved to send a message to the emperor, saying: "Bremen merchants raise an indignant protest against President Wilson's hypocritical reply to the pope in which he professes to combat the German government in order to drive the American people, with whom Germany never had a quarrel, into a war which they reject." The president's note was called impudent and a brazen attempt to sow dissension between the government and the people in the German nation.

In his speech President Fabrius said no other enemy utterances had evolved such wrath in every German heart as President Wilson's note, in which the most sacred rights of the German nation were assailed.

A demonstration also was held on the Hamburg bourse, where resolutions similar to those adopted in Bremen were passed

BRITISH OFFICERS WILL AID TRAINING OF AMERICAN BOYS

American Training Camp in France, Sept. 4.—By the Associated Press.— It is announced that a number of British army officers will soon be attached to the American expeditionary force to assist in training the Americans, who will thus get the advantage of the best points of both the French and British tactics. It is considered probable that many of the British officers selected for this assignment will be Americans what have been serving in the British or French divisions.

American soldiers on Wednesday will see new advance under artillery barrage fire for the first time. It will of course be a practice barrage, but the French division training the Americans will lay a curtain of fire, as if under actual battle conditions, and will show their American students how closely infantry can follow a protecting wall of fire when properly trained artillerymen are directing it,

SWITZERLAND ALOOF FROM PEACE MEETING

Will Not Send Delegates to Neutral Congress in Stockholm.

Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 4.—It is learned from a reliable source that Switzerland will not be officially represented at the proposed conference of neutral nations at Stockholm. The Swiss authorities believe, it is said, that since the entrance of America into the war, the voice of smaller nations will produce little effect on the belligerents and furthermore the Swiss consider the question of revictualling a private one to be arranged separately.

They are also of the opinion that when peace terms are discussed the Swiss interests will not be neglected. The Swiss minister at Berlin may attend the Stockholm conference in an unofficial capacity.

Swiss newspapers complain that since the recent arrival of Prince von Buelow at Berne pro-German propaganda in Switzerland has greatly intensified, the country being virtually inundated with pamphlets in several languages.

The daily newspaper, La Feuille, founded at Geneva with a free circulation of 30,000 copies, is being distributed throughout Switzerland and a large number of self-styled German journalists have arrived at the chief Swiss towns and German money is much in evidence.

"A Regiment of Two"

AT THE GRAND TOMORROW

No! These Society Men Were Not in Trenches--Just Fishing

CAST.

Mr. Wilton	Sidney Drew
His Wife	Rose Tapley
Laura	Edith Storey
Harry Bennet	Harry Morey
His Wife	Anita Stewart
Jack Brent	E. K. Lincoln
Lord Dudley	Ralph Ince
Mrs. Wilton's Brother	Robert Gaillard

Two successful young business men convince their wives they have enlisted, thereby taking nights off whenever they feel like it—to drill, of course. They get away with the deception, although some of the perils they face at home are scarcely less harrowing than they would have encountered at the front. Just how they put it over and even enjoy a week's fishing trip when their regiment is supposed to be on the way "somewhere" is cleverly and mirthfully told in the Favorite Film Feature, "A Regiment of Two," which will appear at the Grand Theater.

Harry Bennet and his father-in-law Wilton, are abetted in their perfidious course by Jack Brent, in love with Wilton's daughter, Laura, and who really belongs to the "Fighting 13th." He coaches his elders how to salute, look fierce and do drill stunts about the drawing room whenever the women folks are looking or it is about time to make a get-away. Lord Dudley, also in love with Laura, but a bad loser from the start, is the butt of some clever comedy.

The real fun begins when Bennet and Wilton, togged out in uniforms of 1861 and 1775 back to 1492, with muskets and sidearms, bid their households a tearful farewell and march away with the regiment—as far as the first side street. Then arrive home from the faithful and prospective son-in-law, letters entrusted to him weeks before by the two precious patriots who are fishing "somewhere" in the state.

A show down has to come when the papers print a story of how the "Fighting 13th" is wiped out in a big battle. Bennet and Wilton are stumped for the first time and genuinely upset as to the fate of their own kin in the regiment. They hustle home in their battle togs expecting to be shot at sunrise and not caring much if they are. But it seems they can't lose. The "13th" wasn't wiped out after all. Brent swears they were the heroes of the battle, and takes Laura for so swearing, and their wives, in an ecstacy of patriotic pride, place them on a pedestal of domestic liberty no honest husband could ever dream of attaining.

THE LAST DAYS OF THE LATE CZAR NICHOLAS II. ON THE IMPERIAL THRONE OF ALL THE RUSSIANS

There is Nothing to Sob About, Says Charles E. Russell and Nothing at All Pathetic in the Passing from Grandeur and Power of the Romanoffs.

By CHARLES EDWARD RUSSELL.
(Copyright, 1917, by the Newspaper Enterprise Association.)

The czar, he has gone to Tobolsk—Tobolsk in Siberia. It is a good place for him to go to. Any place in Siberia that is not too luxurious would be a good place for him to go to and not return from.

The Russians are the least vindictive people in the world. Otherwise this czar person would not now be in Tobolsk, nor in any other spot visible to mortal eye.

There is, however, such a thing as justice without any mixture of revenge. To anybody that knows what the czar really was and what monstrous cruelties he stood for and seemed to enjoy, Tobolsk in Siberia seems pretty soft.

Instead of Tobolsk, where he has a pleasant old chateau to live in, a big dose of the Arctic would seem about right.

He sent thousands of men and women to taste of that living death. For the crime of believing in human freedom he condemned them to tortures infinitely beyond anything wild savages ever invented.

Hundreds of his victims went through this same Tobolsk. He went there in a sleeping car and they walked along the weary roads, prodded with bayonets by obscene and filthy guards. He went to live in a chateau and they went to dig in the mines and to live in underground dungeons, loaded with chains until they should rot. Not only men; women and young girls that were no more than children.

As he walks about the grounds of his chateau, Siberia must suggest many things to him. He must have some visions of the long lines of exiles plodding day after day through bleak wildernesses, of the burnings, whippings, outrages and brandings that were done in his name. If he has he must fall on his knees and thank God for his luck and the wonderful forgiving spirit of his countrymen.

The world is plagued with fakes. One of them is the notion, adroitly spread by press agencies, that this was a humane ruler. No one that knows his real record is under that delusion. If providence had not mercifully tempered his natural disposition with much cowardice, he would have been marked for all time as the most cruel of monarchs since Ivan the Terrible.

Some persons in this country express the fear that his removal (in a sleeping car) to Siberia will arouse sympathy for him among the Russian people and such sympathy may bring about a monarchical uprising and restoration.

No fear. When a thing is dead it is dead.

There isn't any sympathy for the czar in Russia. Except for a few gentlemen of his own taste in the causing of human suffering, (most of whom skipped over the border when the revolution broke), nobody in Russia gives a hang what becomes of him.

Well, but before the revolution, you say, the people used to call him the "Little Father" and all that kind of thing, looking upon him with superstitious awe as the earthly representative of deity.

Yes, they did—a generation ago—and before that. This generation had the old formulas on its lips and utter contempt in its heart.

On the very next Sunday after the outbreak of March 13, in every church in Russian the prayers for the czar and the imperial family were omitted. Nobody told the church to omit them. It dropped them instinctively and, I understand, joyously, as who should say, "Well, thank the Lord that bore is gone."

While I was in Petrograd there was running at one of the film theaters an extraordinary picture play on the last days of czarism in Russia. So far as I could discern it was not hostile, it was not friendly; it merely sought to depict things exactly as they were, including Rasputin.

It showed the abdication in the drawing room of the car with which we were so familiar, it showed the czarina as the neurotic she undoubtedly was, and it showed the czar a prisoner and weeping in his own palace.

I suppose you might say it was a pathetic figure. Many Englishmen, who, of course, regret the fall of monachy anywhere, assured me solemnly that the figure was very pathetic and I ought to be much moved by it. The czar went tottering about pulling his mustache (which was the very best thing he did), and evidently dazed by the events about him. Outside the revolutionary crowds marched by with the public and their bands played the once banners that proclaimed the new re- prohibited "Marseillaise." And he could think of nothing to do but pull his mustache and look perplexed.

He tried to walk out of doors and two sentries presented their bayonets at his breast. So he sighed and shook his poor head and pulled his mustache and toddled away upstairs and looked through the window curtains at the marching crowds in the streets.

It might have been as pathetic as Little Eva for all I know, but the point is, that to the crowds that looked at it the thing was not pathetic at all. Whenever I could I went to that play, and I interviewed others that went to it, and I never could discover that any Russians, at least, gave signs of any emotion except a quiet satisfaction.

Certain alien influences have tried hard to work up a lot of sympathy for fallen grandeur and all that. They will never get anywhere in Russia with it.

When the Russians are through with a thing they are through with it. They don't want it hanging around under another name.

You will find now installed in one of the most beautiful and imposing of the many vast palaces of Petrograd, the headquarters of the social revolutionist party, the most powerful and one of the most radical political parties of Russia. The gorgeous halls swarm with clerks, the priceless paintings look down upon long lines of what used to be called the rabble, the ball room resounds with the click of typewriters, where the vanished grand duke used to receive in state come now blacksmiths and farmers to confer about the Russia they rule.

You can accept that as a good example. That is your fallen grandeur and about all the appeal it makes to the common sense of the Russians.

Bitter is the pill, I know, O Cave Dweller. But I guess you will have to take it.

Granted only the defeat of German militarism in this war and your style of grandeur has fallen around the world and will never get on its two feet again.

But the other kind, which is real and consists of rule by the common people for the common good, that has come to stay for all time. And you can be sure it has.

Where Are the Members of the Russian Royal Family?

Czar, czarina, and their childre n are under guard in Tobolsk, Siberia.

Grand Duke Nicholas, deposed fro m his army command by the revolution, is at chair in the Crimea, writin g his memoirs and a monograph "Who was really responsible for the world war?"

Dowager Empress Marie is at Cap e Al-Todor in the Crimea, gardening; also Grand Duchess Olga, sister of the czar, and Grand Duke Michael, who was named as regent on the czar's ad dication, but was forced to renounce it by the provisional government.

The German widow of the Grand D uke Vladimir is kept under surveillance at her country place near Petrograd.

The members of the royal family who are not specifically under guard enjoy a large amount of freedom, but they are not permitted to travel without specific permission from the revolutionary government. None of them is allowed to participate in the coming elections for the constituent assembly, either as a voter or a candidate.

FIRST SWEETHEART WINS AGAINST WORLD

School Chum Holds Great Tenor's Heart in Spite of All Rivals.

(Staff Special.)

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 4.—While hundreds of fascinating women in every large American city openly courted Theo Karle, grand opera tenor, Miss Nora Christoff merely sat back and waited.

Theo Karle.

Her's was the power of first love and old memories against the melting eyes, emotional plaudits and scented mash notes that came as tribute to Karle's remarkable voice.

First love won.

Scores of fair music patrons throughout the country are today nursing heart affliction as the result of Theo Karle's recently announced engagement to his first sweetheart, a Seattle girl.

Nora, with her honey-colored hair, swayed queenly rule in high school here when Karle started out to win fame as an operatic tenor. She could play the piano, was witty, gracious and popular. All the husky school heroes, and some that weren't exactly in the hero class, sighed for her. Karle was among them.

A few years ago he left for New York. Success came quickly. Masters raved over his voice. Producers fought to sign him. Beautiful women plied him with flattering attention. Life was a tenor song.

But he didn't run true to the usual fiction story program by breaking the heart of the girl he left behind him.

A few days ago Karle came home for a vacation—and announced his engagement to Nora of the honey-tinted hair.

He will have a new accompanist on his next grand tour.

Miss Nora Christoff.

STOMACH TROUBLE QUICKLY CURED

Said Chester Wellington, Popular Fort Wayne Salesman.

IRONATED HERBS TRULY "MODERN MEDICINE"

ADVISES FRIENDS.

"When my stomach began to trouble me I commenced taking all sorts of medicines, but without result. My pains increased and after some time I began to get nervous. So bad that it was difficult for me to get along with anyone. And then came sleeplessness. Hours and hours that I lay awake in bed without being able to fall asleep. Since taking Ironated Herbs, with Pepsin (in liquid form), my appetite has improved and I relish everything that I eat. I sleep better and I feel stronger. The gas on my stomach that caused me such intense suffering has entirely disappeared. I have more energy and feel in better health than I have in years."

That's what Mr. Chester Wellington, of this city, said to our demonstrator at Meyer Bros.' Drug Store. "I gladly recommend this Modern Medicine to anyone who is run down in health and in poor and nervous condition and who is in need of thick, red blood."

Many others like Mr. Wellington, who is well known here and has a number of friends acquired as salesman for the National Mill Supply Co., have regained new health and strength through Ironated Herbs. A tired, dragging feeling of the body, sluggish mind and dull memory, intense nervousness, stomach and bowel troubles, poor circulation, imperfect digestion are some of the common symptoms of a run down condition from which many people suffer at this time of the year. Ironated Herbs, with Pepsin, is the remedy that relieves this trouble.

Our demonstrator will gladly explain to you its merits and supply you with a bottle at Meyer Bros.' Drug Store, 902 Calhoun street, Fort Wayne. It is also sold in all Meyer Bros.' other Fort Wayne stores; at Bluffton by Davenport & Ehley; Huntington, A. C. Beckstein; Roanoke, Hacket & Sons; New Haven, H. E. Daily Doings in South Wood Park

Labor Day offered an excellent opportunity for many to see South Wood Park for the first time. The beauty of the woods and the "lay" of the open portions won many to the place as an ideal spot to live. "No wonder," observed one woman, "that so many have chosen to build here. To see the place is to fall in love with it."

MANY ATTRACTIVE HOME SITES IN OPEN PORTIONS

While many of the reports of sales of property in South Wood Park have told of the selection of wooded lots, it should be remembered that in each of the three large sections of the subdivision there are open lots which permit of landscape and vegetable gardening to suit the individual taste of the purchaser. These, like all of the wooded lots, have the advantage of paving, parkways, sidewilks, ornamental boulevard lighting, sewers, gas and water, and where trees are needed in the parkway they will be supplied. Hilgeman & Schaaf are ready at all times to answer all inquiries concerning the development of the properties.

SOUTH WOOD PARK A VISION OF THE FUTURE

Many who visit South Wood Park and become thoroughly informed concerning the street plan and the complete line of improvements to be made have given expression to glowing pictures of the future. "Just think," said one, "what a wonderful place this will be five years from now!" "Yes," observed his friend, "and it will grow more beautiful and valuable with the passing of the years."

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1917.

TO THE COLORS.

The first of the young men selected for the national army enter the federal service today. The proportion of them that now are summoned to the whole number selected is small, but as symbolizing the answer of young manhood to the call of the country for men to fight for freedom the spectacle afforded throughout the nation is impressive and significant and is invested with a sentiment and exhales a spirit that are good for all who in patriotism and loyalty are bound to the high and imperative cause of the republic.

As the days go on, more and more of the men selected for service will be summoned from their homes to enter the great cantonments where they are to be trained for the heroic tasks of the soldier. In due time they will be sent over seas to join the world's great armies of freedom and unite with them to put down the war and make an end of the threat that for three years has hung a dark and ever darkening cloud over the world's liberties. It is no life of softness and ease to which the American young men go away from their homes to enter. Their duties in the big training camps will be constant and severe—such duties as will make soldiers of them who can give good answer for their country's honor and security. Their services abroad will be just what the whole world knows today of life in the trenches and hard fighting on the battle fronts.

That these young men who go out for duty with the first great national army and the young men who from time to time go out for duty with other great national armies that the government must levy to perform its whole part in the war will make good soldiers and furnish heroic account of themselves under all circumstances and in the face of every foe cannot be doubted by any one who knows the history of his country in war. Americans are peace-loving and have no fondness for armed strife, but in all their wars they have shown that they are brave and stubborn fighters—as all men are who never fight except for their own liberties or the freedom of others. And of all America's wars there has been none in which liberty was not the stake, in which freedom was not the goal.

So go these young men to service under the flag to uphold their country's honor, to make its rights secure, to make the world safe for this democracy and all democracy. So go they, and with the prayers and tears of loved ones at home and with acclaim and the godspeed of one hundred millions of people who know that we are in this great task righteously and from no provocation or seeking of our own.

TIME HAS COME, INDEED.

In the course of his statement purposed to make clear his courses against the "peace council" just run out of Illinois and his policies toward future incitements to disloyalty, Governor Lowden, of that state, says:

The time has come in Illinois and elsewhere to find out who are for the government and who are against it. This is the only classification which matters at the present time.

If, as some suggest, the people generally are disloyal to their government, let us know it and let us know it now. So far as I am concerned I propose to put it to the test, and that test is that those who are not for the government are against it.

In my judgment, we are staking all we are, or all we hope for our children, upon the issue of this war. We cannot expect to win unless the people generally are back of us. If they are not, all is lost. But let us know the worst and let us know it now.

We believe that all American citizens who are for their government and country in this critical period will agree with Governor Lowden that "the time has come to find out who are for the government and who are against it." The day went by some months since when the question of war or no war could be debated. We are in war and loyalty imposes upon all Americans the duty to sustain the government and do what each and all of us may find it possible to do to win the war. Those who are not for America and do not want the country to win in the war should be found out now and be known for what they are by the sentiments they cherish, by the sympathies they sustain and by the things that they do.

It does not matter in what guise treason goes about nor in what forms of speech or with what pretexts sedition articulates its hateful disloyalties. The thing is to determine fairly and to undoubting conclusions that what seems to be treason of a verity is treason and that has the sound of sedition is of truth sedition and then make an end of them whenever and wherever they can be brought up. Personal liberty is a great vouchsafement of democracy and freedom of speech one of the most precious of all our heritages, but neither of these can be made to embody any meaning of right to utter sedition, to practice or promote treason or to claim immunity for disloyalty to the country when its life is in peril and its men are going forth to war to fight for it.

There are a great many citizens of this country who are sincerely devoted to the principles and doctrines that are in a general way comprehended by the term "pacifism." Most of these are now not only silent as to their antipathies to war, but are earnestly, actively and usefully supporting the government to the utmost of ability and with loyalty that is above question. These are Americans first; doctrinaries afterward. The "peace council" that has been moving from state to state and city to city in recent days to find a place of refuge for its consultations may embrace in its association some persons who are "conscientious objectors" in whom there is no guile and some "pacifists" in whom are blended all the mildnesses and mercies of the All-Benign, but they are cursed with a generally bad company and financed, as the belief is, with hostile gold.

The "peace council" as a body is not moving with any idea whatever that its activities and its propaganda can have the least effect in abating this nation's purpose in the war or do the smallest service in hastening peace. The design is and the effect will be to hamper and embarrass the government. It is no secret whence the inspiration and the means to forward these purposes come. Collapsed, invaded and imperiled Russia casts a prophetic picture of what the United States will become as a factor in this war if the flocks of kaiserist mercenaries and aggressive sympathizers in this land can bring it about.

The government, burdened by the paramount duty of protecting the nation and winning the war cannot temporize long with the agencies and agents of disloyalty, sedition and treason. The enemies within are more to be feared than the enemies without. Of solemn truth, "the time has come," as Governor Lowden declares, "to find out who are for the government and who are against it."

NOT YET.

The peace doves that contrived to meet briefly in Chicago say they accomplished their purposes. Hardly, have they done that. A mere meeting, a bit of spouting, the adoption of resolutions and the election of officers was not the purpose of that difficult conclave. It remains to be seen if the people of the United States of America will stand for the real object of that meeting. If they will not, then there was no accomplishment in Chicago and will be no place else. If these obstructionists of the government in the war shall be able to withhold from the American armies now abroad and going abroad one ounce of food, one round of ammunition, one word of cheer, one degree of support of any kind; if they shall be able to delay by so much as an hour one American ship freighted with susteuance for our boys in Europe, or diminish by so much as a dollar the provisions of congress for the war or of the people for the Red Cross; if they shall be able to expose one American vessel to a German torpedo or in any way or in any wise add by so little as one life or one penny to our cost in the war, then the disloyalty of which they boast was accomplished. But that has not yet been; and the prayer is and must continue that it may never be.

And since the question is raised, we suggest that each soldier "standing on his own bottom," contemplates a difficult feat as well as a rather unmilitary attitude. It's the traditional and conventional thing for a tub, as everybody knows and will admit, but offers anatomical difficulties and compromises of dignity that forthright and upstanding American soldiers will not care to go in for.

It may take a few weeks to convince the coal barons here and there that congress was not doing an idle thing when it passed the food and fuel control laws and that the administration is not bluffing in its measures to enforce them. But they will be convinced.

We Must Win This War to Escape Another

BY MILTON BRONNER.

"This agony must not be gone through with again," is the way President Wilson wrote of the war in his reply to Pope Benedict's peace proposal.

In other words, he meant that America is in a war against future wars.

He wrote advisedly, because he knew that while German agencies, taking advantage of the pope's proposals, were flying peace-kites, every thought of the ruling class of Germany and of the historians and publicists and leading journalists is already being given to "the next war," in which they are going to remedy the mistakes they made in the present one and win the fruits of which they have been balked by the present coalition against them.

The frankness with which this purpose is avowed is astonishing. There is no attempt at concealments.

Not only do responsible men frankly give their reasons for holding on to Belgium and parts of Russia, but they dream of a great empire in Africa and outposts in the Pacific, so that it will never again be possible to pen up their fleets in the harbors of Germany proper.

James W. Gerard, late ambassador to Germany, has recently related how the kaiser showed great bitterness against this country, and repeatedly said: "America better look out after this war," and "I shall stand no nonsense from America after the war."

About the same time, Admiral von Tirpitz, originator of German frightfulness with submarines, was quoted in the Frankfurt Zeitung as saying that the subs would force Great Britain to surrender and that the German fleet would then exact from America indemnities enough to pay the whole cost of the war.

In Germany it is a case of like father, like son. Not long before the war began, the crown prince expressed the following savage sentiment:

"Only by our own good sword can we get our place in the sun. War is a part of the divine order of things. How easily it might come about that Germany should go under in a cosmopolitanism if we ever lose sight of the fact that war is necessary for the race, society and the state."

General von Bissing, who as governor general of Belgium was responsible for much Prussian deviltry there, left a memorandum which cynically avows the purpose to have another war. Said he:

"The strategic aim of this present war is to gain room for the concentration and advance of the German armies in the new war against England and France.

"Without the possession of Belgium it is doubtful if the new war could be prosecuted on an offensive basis.

"German interests absolutely require the absorption of all present Belgium. This absorption must not be discussed at any peace conference. Let only the right of conquest speak. Belgium industry must not be killed entirely, but is to be subjected to such conditions as will permit Germany to use it as a lever for fixing prices in the world markets in German interests. Belgium's coal supply must be used to give Germany an economic monopoly on the continent."

Lieutenant General von Stein, Prussian minister of war, with a glance at our growing army, said not long ago in the reichstag:

"I do not foster the hope that international peace will prevail after the war. So long as the interests of states clash there will be wars. The prospects for uninterrupted peace are not very brilliant when two great nations (America and Great Britain) which previously did not think of maintaining big armies, are beginning to create them."

Count zu Reventlow, one of the leading military critics of Germany, in a recent address at an annexation meeting, said:

"Before the war we had freedom of the seas in a certain sense. But what we mean by freedom of the seas is not mere peace-time freedom for trade in all seas. What we need and must have is such a degree of German naval power as shall guarantee its immediate superiority over possible enemies on the seas at the beginning of hostilities. That is why the Belgian coast is necessary to us."

Dr. Diederich Hahn, leader of the agrarian junker party and member of the reichstag, recently said in a speech:

"Has monarchial Germany failed? No. It stands brilliantly before the world as a conqueror. We are today in the sight of peace. May it be a real German peace. We hope those who govern us will realize our strength, will keep their nerve, and continue to face the enemy as conquerors, not as cowards. Let us keep to Bismarck's policy; Germany's future is a future of battle and conquest. We must have fresh territories for emigration in the east. We must not return any lands we have conquered."

This was echoed by Paul Fuhrmann, member of the reichstag and leader of the National Liberal party, in a speech at Potsdam in which he argued in favor of annexation of Courland and Lithuania in the east; annexation, with political, military and economic control, of Belgium, and retention of the line of the Meuse, as affording a vantage ground for a future attack on France.

Count Westarp, one of the conservative leaders, speaking in the reichstag, said: "We must also secure ourselves for the future. New sacrifices require new compensations, new demands. A sufficient war indemnity is necessary to arm against the dangers of the future."

Gen. Groener, head of the war bureau of the Prussian ministry of war, recently glorified the mailed fist while talking to representatives of the iron industries at Duesseldorf:

"You are providing the fist with its mail of steel. May it be granted to you and the whole German industry, not only now and until the end of the war, but until the most distant future, to provide the German people with what it needs in order to be able to defend itself. Give the German fist its mail, so that the mailed fist can always strike hard."

Dr. Hugo Groening in an article in the important Weimar Zeitung, advocated the permanent retention of all conquered territory, and as much more as may be necessary to safeguard Germany's future. He expressed the opinion it would be worse than high treason for the rulers of Germany to deviate from the policy considered necessary by Hindenburg, Ludendorff and Bissing for strategical purposes.

Seventy-eight leading professors of Bonn university, from which the kaiser and the crown prince were graduated, recently signed a manifesto setting forth that as the kaiser's peace offer had been rejected, the hope was firm that when the ruler came to sign a peace with the conquered allies, he would see to it that justice was done to the geographical and military necessities of Germany.

Friedrich Naumann, German journalist, in "Mittel-Europa," has nothing but sneers for the peace idea. Says he:

"The moment the present war comes to an end, preparation will have to begin for the next war, not only by armaments, but also by the storage of grain and raw materials on a scale hitherto undreamed of. The system of fortified trenches will become a permanent institution.

There will come into existence a new system of Roman and Chinese walls, made of earth and barbed wire. One of them will stretch from the lower Rhine to the Alps, another from Courland to either the right or left of Rumania."

The Germans recognize that one of their weaknesses in the beginning of the present war was that they did not have coaling stations and ports of any size in the Pacific or on the West African coast, and that they did not have swift cruisers, commerce destroyers, scattered around. In the next war they want to be prepared to harass both English and American commerce. Therefore, publicists insist, Germany must not allow herself to be shorn of any colonial possessions. For instance, the explorer and diplomat, Prof. Paul Preuss, writing in the Hamburg Nachrichten, says:

"In the far east, in the Pacific ocean, we have for three decades possessed a rising little colonial empire, and it would be an unforgivable and irreparable mistake to withdraw from the Pacific merely because the great settlement of interests has begun among three great powers—Japan, North America and England-Australia—and because we shall have to fear that at some later date we should come into conflict with those powers."

Germans are also allowing themselves to be intrigued by grandiose dreams of a vast African empire.

So far few have spoken of taking territory in South America, because they do not wish to alienate great neutrals like Argentina and Chile, but the threat to the western hemisphere is plain in their vision of a German Africa supplying raw materials, food, munitions, fighting black men and safe harbors for ships in a contest between Germany and any other nation.

Franz Kolbe, in "Deutche Politik," calmly assumes that not only will all the German African colonies be retained, but that, in addition, the Belgian Congo, French equatorial Africa and Portuguese Angola will be taken.

These possessions will not only have adequate garrisons, but also munition factories. Germany will have naval bases at Dar-es-Salaam, the mouth of the Cameroon estuary, the mouth of the Congo, on the coast of Angola and on the coast of southwest Africa.

Explaining the beauties of this, Kolbe writes:

"As soon as in a new war the Suez canal is closed against England by the Turks, all traffic between England and India, Australia and South Africa must go round the Cape of Good Hope. But all the ships must pass the coast of German Central Africa. It would be impossible for England any longer to concentrate her whole fleet in the North sea and to menace Germany. She would be compelled to station a considerable fleet in South Africa for the protection of her trade."

Prof. Hans Delbrueck, historian, writing in the sober "Preussische Jahrbuecher," is as enthusiastic as Kolbe. He says:

"All these territories together have over 100,000,000 inhabitants. United in a single ownership and with their various characteristics suplementing one another, they offer simply immeasurable prospects. They are rich in possibilities of settlement and trade and rich in men who can work and also be used in war."

That the present peace proposals are deceptive is recognized by Prof. Foerster, who, writing in the New Zurich Zeitung, says of the annexationists:

"They advance these demands as strategic necessities, they demand securities for Germany without the slightest regard for the state of Europe which these securities would create.

"They are thus declaring themselves in favor of the continuance of the state of armed peace as it has hitherto existed; that is to say, for the permanent menace of war. And the peace which they propose would in reality be nothing but a truce.

"This sort of peace is precisely the kind that the whole world now arrayed against Germany rejects with desperate determination."

Many quotations concerning big indemnities could be given, but this one is typical of them all, and holds out a pleasant prospect for the United States if Germany is winner. It is from the influential and semi-official Cologne Volkszeitung:

"We are entitled to a thumping war indemnity and we do not care who pays it.

"Those states which have sacrificed immense sums will be unable to pay it.

"Therefore, America, which has earned thousands of millions through ammunitions and supplies, will have to unbutton its pockets."

President Wilson, in his note to the pope, says the civilized nations cannot accept the word of Germany's rulers, because they have no respect for treaties or covenants. He might have gone further and said that this was a German failing. The semi-official Taegliche Rundschau of Berlin, quoting the proverb, "Hold tight to what you have and take what you can get," goes on:

"These words embrace the whole peace program of the German people. It is precisely because German overseas work will have to reckon after the war with a steel wall of hatred and with the barbed wire of impassible import and export duties, that the need of German colonial possessions will be the more urgently felt, so that in no circumstances may the colonial idea be allowed to emerge in any degree weakened from this war.

"In the oversea world the German nation must stand on its own independent bottom.

"Therefore, immediately peace is concluded, the German authorities without troubling themselves about agreements and conventions, when these are found to hamper the national requirements, must devote themselves wholeheartedly to the policy of take."

To this the powerful Hamburg Fremdenblatt agrees, but says:

"First of all, however, we must assure our preponderance in Europe. That accomplished, we shall urge our authorities to establish by any and every means within their power and without the slightest regard or consideration for anybody, our dominion over the seas."

We who must serve in routine ways at home
Are somehow envious of you who go
To fit yourselves for war against the foe
Who challenge the world across the foam;

For yours is high adventure, you will face
Great moments; you will dare the rumbling guns,
Amid the roar tumultuous that stuns,
While men lock arms in murderous embrace.

You will know war's tremendous heights of glory.
You will know war's stupendous depths of pain.
You will take part in all the rack and strain
Of earth's remaking—you will LIVE the story

That we shall only READ. And while we fret
At humdrum tasks that have no thrill at all,
You who have answered to the nation's call
Will do great deeds that men shall not forget.

You will fight nobly, all your hearts afire
With battle's exaltation flaming high,
And if grim fate decrees that you must die
You will have known the death brave men desire.

So we who serve in mine and farm and mart
Wish you "godspeed" and envy you your part.

SOCIETY

About two dozen young women seated themselves at the beautifully appointed tables at a luncheon given by Miss Marie Landenberger today, following a morning spent in knitting, games and visiting, just as any guest felt like doing. There were three honor guests for whom Miss Landenberger entertained at her home in Meyer avenue. Mrs. Clifford Bornschein, Mrs. Maurice O'Connor, Miss Mildred Bowser and quite naturally the gods of love and marriage gazed upon the scene with considerable satisfaction and perked up their ears to listen to a hint of a future consummation of nuptial joy. Miss Landenberger had made exceedingly lovely plans and expressed them in yellow coloring, from the deep orange of marigolds and golden glow through the orange reds of coreopsis and nasturtiums with pale yellow nut baskets and daintily designed place cards, also in yellow tints. The affair was exceedingly charming in every way.

An unique pre-nuptial party was given on Saturday evening by Mrs. L. A. Dilling, of Weisser Park avenue, in honor of Miss Maude Cramer, who is to be married in September. It was a shower party of linen gifts, but the arrangement was a great surprise to all of the company and for a warm evening was particularly refreshing as it was a snow shower. The guests were asked to the diningroom and the table appeared to be heaped with snow while puffs of snow and icycles hung from or lay about the electrolier and other places, looking so realistic that everyone actually shivered. But the digging of the gifts from the "snowdrift" was Miss Cramer's task and when she took the toy shovel which her hostess handed to her and began to dig it was fun but not rapid, so the company had many a laugh before the pretty things were brought to light. In another room afterwards Mrs Dilling served an ice and frosting—on cake. There were twenty young girls present. A patriotic feature of the evening, which was by no means the least important, was the entrance of the Goddess of Liberty and Uncle Sam, who sang "Hurrah for Uncle Sam" and afterwards an original song written by Mrs. Dilling. The children were Ronna Diehl and Ruth Young.

Freeman-Mowrey.

A small but very pretty wedding took place on Tuesday morning at the home of Mrs. Julia Mowrey, 233 Lillie street, when her daughter, Miss Lavena Mowrey, and Mr. Howard Freeman, a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Freeman, of Detroit, Mich., were married. Rev. U. S. A. Bridge, pastor of Simpson M. E. church, officiated at the ceremony at 10:30 o'clock. Palms and jardinieres of pink and white gladioli and hydrangea blossoms decorated the parlor where the marriage service was read. Immediate relatives and a very few friends were present. The bride wore her traveling costume, a dark blue gabardine with white georgette crepe blouse, and when later she left on her trip she donned her jacket and a new fall hat of black beaver with blue feather trimming and a corsage of bride roses. A wedding breakfast was served after the bride and groom had received the congratulations of the company. The table was decorated with pink and white snapdragon blossoms. Shortly after noon the bride and groom left for Lake James for a two weeks' honeymoon trip, more or less, laden with rice with which they were showered as they left the house. On their return here the bride and groom will go to housekeeping in their own home in Thompson avenue, which has been completely fitted for them. A FALL FASHION SLATE FOR THE LITTLE ONES

This Fall Fashion Lets the High School Girl Have Her Way.

BY BETTY BROWN.

Rather fussy clothes are dear to the heart of a certain type of high school girl. This year fashion humors her by sketching a dress with an overskirt, and a sash, and huge pockets as well.

She can do her hair in a bun at the back of her head, if she likes, but the French heels which she loves are not always obtainable when a sensible mother is the censor.

AT THE PALACE

Clever Little Fantasy With Girls at the New Palace.

The clever little fantasy all dressed up with a bouquet of American beauties, "Temptation" is being presented by George Damerel with Bobby Vail in the absurdly funny role of the sophisticated cabby. The little sketch is filled to the brim with catchy singing and dancing numbers while the lines are witty to a degree. It deals with the devil's attempt to get a blase New York youth to succumb to a worldly woman only to have him spurn her for the exotic blandishments of a mermaid.

The Quixie Quintette of jazzbo instrumentalists and close harmonists provide some unique music as a closing number of this holiday bill. Among the others on it are the DeBrough Sisters in their foolish Frenchy tricks and illusions; some of them new and some of them just dresed up but al of them done in a brand new way; Ed and Jack Smith, two suave polished boys in songs, dances and chatter; Dock O'Neill, the nut monologuist, and Cooper and Anderson, a couple of joyful dark spots in laughable banter and song.

PROCEEDS OF SOCIAL TO HELP SOLDIERS

In order to assist the local chapter of the W. C. T. U., which is making comfort bags for all Fort Wayne and Allen county soldiers, the Anthony Wayne lodge of the Modern Americans will give a social at Swinney park Wednesday evening.

More than 2,000 tickets have already been sold and it is expected that many more will help out in the movement, which is designed to assist the soldiers. Rev. C. Claud Travis will give a patriotic address during the course of the evening and Miss Anna Philley will give readings. The Sahara quartet will help to entertain those who attend, together with several other features planned.

Owing to the size of the project undertaken by the W. C. T. U. some assistance in matters of finances has been found necessary. When Knocked Down by Jitney in Alighting from a Street Car.

In alighting from a street car, Mrs. Catherine Vogel, 533 Purman street, was knocked to the street by a jitney and while not seriously hurt she does regret the loss of her wedding ring. The ring was in her purse which flew open, permitting the contents to fall out. She was unable to find the ring, which she values very highly.

DO YOU EXPECT TO BE A MILITARY BRIDE? READ THE LATEST ABOUT MILITARY WEDDINGS

Lieutenant Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor and Bridesmaid.

(By WINONA WILCOX.)
(Staff Special.)

Chicago, Sept. 3.—The military wedding holds the attention of every September bride. The smartest society war wedding of the fall took place at Lasalle, Ill., when Lieutenant Wayne Chatfield-Taylor married Miss Adele Blow. The wedding was at noon under the towering trees of Deer Park, the magnificent estate of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Preston Blow.

War-brides-to-be will like to know that fashion in war weddings, as set by society people, decrees the usual conventional wedding gown for the bride, and filmy colored dresses for her maids.

But the groom always appears in his uniform, no matter what the hour of the wedding may be. And if any of the ushers are army men, there is a mixture of service uniforms with formal civilian dress.

Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor wore a gown of cream charmeuse made in long princess lines, with a square cut neck, long tulle sleeves, a tunic front and back or rare old rose point lace, a girdle of pearls, and a court train falling from the shoulders and embroidered in silk. The veil was bound closely above the brow with a delicate wreath of orange blossoms.

Her bridesmaids made a gorgeous setting fo rthe bride, in frocks of deep apricot colored organdie, and large cream tulle hats tied with streamers of vivid blue tulle ribbon. They carried bouquets of field flowers.

Among informal items of the most fashionable war weddings is the appearance of the family's favorite dog, in this case a magnificent setter.

AFRICAN COMRADE SAYS SLEEPING SICKNESS MADE SIR ROGER CASEMENT PLAY THE TRAITOR

Famous Missionary Says That Jungle Poison Caused Mental Lapse Which Made Sir Roger Easy Prey for German Intrigue.

(By MARK LARKIN.)
(Staff Correspondence.)

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 4.—Did the fatal sleeping sickness of Africa make Sir Roger Casement a traitor to England?

Rev. Joseph Clark, famous missionary and once Casement's close friend in the Congo jungle, claims that it did. Had it not been for the bites of Tse-Tse flies, Clark claims, Sir Roger would never have been hung in the Tower of London.

The Tse-Tse fly is the terror of the Congo.

It is the carrier of the dread sleeping sickness. And Roger Casement had been bitten countless times by these deadly insects when he was investigating the "rubber reign" atrocities in the Congo Free State.

These atrocities are now a matter of history. Black slew black, or burned him, cut off his hands, ears, legs and arms, or gouged out his eyes—all because King Leopold II of Belgium wanted rubber which the natives could not produce fast enough. It was Roger Casement's report on conditions that settled the matter in the mind of the British—and which brought about the end of this reign of terror in the jungle.

"He came to Africa first as the representative of a commercial company," said the Reverend Clark. "With Herbert Ward, another Britisher, he had charge of the shipping of heavy machinery from Matadi to Stanley Pool. This, of course, was before the railroad. It was indeed arduous work, the transporting of machinery at that time. He often visited my station, and we came to be good friends.

"I never knew a man more loyal to Britain in those days than he. He was a great lover of animals; I'll never forget the day my goat beat his dog.

"His first official position was at old Calabar, headquarters of the British administration in the Southern Nigeria colony. He was head of the postal department there. Later he was appointed consul to the Congo Free State, and it was then that he turned in his memorable report of conditions under King Leopold's rule.

"He was located at Boma, on the Congo, sixty miles from the coast. His excursions into the deep interior brought him the Tse-Tse bites which later changed his character. During his long journeys he was many days in districts badly infested with sleeping sickness and the dangerous purveyors of it. He was bitten hundreds of times—and thought no more of it than a person ordinarily thinks of a mosquito bite. Nevertheless he was inoculated at that time with the disease.

"In those days Casement was not a knight. He was just Roger Casement. Knighthood came after he had investigated other labor atrocities in the South American rubber forests."

Contrary to common belief, according to Clark, a person affected with sleeping sickness may not show symptoms of the disease until years afterward. And those affected do not always develop the queer sleepiness that gives this peculiar malady its name. Sometimes they become victims of insomnia, often followed by a homicidal mania which leads to death. But in any form sleeping sickness is almost always fatal.

"French medical experts, who have made a close study of the disease," says the famous missionary, "claim that one of its first symptoms is change of character in the victim. The other developments come on gradually."

"Knowing Sir Roger Casement as I did, I am convinced that he was in the first stages of sleeping sickness when he was tried and subsequently executed. About five years ago he wrote me that he had severed connection with the British government. And when he went to Germany to raise a rebellious Irish regiment in the prison camps there, he was not, as many people think, associated with the English. His absolute change of character, manifested in his actions, was a symptom of the disease he contracted in Africa. Else he would never have gone on that fatal trip to the Irish coast in a German submarine. Roger Casement was not a traitor; he was sick and the Germans made a tool of him."

"If casement had the third stage, or Sleeping Sickness symptoms it is quite possible that it did affect his mental and moral condition. However, from what I have heard of his activities I would doubt that he was suffering from the fatal third stage.

"But even had he been afflicted with the first stages of the sickness it might account for his peculiar mental state.

* * * * * * * * * * *

"There are three stages in this baffling malady. The victim can recover from the first two, where the parasite deposited by the TseTse fly is only in the blood, but the third stage where the parasite has reached the spinal cord and the brain has been affected is always fatal within a short time.

"The symptoms are tremors of hand and tongue, fever, skin eruptions, anaemia and general weakness.

"The first stages are seldom outwardly manifest, so that the victim may not know he is suffering from the malady."—Dr. Herbert Gunn, of San Francisco, foremost authority on Tse-Tse fly and Sleeping Sickness.

Sir Roger Casement and his friend, Dr. Joseph Clark, in the Congo jungle where the latter says Casement contracted the Sleeping Sickness. Casement is directly under the proboscis of the enlarged Tse-Tse fly, and Clark is at his left.

Warren Smitley Gets in Way of Speeding Auto—One Injured.

New Haven, Ind., Sept. 4.—M. V. Mumma and a man giving his name as Giddeon, driving a large touring car with a Missouri license tag, crashed into a car driven by Warren Smitley, of Fort Wayne, one mile west of New Haven on the Lincoln highway at 4:55 o'clock Monday afternoon throwing the Smitley car against a telephone pole and badly damaging both cars. Fortunately but one of the occupants was injured, Mr. Mumma receiving a number of cuts about the hands and knees, requiring the services of a physician. Both cars met at the intersection of the Lincoln highway and the Hartzell road, where the point of view is entirely shut off at this point by a large number of trees. It is said the Missouri car was traveling at a rapid rate of speed and could not be stopped by the driver as he saw Mr. Smitley approach the highway, who, it is said, was traveling slowly

FIREMEN'S PICNIC SUCCESS.

Auto Chemical Delayed on Account of Government Work.

Although the city firemen were greatly disappointed on account of the auto chemical truck having failed to arrive due to the fact that government work had caused the order of the New Haven truck to be laid aside for a short time, the picnic given in Wabash park Monday was a huge success, and the firemen and Citizens' band are to be complimented on their entertaining program given. Mr. Urbine was very entertaining in his numerous tricks and should be given credit for the services he rendered in such a good cause.

Miss Martha Werling was the lucky contestant in winning the handsome gold wrist watch in the popular girls contest and also receives the honor of christening the new chemical truck upon its arrival, which is expected this week. Miss Helen Girardot was a close second, having won the handsome lavellier, and Miss Delrois Schuckman was third.

SERBIAN GIRLS ARE STOLEN FOR HAREMS

Ten Thousand of Them Kidnaped and Carried to Constantinople.

London, Aug. 15.—Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Ten thousand Serbian girls from 10 to 14 years old have been kidnaped and deported from Serbia to the harems of Constantinople, to Bulgaria and Asia Minor, says advices received by M. Paitch, the Serbian premier, who is now in London.

"These deportations," said M. Pasitch, "have been going on since February, 1916, but the number was very limited until a few weeks ago. Now it has been systematized under Bulgarian controllers, and it is impossible to predict how far it will go.

"Eight thousand girls have been sent to Constantinople, and two thousand more to Bulgaria and Asia Minor. Prisoners whom we have taken on the Salonika front tell us that the traffic in our girlhood has grown to be a byword in Bulgaria and Turkey.

"The girls are kidnaped and taken away secretly, particularly from the smaller villages, until at present dozens of small towns have been quite denuded of the young female population.

"I do not think that the Turks are the actual instigators of this gross violation of the rules of civilized warfare. All our information indicates that the Bulgarians are the prime movers and the Turks only incidental beneficiaries of the traffic.

"The girls are too young to be of any use for laboring purposes, besides, neither Turkey nor Bulgaria is seriously handicapped for labor, and in Turkey the use of young women for outdoor work is practically unknown.

"It is very difficult for us to do anything to help these unfortunate victims. Our affairs in Constantinople and Sofila are now in the hands of the Dutch government, and we have made the most earnest possible protests through that government. But you know how difficult it is to get any action from Turkey. We have suggested, for instance, that some scheme of repatriation be put into effect immediately, that the girls should be sent back to some place beyond the war zone. But I fear it is too late to save them, and that we can only wait in patience until peace comes."

OH MAN! YOU CAN BUY REAL OYSTERS

No More Buckets of Sea Water, Orders State Food Officer.

Oysters will be oysters in the future and in the grocer's dipper, according to the latest order from H. E. Barnard, head of the state food commission. A message to B. C. Tolan, city sealer, Tuesday morning, ordered the city officer to warn oyster dealers of Fort Wayne that in the future the genus ostrea will be sold by dry weight.

Water cannot be placed in buckets of the sea food in the future, Barnard writes. He claims to have the hearty co-operation of the Oyster Dealers' Association of North America in his effort.

"Instruct all oyster dealers that they must sell by dry measure in the future and that oysters must be without water. Take all liquid measures and if any dealer uses them after being warned, prosecute him for the offense," orders Barnard.

City Sealer Tolan will take up his task of notifying oyster dealers of the city of the change in the oyster sale system, later in the week. There will be much loss to grocers and others who have purchased a large supply of liquid measures for selling the oysters.

When you see this magnificent display you will be impressed that this is more than a Fur Sale. It is service, the sort of service that distinguishes the Frank Institution and makes it stand out as a different kind of a store.

Fur Coats that Women love; luxurious, fashionable, perfectly made. To get them at such little prices is an opportunity that is seldom offered.

You agree to pay a price that every one knows will be far less than the prices of the fur when cold weather comes and furs are in great demand.

This is a service and an opportunity that will amaze Fort Wayne.

We know that Fort Wayne women will have beautiful, luxurious furs, no matter what happens; for as long as women have beauty they will have lovely furs to enhance it.

So we have prepared the greatest stock of furs in our history. We have gathered twenty-five imported models of wraps and coats to sell at $225.00 to $1,000.00.

We saw them all in showrooms at factory, wondrous in color and line and soft beauty. Furs that make you think of queens and princesses. Each model is made from a canvas pattern. Not one will be duplicated in Fort Wayne. All are to be sold at a very great saving.

Here you may choose from the fullest, largest assortment of the year. Regal wraps that will never be duplicated in Fort Wayne, scores of soft, subtle Hudson Seal Coats. Beautiful Scarfs, Muffs.

Simply choose the fur you want tomorrow and we will lay it away for you until November 1st without requiring a cent to bind the deal.

Every Fur Coat, Scarf or Muff will be locked away in our modern moth proof rooms; ready for you when you want it. Soft, radiant, luxurious. Each piece is guaranteed exactly as if it were sold from regular stock at regular prices; you take no chance whatever.

You will understand why they can be sold for so little, when you understand that every fur is made from pelts purchased at last year's prices, much lower than present ones. Then, of course, there is a large saving in buying now rather than in the height of the season.

You are invited to the sale and display of furs whether or not you wish to buy.

You will enjoy seeing them and you will be better able to choose when you are ready to buy because of having seen this wonderful collection.

WORD TO MOVE NOT RECEIVED

Orders from Central Department Not Yet Here.

LOCAL COMPANIES READY TO LEAVE

Notice is Expected With Vouchers for Troop Transportation.

Although orders had been given to the central department for the mobilization of the First Indiana regiment, of which Company E, infantry, and Company B, signal corps, are members, no word had been received by officers in charge of the two companies to leave at 2 o'clock Tuesday. Members of both companies are anxiously expecting the call and practically everything is in readiness for their departure. Company B received notice to be ready to move within forty-eight hours one day last week, but since that time have received no further orders.

Captain McAdams, of Company E, said that he had received no orders to leave and that although it was no doubt true that the orders had been given to the central department, it was probable that official word had been mailed here instead of being telegraphed. This course might have been followed, he said, inasmuch as the local company would have to await receipt of transportation vouchers, and it is expected that the notice of departure will be accompanied by the transportation vouchers.

It was thought possible that orders to move might come late Tuesday, but not regarded probable before Wednesday.

ONE MORE YEAR

And War With Germany Will Be Over Says Sergeant Seretto.

Sergeant Edward Seretto, of the Twenty-third battery of the Eighty-fifth artillery of the French army, who is a patient at the Hope hospital, predicts that the world war will not be over until next September.

"The Germans fight a losing fight and know it," he says. "The old spirit of their men who considered themselves invincible when they overwhelmed Belgium on the road to Paris, is broken. They fight on because they must, but the German soldiers are surrendering in ever increasing numbers, something that was unknown in the early days of the war. Now with America in, there can be but one conclusion."

Sergeant Seretto sailed from England three weeks ago. He reached New York in safety and started across the continent to see his wife and little daughter whom he left in San Francisco two years ago when he went back to serve France against her enemies. He collapsed on a westbound Pennsylvania train and a fellow traveler, who knew Fred J. Thieme, of this city, wired the circumstances to his friend here and arrangements were made to have him stop off here for medical treatment. He had been at the hospital for several days and having regained his strength left Monday to continue his journey to San Francisco. He claims that the reported atrocities committed by the Germans have not been exaggerated.

DISCHARGED MEN

Are Given the Right to Volunteer in the United States Army.

Maj. Thomas Ryan, in charge of the Fort Wayne recruiting station, which includes practically all of northern Indiana, has received information from Washington, D C., to the effect that men who have been discharged or exempted for any reason by the district selective boards have the right to volunteer. Any person, however, attempting to enlist who has not been discharged or exempted by the selection board will be subject to arrest. Major Ryan states that a number of men who have not been exempted have tried to enlist and some have gotten by the local office only to be apprehended later. Fifteen men enlisted for service on Labor day.

SUPPLY COMPANIES

Are Being Organized for the New National Army.

Eight supply companies are now being organized for the national armies, Maj. Thomas Ryan, of the Fort Wayne recruiting station, announces. Members of these companies will be engaged principally as checkers along the line of communication from the main base up to the advance base way back of the firing line. The eight supply companies are being formed for service in France and the service will be absolutely non-combatant.

Recruits are also wanted for twenty-three remount depots that will be established in different parts of the United States. Blacksmiths, horseshoers, stenographers, clerks and men without any experience or trade whatever are wanted. The men sent to these depots will probably not be sent to France. Major Ryan says that here is a splendid opportunity for those who are members of religious organizations opposed to war

CARD FORM GILLIE.

Sheriff George Gillie is in receipt of a card from his brother, Dr. Peter Gillie, who recently enlisted in the veterinary department. Dr. Gillie is stationed at Montgomery, Ala. "Making headquarters here for the present and nothing to do yet. Expect 10,000 head of horses soon."

Ordered to France.

James Crankshaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Crankshaw, 3128 Fairfield avenue, and James B. Olds, son of Mrs. Marguerite Olds, of the St. James apartment, are members of the aviation squad in training at Columbus, Ohio, included in a detachment of twenty-six embryo birdmen ordered to France to complete their aerial training under the direction of the French experts. Stephen A. Ross and Boyd Lipsett, two other Fort Wayne representatives in the aviation training camp, will remain at Columbus until the training is completed.

Now in France.

Relatives have received word from Louis W. Wehrle, of this city, who is in France as a member of the quartermaster's corps of the expeditionary force with General Pershing. Wehrle is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor E. Wehrle, 2815 Lafayette street.

COUNTY LEVY WILL BE INCREASED FOUR CENTS

Annual Session of Council Convened at Court House Tuesday Morning.

The county levy for the ensuing year will be increased 3 or 4 cents, according to early estimates made Tuesday at the regular session of the county council. The levy last year was $3.04 on each $100, but because of increased cost of practically everything the levy for 1918 will probably be $3.08. There seems to be no other way out of it in order to meet the expenses for the coming twelve months.

The council went into session about 11 o'clock Tuesday morning and will not complete its duties before Thursday. Because of illness Byron Hattersley and Noah Amstutz, two members of the board, were unable to be in attendance. Amstutz expects to attend on Wednesday.

Twelve dollars and fifty-two cents are to be paid for three hundred weeks and $100 for funeral expenses. Kiefer was killed last April when overcome by ammonia fumes while in the employ of the Berghoff company. The agreement has been approved by the state industrial board.

Like Our Plan.

The Dallas News, of Dallas, Texas, one of the many Sentinel exchanges, carried a large picture of the local Reservoir park in the edition of the News for last Friday. TELLS OF GROWTH OF LINCOLN LIFE

Arthur F. Hall Talks at Weekly Meeting of the Kiwanis Club.

That the Lincoln Life Insurance company is one of the greatest advertising agencies for Fort Wayne in the city was very forcefully brought out in an address delivered at noon Tuesday at the regular weekly luncheon and meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Anthony hotel, by Arthur F. Hall, vice president and general manager of the company.

The company has five hundred agents scattred throughout the country and in excess of $6.000 comes to Fort Wayne every day through the Lincoln Life, ninety per cent of which from outside of the city.

Mr. Hall declared that the Lincoln Life during the past year had written one-third of the insurance of the total written by the seventeen Indiana companies and stood twenty-fifth among the three hundred companies throughout the country. He predicted that by 1920 the Lincoln Life would be the biggest enterprise in northern Indiana.

Howard Benninghoff, president of the company, presented Frank Gilmartin, of the Gilmartin Lumber company, who presided.

There are no fours nor forty-fours in Japanese telephone directories, because the name of the figure four, "Shi," is the term for death.

LOVING CUP TO THE SUCCESSFUL GUESSER

Elks Are to Guess on Number in Attendance at Picnic Next Sunday.

The Elk who is lucky enough to guess nearest the number that will attend the Elks' "Pic of Picnics" at the Elks' Country club next Sunday will be given a beautiful loving cup now on display at Trenkley & Koerber. The picnic in July had an attendance of 866. It was largely on account of the number who attended at that time what was pronounced one of the very best picnics ever given by the Elks' lodge, that the "Pic of Picnics" will be given on Sunday.

A very interesting story is connected with the title "Pic of Picnics" given the coming picnic. On the day of the July picnic everything was moving so smoothly and everybody was so happy that Captain William F. Ranke said to Charles Spanley, general chairman of the picnic: "Well, Charlie, this is really the grandest picnic the Elks ever had. While I would like to think so I do not believe it can be done just this way again. The weather, the fellows' dispositions, everything seemed ideal, something hard to duplicate, rather difficult to get just that combination again." Spanley came back with abang: "Do you know we never really had a chance to give our best at this picnic. Our time was too short, the club grounds not quite ready. My, how I wish that we could have pulled this off in September when all the members will be back from their vacations and the grounds in shape to accommodate a crowd as it will be then. Why, our cimmittee would give you the 'Pic of Picnics.'" The fervor and optimism of the chairman was such and the wish of the Elks so general for another picnic that the stake was set to give Chairman Spanley his chance to present the great out-door production, the "Pic of Picnics," on Sunday.

While committees are working hard to make the Elks' "Pic of Picnics" at the Elks' Country club next Sunday a big success, no Elks' picnic, in fact, no worth while enterprise is really a success unless there is a first class booster committee, or some group of men maybe known by some other name with energy and ideas to put it across. A booster committee has to boost not merely vocally but in a more substantial way. It has to develop the various features of the project it is handling then boost with all its might by whipping every angle of its plan into shape.

So during the next few days when you see S. A. Callahan, Harry Hilgeman, Dr. Guy Emerick, J. C. Hutzell, Guy Colerick, Frank Emrick, D. C. Stout, Cooney Bayer, Maurice Niezer, Harry Hattersley and John E. O'Connor, whether they appear gay and happy or have dull care written on their browsyou will know they are boosting for the Elks' picnic, Sunday, September 9th at the Elks' Country club. Boosting you will learn if you watch these men and their results is more than giving boisterous rah rahs. "Booster" is a big and meaningful word. The Elks' booster committee is leaving nothing undone to demonstrate just how powerful the word it.

REGISTRATION OF BOYS TO BE RESUMED

Work Will Be Taken Up Again on Wednesday and Thursday Evenings.

Another registration for boys who did not register the last time will be held on Wednesday and Thursday evenings at the Hanna, Hoaglald, Harmar and Jefferson schools. Boys who enrolled last time and who have not returned their cards are asked to do so on these two nights.

A. L. McDonald, in charge of the registration in Fort Wayne, has received a copy of a letter Isaac D. Straus, federal state director, has written to Professor C. W. Boucher, at Valparaiso, which follows:

"Registration enables us to get a proper survey of man-power represented by the boys 16 to 20. However, no boy is considered a member of the reserve nor is he entitled to 'federal award' until he enrolls. There is no valid reason or objection that any parent, boy, uncle, aunt or cousin, could make to enrollment, inasmuch as this organization is strictly a reserve of man-power for industries and farms, and the purpose of the enrollment is to see that no boys are idle.

"An idle boy in peace time is bad enough, but in war time is indicative of a 'slacker.'"

WARM PRAISE FOR PRESIDENT'S NOTE

Socialist Member of Danish Cabinet Voices His Approval.

Copenhagen, Sept 4.—T. Stauning, socialist member of the Danish cabinet and leader of that party in parliament, finds much to approve in President Wilson's reply to the pope's peace proposal.

In a statement to the Associated Press Mr. Stauning said:

"I am glad to have an opportunity to say a few words about President Wilson's answer to the pope, particularly as I have learned that with regard to my feelings toward the United States a misunderstanding recently has spread.

"I am of the opinion that President Wilson's answer to the pope's message is a highly promising sign and I see from it what I had expected, that Mr. Wilson does not wish the war to be continued to the end where there will be victors and defeated. I have at an earlier time said to the American press that in spite of the change that has taken place in certain circles, I firmly believe that the president of the free United States again would be seen busy at bringing about peace and I see that I have not been disappointed. The paragraph of President Wilson's words, that opposes a violation of the people's sovereignty, the imposing of indemnities, the splitting up of countries and the making of an egotistic and economic war, will be read with joy by everyone wishing a happy and lasting peace. I hope that Mr. Wilson's wise utterances may find echo and show their influence in other belligerent countries.

"The president's wishes that peace and its guarantee may be established by the people are of course in great harmony with my wishes and I should think that these words will furnish encouragement in the democratic parties of Europe to powerful efforts for a democratization movement."

LABOR TO WIPE OUT SCENES OF SQUALOR

Father Will Support Family, by Effort on County Roads.

Change of effort for Leo Friemuth, 26, 1214 East Wayne street, will bring a transposition in the condition of his family, Judge H. W. Kerr believes. Friemuth has been employed at a local brewery but has not supported his wife and two little children. The destitute family will be kept by efforts Friemuth will expend on the county road, Judge Kerr will pronounce on Thursday, when Friemuth faces a child neglect charge in city court.

Friemuth was arrested on last Friday. The original complaint against the man was for assault and battery, because he had beaten his wife, neighbors told the police. Investigation showed that he had not provided for his family and that he has wasted his earnings for drink.

Judge Kerr, Deputy Prosecutor John Hoffman, two police officers and Friemuth were taken to the laborer's home, Tuesday morning, in order to see the surroundings of his family.

The investigating party found the wife and two children living in a small house with few of the natural comforts of a home. The wife was sorely wounded from blows which Friemuth had delivered when in a drunken rage four days before. There was every mark of penury. The children were illy clothed and complained about being hungry. Neighbors have provided the living for the family, the judge was told.

The father of Mrs. Friemuth is expected to come for his daughter and to take her to his home at Etna Green along with her children. The woman asked that her husband be given another chance.

"He has enjoyed too many chances," said the judge. "I am sure he will provide if he works on the county road."

NEW TANK RECORD.

Alameda, Cal., Sept. 4.—A new world's record of 19 3-5 seconds for the twenty-five yard swimming dash was made in a tank here yesterday by George Cunha, of San Francisco, at a meeting authorized by the Pacific Athletic association. The previous record of 11 seconds was held by Norman Ross, of San Francisco.

Morris Mobbed by Crowd for Poor Tactics Against Fulton

Former White Hope Makes Poor Showing in Poor Fight.

Canton, Ohio, Sept. 4.—Carl Morris, who hails from the general vicinity of the Ozarks, yesterday took the easiest way out of a disgraceful dilemma.

Scheduled to bix fifteen rounds with Fred Fulton, the Rochester plasterer, to decide which was the better qualified to meet Jess Willard in a heavyweight championship contest, Morris deliberately fouled Fulton so often that Referee Matt Hinkel was forced to terminate the contest in the sixth round. Morris was mobbed when he left the ring, but was not hurt.

It was a sad ending to a spectacle which had a good beginning. It promised much more agreeable sport. More than one remarked, on seeing Morris as he came from his corner, "What a bear he must be." No remarks of that sort will greet Carl today if he shows his battered face in public places.

Breaks All the Rules.

Outclassed and apparently destined to become the recipient of a terrific mauling, Morris violated every rule of the boxing game and of good sportsmanship. He started early to prepare for his own finish. In the second round he apparently gave up hope. He forsook the legal methods of boxing and resorted to the foul—which was evidence that he felt he was a beaten man. With the passing of the minutes his disregard for accepted practices grew. He refused to heed the warning of the referee not once but consistently.

A half dozen times Hinkel issued an ultimatum, declaring this intention of awarding the match to Multon if Morris did not box according to Marquis of Queensberry rules. But still Morris kept up foul tactics. The sixth round was not half a dozen seconds old when Morris' intentions were plain to every one. He wanted to be disqualified.

Hinkel did everything in his power to force the big fellow to live up to the rules. The well-known referee and promoter even stopped a few blows himself in an effort to give the crowd what it expected.

When Hinkel finally pried the big fellows apart and announced the match was over, his decision was the most popular ever given in this vicinity.

M'GOVERN OUTCLASSED.

Philadelphia, Sept. 4.—Willie Jackson, the New York lightweight, outclassed Terry McGovern, of this city, in a six-round bout here yesterday. McGovern, who was substituted for Tommy Touhey, of Paterson, N. J., was barely able to stand when the bout ended.

COFFEY BEATS MADDEN.

New York, Sept. 4.—Jim Coffey, the Irish heavyweight, outfought Bartley Madden, of this city, in a ten-round bout yesterday. Coffey was the aggressor throughout, Madden's footwork enabling him to evade Coffey's best blows. Coffey weighed 203 pounds and Madden 180.

TOMMY GIBSON ALSO WINS.

Dayton, O., Sept. 4.—Tommy Gibbons, of St. Paul, won the decision yesterday in the fifteen-round bout with Gus Christie, having the better of the contest all the way through. There were no knockdowns.

OTHER LABOR DAY FIGHTS.

Dillon Outclassed.

Terre Haute, Ind., Sept. 4.—Mike Gibbons, of St. Paul, shaded Jack Dillon, of Indianapolis, in every round of their ten-round no-decision fight for the world's middle-weight championship, according to sport writers who saw the contest here yesterday.

Gibbons took the offensive in the first round and kept it, with the exception of the third round when Dillon rallied and won an even break on the round. In the fifth Gibbons rocked Dillon's head with a left jab and delivered repeated blows to the face, drawing blood and inflicting punishment to the eyes

In the remaining rounds Dillon showed signs of distress, but displayed remarkable grit, which kept him on his feet under staggering blows. Gibbons grew cautious in the ninth and tenth rounds, but finished with a rain of rights and lefts that sent Dillon staggering to his corner.

DUNDEE WINS.

Davenport, Ia., Sept. 4.—Mike Dundee, after defeating K. O. Krause at Dubuque, repeated here yesterday by beating Harry Condon in ten rounds. Dundee weighed 119 pounds, while Condon weighed 128 pounds. Kid Harris, of Denver, and Lee Higgins, of Davenport, fought an eight-round go. Dundee will box Mort Henderson at La Salle, Ill., on Sept. 10.

CHAMPION IN FORM

Toronto, Sept. 4.—Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, stopped young Rector, of Jersey City, in the fifth round of a six-round match here yesterday. Leonard overwhelmed his opponent with his speed and skill, raining punches on him from all angles. In the fifth round, after Rector had been forced to his knees for a second time, his seconds threw in the sponge.

CENTRAL LEAGUE.

Rain Interferes.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 4.—Fort Wayne and Peoria got an even break in the wind-up of the Central league for 1917 here yesterday, neither winning nor losing the final, the only victory that was chalked was that by the weather man. The last day card would have undoubtedly been one of the largest attended, if not the largest, of the season, and would have helped further the cause of Central league baseball, which has suffered at the gate this year because of the war. The Fort Wayne Chiefs with the cellar championship safely tucked away started for home last night, having wound up an unsuccessful season. The only thing that might have saved them would have been possibly the fact that Dayton was making a worse showing prior to the wreck which put them out of the running for the remainder of the season two weeks ago. The local club has arranged a series of exhibition games and it is not considered likely that the contest scheduled yesterday will be played later.

Myers Club Wins Again and Will Meet Lincoln Lifers

New Outfit Shows Class Enough for City Champs.

Bade Myers' new team in the field which it is expected will play the Lincoln Life club a series of games for the city championship showed its class by defeating the All-Nations at League park yesterday, 6 to 3. It was the second game in two days that the new club has played and the only two of the season, both of them victories, but they proved that the Lincoln Life club will have some keen competition for the city honors.

Hitchcock lived up to his expected ability by pitching a good game against the hard-hitting Cubs, but it was to no avail as the All-Nations were outclassed by Bade's team, which represented only one nation—the one our boys are going to fight for over there in the trenches, and the one that Bade thinks will cop the city championship in a short time. With the exception of the fifth inning when the Cubs got four runs, Hitchcock kept his hits scattered and things looked about even. For the first four innings the game was played on an equal footing. It was in the fifth that the deluge came. Liable singled and was followed by Prince and Railing, who bunted safely. Brown struck out. Dietrich hit toward first, which Carmen fielded but made a wild heave, allowing two scores. Watt drew a bye. Lair forced Railing home and two more counted on a Blacksmith's hit. Liable the second time up hit a two-bagger, scoring two more. Prince was out, short to first, ending the run scoring.

An account of this, quoted from Agricoltura Toscana, assures us that the bread is not only nutritious, but agreeable to the taste. A given quantity of grain yields more bread when unground than when it has been made into flour. From forty-eight to sixty hours is required to soak the grain to the proper consistency for mixing.

INDIANA FIRST WITH MUNICIPAL COAL MINE

Mayor Ben Bosse, of Evansville, Puts Own Fortune Into Venture.

Staff Special.

Evansville, Ind., Sept. 4—The first municipal coal mine in the United States will supply Evansville citizens this winter.

Mayor Benjamin Bosse is establishing the mine privately with his own money and will sell it to the city on easy terms when it is in operation. It will be operated by the waterworks department within two months, and the mayor hopes the city will be able to take it over by January 1.

Mayor Bosse failed in his attempt to sell coal at cost last winter because he could get only non-union coal at moderate prices, and the unions therefore opposed the venture. Now the only obstacle is doubt as to whether the Indiana public service commission will find legal authority for city ownership and operation of a coal mine. If it does not the mayor will ask the sanction of the state legislature at a special session which he expects Gov. Goodrich, also fighting high coal prices, to call if necessary.

Walter Korff, who has spent all his life in the coal business and has been chosen to install and manage the city mine, is now making borings on a 1,000-acre tract on which Bosse has options. Eventually modern electric machinery will be installed to produce a daily output of 1,000 tons. Union miners will be employed exclusively.

The mine will be on an interurban line and a steam road to Evansville, and city coal yards, will be established on both. The city will sell coal wholesale and retail, at cost plus a small profit.

Manager Korff says the mayor will have invested $100,000 of his own money when he turns the mine over to the city.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists, 75c.

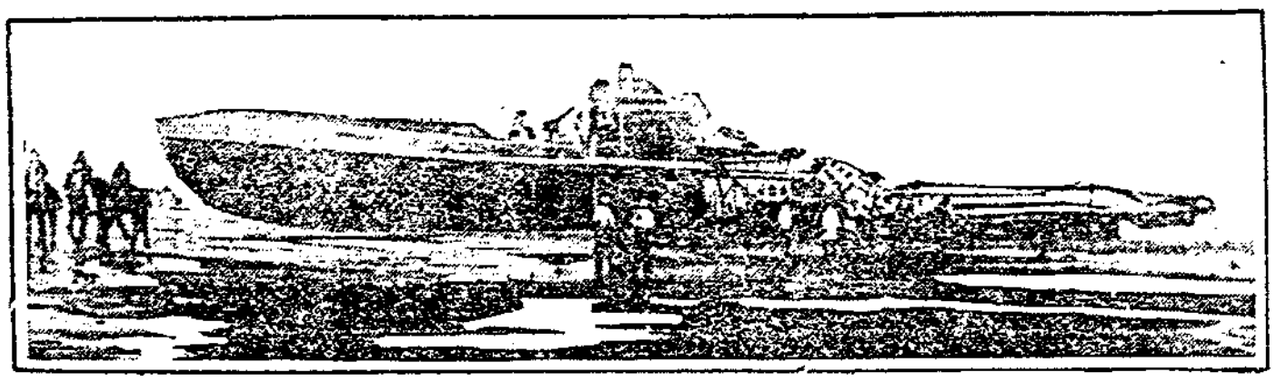
SHE SOWED THE SEAS WITH DEATH



This striking picture is from Kenneth W. Payne, staff correspondent, with headquarters in London. This German submarine was sowing mines along the French coast in the path of the transports conveying United States troops to the French front. The submarine ventured in too far, in its desperate attempt to plant death for the Sammies, and was washed aground. The crew, unable to float the vessel, set it on fire before surrendering. The submarine is too badly damaged to be remodeled for the allies' use, but it will plant no more seeds of death in the path of Uncle Sam's armies. The havoc caused by the fire can be seen particularly at the right of the picture.

TALKS TO MOTHERS ABOUT SONS.

Here's the biggest mistake you mothers make. Having little Rufus taking music lessons. Very foolish, though some of our best prize fighters and ball players took music lessons when they were kids. How cruel you mothers are, making your wild son stay in and practice an hour or so on silly scales and some simp piece about "The dance of the fairies," etc., when he'd rather be out playing "duck on the rock" or with his gang up an alley changing the lines on some peddler's horse. If a boy is musical let him do it himself. He'll cop the front wheels off the baby carriage and trade it with some kid for a battered up mouth organ, and he'll practice on it while he and his gang are teasing the chinks in a Chinese laundry. See, the trouble is you mothers don't hitch on things your son likes. When a kid does things just the way ma wants it, he ceases to be a kid.

One of the most remarkable developments in this war is reported from South America, where the government of Chile is proposing to repair some of its old warships and convert them into cargo boats for the transport of cereals, coal and other necessaries. This comes as refreshing reading after the many instances of peaceful adjuncts of business, such as steam tugs, fishing boats and steam trawlers, being converted into organs of offense or defense.—Tit-Bits, London.

School Head Passing Vacation as Army Camp Carpenter

East St. Louis Principal Earning Wage at Shiloh, Ill., Aviation Field.

PROF. JOHN B. HUDDLE, principle of the Washington and Irving schools, East St. Louis, is passing his vacation as No. 758 of the carpenter's staff at the aviation field, nine miles from Belleville, near Shiloh, Ill. Incidentally he is earning more money than he does through the school year.

His salary is $1,750 for supervising two schools ten months. His wages as a carpenter are $6.87 a day of ten hours and $12.50 for Sundays and holidays. As the work must be rushed because of the war, there is work every Sunday and all holidays. If he works every day in July, which has five Sundays and one holiday, his pay at the end of the month will be $247, as compared to his monthly salary of $175 when he teaches school.

Prof. Huddle is the possessor of the highest grade certificate in Illinois. He has given twenty-five years to his profession. Besides his preparatory instruction he has attended professional and educational institutions in the school year and vacations. Last year, besides his regular school work, he carried four majors at St. Louis University. He is a junior in that institution, and expects to remain one of its night students until he is graduated.

In the school year he attends St. Louis University classes three nights in the week. In doing this he is following the wishes of the East St. Louis Board of Education, which advances the salaries of teachers according to a system in which attending school figures. Next winter Prof. Huddle will be entitled to $1,800 a year, the maximum salary at present in East St. Louis.

Gets an Early Start.

Prof. Huddle has no intention of giving up his profession in preference for the trade taught him by his father, Benjamin Huddle, 88 years old, excellent carpenter and cabinet maker. But he's glad that he is the possessor of this trade at this particular time. His vacation days are not exactly playdays, as one may see by heading his daily program, which follows:

Each morning he rises early enough to have his breakfast and to be ready to start for the aviation field at 5:15 o'clock. He makes the journey in the automobile of a fellow worker. The trip begins at his home, 2914 Virginia place, in Alta Sita, East St. Louis, continues over the dykes to State street, on to Belleville—if the Belleville motorcycle "cops" aren't hungry—then out the Carlyle road to the aviation field. The distance of about twenty-one miles. The best time is made between Alta Sita and Edgemont and Belleville and the field, because the Belleville ordinances require a speed of fifteen miles an hour only from Edgemont to the Belleville city limits. The best road is that where the speed is limited.

Once the automobile in which Prof. Huddle was traveling to work was stopped by a policeman, and Prof. Huddle will defend the chauffeur when he is summoned to trial. Among the other things in which he is versed is law, he being a member of the Jefferson-Lincoln law class, which studied for several years in the East St. Louis City Hall.

Belleville motorcycle policemen are paid only when they make arrests and it is said that the Belleville custom is to fine $25 and costs for the first offense, $50 plus costs for the second, and a rising scale for all others.

Prof. Huddle says the fine road which is almost minus a vehicle at 5:30 o'clock in the morning would tempt almost any one to speed. He also says that the watchfulness of the motorcycle policemen is so acute that almost any kind of speed is more than fifteen miles an hour in their judgment.

With luck, Prof. Huddle arrives at the field in time for the opening hour of work, 7 o'clock.

There is much work to be done and one must be an experienced carpenter to get it done. Many men are hired each day and many are discharged. The man who doesn't know the trade may hammer away a few days, but he goes as surely as do horse weeds from well cultivated corn fields. The superintendent of construction and the foremen know their business, Prof. Huddle says, and they know it as he insists that boys and girls know fractions thoroughly.

Working Under College Man.

Prof. Huddle's foreman is a graduate of the University of Illinois, having completed the course in engineering and architecture. Prof. Huddle listened to the man's directions one day and knew before noon came that his "boss" was a college man. The "boss" knows Prof. Huddle only by his number, but he probably knows that No. 758 and himself have certain mental kinship.

Uncle Sam is particularly fortunate in his superintendents and foremen at this aviation field. They are men of the right class. Prof. Huddle when asked is it irked to be told after many years of telling replied:

"While I could not stand to be driven, I enjoy intelligent supervision. When I know that the man who is ordering me knows what he is talking about I find it a pleasure to accede to his orders."

Workers at the aviation field have an hour at noon. That's the same amount that is allowed in the East St. Louis public schools. Time was when Prof. Huddle gave some attention to the kind and quality of his food. That was before last February, when he practically fasted for three weeks. He weighed 198 pounds then. At the end of the third week his weight was but 168 pounds. He has lost 5 pounds since he began his vacation work at the aviation field. That loss is small in comparison to the amounts lost by other carpenters. Prof. Huddle began his three weeks of near-fast with two days of absolute fasting. Later he took black coffee for a few days. To this diet he added spinach. This was increased to light meals. These light meals have not been materially increased and Prof. Huddle says the result is that he has never felt better in his life than at present, when he calls his condition "coltish."

Not so long ago Prof. Huddle had a reputation as a chef, gained by his management of his electric chafing dish for the benefit of his teachers, many of whom have to take their lunches to school. He can still concoct good dishes, but his appetite does not require any except plain food. However, it is his opinion that the ability to cook has no sex limitations.

Work at the aviation field is over at 6 o'clock and wages for ten hours are at the rate of eleven hours. The return journey to East St. Louis is made by automobile, with careful attention to speed in Belleville.

After supper Prof. Huddle sits on his screened porch in one of the best residence districts of East St. Louis and enjoys what he calls his only vice—his cigar. He does not discard his becoming blue and white striped overalls and in one of the pockets is his gold watch, which has a chain and other decorations not often worn by a workingman.

He does not retire until 10 o'clock, taking the time between supper and bed for reading.

There are children in the Huddle family. A son of 25, Elmer, who has enlisted in the Third Illinois Artillery, which is being recruited in East St. Louis and suburbs; a daughter, Mrs. William Maurer, who was Miss Rachel Huddle, a teacher in the East St. Louis schools before her marriage; William Huddle, 19, a student in the East St. Louis High School, of which both the others are graduates, and the baby of the family, Grace Hite Huddle, 9 years old, in the sixth grade, and named for one of the best teachers of English in Illinois, who is also a relative of Prof. Huddle. There was another child, who died several years ago, Tolley, memory of whom will recall to many East St. Louisans the miniature Bunkum school made by pupils of Prof. Huddle several years ago as a problem in mathematics and construction. Some things have to be told before you can know all about the miniature Bunkum school.

Prof. Huddle was born in Omega, Ill., "the last place." His uncle, Judge Cagy, was a law partner of Silas Bryan, father of William Jennings Bryan. His family was part of the big Huddle family of Virginia, which holds a reunion each July. Prof. Huddle received an invitation to the reunion. Originally the name was Hottel, and its possessors were French Huguenots. They settled in Virginia and sent their children to school taught by an English teacher who did not know the difference between German and French. He asked the Hottel children their name, but he did not ask its spelling. He listened carefully and deduced that these were German children who pronounced "d's" as "t's" and that their names must be Hoddle or Huddle. It became the latter for the time being. In time some went back to the old spelling and others took a middle-of-the-road form, as is evidenced by the invitation to the reunion, which is signed by three members of the family, each with his name spelled a different way. One of these is a minister.

Prof. Huddle's branch of the family went to Ohio and later to Illinois. His father, who taught him carpentering, is still living. His mother lived until she passed her 80th year.

Prof. Huddle went to the Iuka schools and when he had completed there passed a year teaching in that neighborhood, which is near Salem, Ill. The confinement of the schoolroom did not agree with him, and he took employment as a timekeeper for a Baltimore and Ohio road gang. The gang was sent to Caseyville, Ill. Then came romance into Prof. Huddle's life.

Mrs. Huddle was a Caseyville girl. Near Caseyville is the Bunkum School. Prof. Huddle obtained this school for the winter. The Bunkum road, as it goes up the hill past the Bunkum School, is one of the prettiest drives in this section of the country. Bunkum and Caseyville have strong individuality. The latter was named for a lieutenant governor of Illinois, and has lived up to its baseball name by producing some of the best ballplayers in the country. Larry Doyle was born in Caseyville. Dan Hanley, who became mayor of Cripple Creek, was a Caseyville boy, and is an uncle of Larry Doyle.

Which hasn't much connection with the Bunkum School, except that the annual picnic of the Caseyville and Bunkum schools are held on the same day. Prof. Huddle taught the Bunkum School for several years. When the school needed an addition he built it. He also built his own home in Caseyville, as well as many porches and porticos which still may be seen.

He knew every inch of the Bunkum School, now standardized, so well that after he had become an East St. Louis principal, after serving as principal of the Caseyville School for several years, he decided to let his pupils learn several chapters of arithmetic through actual construction. Under his direction they made a miniature Bunkum School, concrete foundation, desks and all, every measurement true to the original, and this, when completed, was shown in the East St. Louis High School at a large meeting of teachers and then returned to the Alta Sita School, where it still is an object of interest. At the time of its making Prof. Huddle was principal of the Alta Sita School. It is pleasant to know that the present principal of the Alta Sita School is Prof. John E. Miller, one time a teacher of the Bunkum School, to whom the miniature school means much.

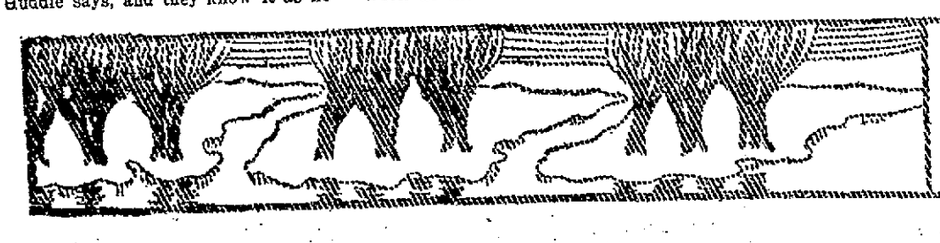
Tolley Huddle, the dead son, helped his father in much of the work on the little schoolhouse. The desks were cut out of wood by the girls of the Alta Sita School, many of whom had never known just what a country school was like. Much besides arithmetic was taught in the making of this school.

In the rear of the Huddle home is a chicken and pigeon yard that has the most elaborate burglar alarm and lighting facilities in East St. Louis.

Understanding the switchboard which controls these is as good as taking a course in high school electricity. Push one thing in the yard and not only do bells ring, but the yard becomes as bright as day. Milk-fed chickens thrive in this yard, as do one India Runner duck, a dozen or so Guinea pigs and some pigeons.

Prof. Huddle acknowledges that he is versatile, also that he can adjust himself to conditions. He says that he has a profession and three trades. The latter are those of carpenter, jeweler and machinist. He has worked other vocations, once as a machinist, another as traveling salesman. Friends who know his ability in argument and oratory have wondered why he did not qualify for the Chautauque circuit.

If Prof. Huddle wished he might retire from active work as a teacher and draw a teacher's pension. That kind of a life has no attraction for him. He considers himself too young and too mentally active. He knows that Illinois coal miners at present are drawing wages ranging from $90 to $110 every two weeks, and that credits, professional meetings, etc., have nothing to do with their raises. He knows what he could earn at his other trades should he wish to leave his profession for one of them. But he has no intention of making a change.



It is hard to tell a mince pie from an unquiet conscience when all you have to go by is the troubled look worn next morning.

is made of the extent of damage, if any, to naval property.

Meanwhile the Italian air service seems to have effected notable damage upon the Austrian naval base at Pola. Rome reports today the dropping of nine tons of bombs by thirty Italian airplanes on Pola, causing heavy damage and large fires.

Press dispatches from the Austro-Italian front report the Italians continuing their steady advance in their operation for Trieste, pushing their lines ahead in the Brestovizza valley in the district south of Gorizia and working farther forward eastward over the great Bainsizza plateau. The fall of Mont San Gabriele, the chief remaining vantage point of the Austrians aside from their Carso strongholds, is considered only a matter of time as the Italians continue steadily creeping up its slopes.

There has been no renewal of the Flanders fighting on a large scale as yet, although the intensity of the artillery fire suggests that this is impending. The British, however, are biting further into the German positions at points on their front and today a slight advance of the British lines northeast of St. Julien is announced.

over a larger tract of the country, especially through the Brestovizza valley and over the Bansizza plateau, capturing trench after trench and in some cases finding squads of Austrian troops, literally exhausted and suffering from thirst and hunger, their means of communication having been cut off by the well directed Italian fire.

Mone San Gabriele still is making desperate efforts at resistance, but Italian pickets are gradually creeping up the slopes, making its fall only a matter of time when, as officers laughingly say here "the Austrians execute another stragetical retreat."

Army officers and others who have read the Austrian war bulletins are much amused over the statements that the Italians are fleeing when as a matter of fact the Italians are constantly gaining territory.

Since the beginning of the present advance the Italians have gained ground every day while all Austrian efforts to recapture lost positions have been shattered by the energetic resistance of General Cadorna's army.

SELECTED MEN ARE READY TO GO INTO THE CANTONMENTS

low citizens the national army men marched between lines of cheering thousands, bidding them god speed on the first steps of their journey to France.

Offices Close.

All government offices closed for the occasion, poured out their thousands to join the procession. Business houses were closed for the time the entire capital turned aside the daily tasks to do honor to the drafted men.

At the white house reviewing stand, a large party of foreign diplomats and other officials assembled to wait for the president's coming at the head of the procession and to join him in reviewing it.

The senate and house prepared to adjourn early in order to take part, it being the first time congress has ever marched in any popular demonstration. The senate was led by Senator Saulsbury, president pro tempore, and the house by Speaker Champ Clark and "Uncle Joe" Cannon, both of whom refused to ride, despite their advanced ages.

Senators Nelson and Warren, who fought on the union side in the civil war, and Senators Martin and Bankhead, who were with the armies of the confederacy, marched side by side in their respective uniforms of blue and gray.

Veterans of the Spanish-American war who were with the senate delegation are Senators New, Frelinghuysen, Wadsworth, Lewis, Weeks, Vardaman and Farrell.

Review the Parade.

As the van of the column reached the white house the president entered the reviewing stand. With him were Viscount Ishii, special ambassador from Japan and the members of the Japanese mission, the French ambassador and Mme. Jusserand, the Mexican ambassador and other members of the diplomatic corps.

Government and business establishments were closed to permit employes either to march or witness the parade. Societies and civic organizations were represented by large delegations and floats. The only banner permitted, with the exception of the standards distinguishing the various groups, was the Stars and Stripes.

Among the military units represented were the regiment from the officers' reserve camp at Fort Myer, Va.; the district national guard, one regiment of engineers, several battalions of coast and field artillery and a squadron of regular cavalry.

sembly." The final election system to be used in Russia has not been settled as yet, the speaker said. The future structure of local government in Russia, however, will be accompanied by the greatest decentralization.

This process of decentralization, Ambassador Bakhmeteff asserted, will result in a system similar to that of the United States, although "there will always be a substantial difference conditioned by the difference of the historical formation of the state. * * * The future edifice of new Russia, with all the future developments of local government will be formed by a process of decentralization of previously established forms, on virtue of law emanating from a central body representing the will of the whole people."

No Direct Election.

"Independent and direct election of the chief executive," as the president is chosen in America, the ambassador declared, "would involve danger in a country like Russia, fresh from monarchial tradition. Concentration of such enormous powers in an individual would become a threat to the new republic."

In touching on the present condition of unrest in Russia the speaker said:

"I am confident of being right when characterizing the centrifugal forces, which are being exhibited now in Russia, as one of the infant diseases which, as many others, will disappear, and let us hope forever, in the sparkling light of liberty and exuberant atmosphere of democracy."

AMERICAN BAR IS STRONG IN LOYALTY

National Association at Saratoga Adopts Warm Resolutions.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Sept. 4—Resolutions pledging the loyaolty of the American Bar association to the government were presented at the opening session of the annual meeting of the organization this morning by Elihu Root on behalf of the executive committee, with the unanimous recommendation of the committee that they be adopted. The resolutions assert that the future freedom and security of the country depend upon the defeat of the German military power; approve the entrance of the United States into the war before it was to late to find success through the united action of the democrate powers; urge the most vigorous possible prosecution of the war, and conclude as follows:

"We stand for the dispatch of the American army, however raised, to the battle front in Europe, where the armed enemies of our country can be found and fought and where our own territory can best be defended. We condemn all attempts in congress and out of it to hinder and embarrass the government of the United States in carrying on the war with vigor and effectiveness. Under whatever cover a pacifism or technicality such attempts are made, we deem them to be in the spirit pro-German, and in effect giving aid and comfort to the enemy. We declare this to be overwhelmingly the sentiment of the American bar."

LABOR TO SHOW LOYALTY.

OHIO GUARDSMEN IN ALLEN COUNTY JAIL

Soldiers Taken Off Pennsy Train Held Pending Investigation.

The two soldiers taken off a westbound Pennsylvania train by railroad detectives Tuesday morning are not deserters, according to Maj. Thomas Ryan, in charge of the local recruiting office. Major Ryan declared that if the young men, who gave their names as John S. Grimes, 23, of Alliance, O., and Bartholomew Kelleher, also of Alliance, both members of Company K, Eighth Ohio infantry, had told the truth, which he is investigating, they will probably be charged with being absent without leave.

The young men, who have been lodged in the county jail, told Major Ryan that they had only been gone from Alliance, where Company K of Ohio is stationed, about five hours and probably cannot be considered deserters, as was at first thought probable. They were taken off the train by the detectives because they were trying to beat their way.

The soldiers told Major Ryan they had relatives in this city whom they came here to see. Major Ryan has been in communication with the officers of the company at Alliance and while he has not yet received word as to the truth of the story told by the young men he says he has no reason to believe that it is not true. Upon receipt of word from Alliance to the effect that the infantrymen belong there Major Ryan will detach a guard to accompany them back to the Ohio city.

In case the charge placed against the Ohio men is that of being absent without leave, punishment, according to practice in such cases, will probably be light. Major Ryan says that in view of the facts as he believes them to be, the young men cannot be classed as deserters.

CITY COUNCIL OF CHICAGO HANDS LEMON TO BILL

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 4.—Mayor William Hale Thompson presided today over a special meeting of the city council called for the purpose of commending Governor Lowden's stand against the meeting of the pacifists. The mayor permitted the meeting in defiance of the governor. There was talk of calling another special meeting for tomorrow to consider the actions of the mayor himself.

Police were scattered throughout the city hall and on guard in the council chamber when the session began. The mayor was applauded by the gallery as he entered the chamber.

A vote which served as test at the special meeting of the city council this afternoon indicated that of the forty-eight aldermen present at the time of the vote forty were in favor of the resolution commending Governor Lowden (and by implication censuring the mayor) for his stand against pacifist agitation.

ANTI-WAR GROUP IN SENATE HAS ANOTHER JOLT

Washington, Sept. 4.—The group fighting the finance committee's scheme of war profits taxation was defeated again today when the senate rejected Senator Hollis' proposal to strike out the finance committee's new compromise provision extending the war profits taxes to peace profits over 10 per cent estimated to raise $428,000,000 additional.

Immediately after disposing of Senator Hollis' proposal the senate rejected—50 to 18—an amendment by Senator Lafollette to levy a flat increase of 60 per cent on war profits, designed to raise not less than $1,800,000,000.

STOCK MARKET HAS VIGOR AFTER REST

Triple Holiday Followed by Rallies at Opening and New Strength.

New York Sept. 4—Resumption of operations on the stock exchange after the triple holiday was attended by many substantial rallies from last week's final prices. United States Steel, the market leader, opened at 110⅝ to 111, a maximum gain of 1½ points. Rails were irregular, material gains in New York Central and Reading being offset by the heaviness of Pacifics and the southern division.

Excepting the rails, which were retarded by the weakness of New York Central and New Haven, almost all early prices were surpassed.

Baldwin Locomotive advanced four and other industrials and metals to two. United States Steel extended its gain to 111⅝ and some of the high grade specialties, including Industrial Alcohol, registered further advances with motors. Prices reacted fractionally at noon on the 6 per cent call money rate. Liberty bonds were active at 99.90 to 99.94.

ENROLLMENT OVER 10,000

School Bells Call Largest Army of Pupils in City's History.

FEW NEW TEACHERS APPEAR ON LISTS

Enlarged Attendance at All Parochial Schools of City.

The largest army of bright-eyed school children ever mobilized in Fort Wayne marched away to their respective schools, Tuesday morning, at the summons of ringing bells. The enrollment of all schools of the city is believed to be above 10,000, from reports from the various grades and from the parochial schools.

There is an increased attendance reported from every one of the city grade schools. The high school attendance will be but slightly above that of last year, it is reported. A few of the lads who would have been seniors this year have enlisted in the army of Uncle Sam.

There is an enlarged attendance at the Catholic and Lutheran schools of the city. The enrollment at the Central Catholic high school, St. Augustine's and St. Catherine's academies will be at least fifty more than last year, it is reported. The Lutheran and Catholic grade schools are showing a marked increase in numbers.

Few New Teachers.

In the city schools there will be but few new teachers. There are but twenty-two new faces in the gathering of more than 300 city instructors. Of the recently acquired instructors there will be eight new teachers in the high school; eight have just finished their normal work and seven will be in the kindergarten department.

No effort will be made to fill the place as city school superintendent, made vacant by the death of Prof. Justin N. Study, until the school term has been running for at least a week.

The school work proper started on Tuesday afternoon as the morning was given over to assigning text books for the different grades. The first day will be taken up almost solely in organization.

NO DANGER OF THE COAL MINES CLOSING

So Declares William F. Houston in Labor Day Address.

There is no danger of the operators closing down their mines as they have threatened if the government persists in enforcing price regulations, declared William F. Houston, of Terre Haute, general organizer for the United Mine Workers of America, in his address at the Labor day celebration at Robison park Monday.

"Many of the operators have said they cannot make expenses on the government's figures and that they will have to close down," Mr. Houston stated, "but just as soon as they do the government will take over those mines and will operate them. The operators know this. They do not want government ownership, but they know that once the government takes over any mines it means government ownership of those mines with a gradual extensions of the system."

The Labor day celebration was a success in every particular, including the monster parade in the morning.

MAN WHO CAUSED PANIC WAS SICK

Friends Intercede and Ruin Only Lively Case on Docket.

Police dashed far out on McClellan street Monday night to a terror toned call for aid. A man was trying to break into one of the McClellan street homes, it was reported. Officers found James Reed, 40, bartender, slinking in a reulle. Reed was locked up.

Friends of the man interceded in his behalf in police court Tuesday morning, when the county prosecutor and two detectives had assembled in the basement court room to gain evidence in what appeared to be a sensational case. The men who know Reed well claim that he is ill. He made his way from the bartenders' clubrooms Monday night, half clothed, and had to be rescued, his friends said.

Reed told in court that he was lost on Monday evening and was wandering along McClellan street in an effort to find his way home. He was given into custody of his friends who promised to care for him.

There were seven loitering cases on the brief docket Tuesday. Walter Jerald, 39, was the only prisoner detained. He is thought to be temporarily demented. His status will be investigated. He is held until Friday. Those released were Miles Swartz, Joe Gallaway, Lee Brown, John Brown, John C. Pierson and William Hart.
